Between these two, there is no difficulty in deciding in favor of Judge Knox.

For the second office, you have presented as your candidate, the Hon. Ephrain Banks, the present Auditor General of the State, who has discharged the high duties of his office with a care, industry and conscientious rectitude, that has endeared him to the party. He has long been favorably known to the people of Pennsylvania, having held sevaral prominent offices, and naver has the breath of slandar uttered a word deregatory to his character.

In opposition to him, the Whigs have presented a Mr. Mr. Clure, of Chambersburg, who is so utterly ignorant of the innees of the Common waith, that in his first political essay he made an error of two millions of deflars.
