The intelligence from Europe, brought by the steamer Pacific, which arrived at New York on Sunday morning, is truly of a warlike character. All Europe appears to be slumbering on the verge of a volcano. The difficulties between Russia and Turkey, are rapidly approaching a orisis, and from present appearances a war is inevitable. Austria and Switzerland are also at sword's points, and hostilities between those powers are daily looked for. It is announced that the mission of Prince MENSCHIKOFF to Constantinople has been a complete fallure. All further negotiations between Russia and Turkey, are therefore, for the present, at an end. The Ambassadors of France and England and the Ministers of Prussia and Austria had previously agreed to make a joint attempt at reconciliation between the Divan and the Russian Envoy. Their attempt, however, was fruitless, as Menschikoff persisted in his demand for the immunities of the Greek Church. Disputches purporting to be from Kalish, state that the military camp generally formed during the spring, near Warsaw, had been indefinitely postponed; owing to the state of affairs at Con-stantinople, and the van of the Southern army of 100,000 men, had received orders to approach the Turkish frontiers. Letters from Jassy also state that the Russian military preparations were continued on an extensive scale.
