Whatever the state of the "Money Market," their surplus products must and will go where food is wanted, and must be paid for in cash or its equivalent. Such is the condition of the great body of the people of Ohio, for agriculture is its great interest, and must continue to be its greatest source of prosperity.

Although Pennsylvania has agricultural canacities nearly equal to Ohio, yet there is a wide difference in the relative proportion of population of the two States employed in agriculture. Pennsylvania has now 2,400,000 inhabitants; about gathered into cities and large towns, and employed in commerce, manufactures, and the me chanic arts; while in Ohio, with a population of 2,000,-Ohio, with a smaller territory, has over ten million acres of improved land, while Pennsylvania has but about nine million acres yet improved. mentioned. The trip merely suggested this train of thought. One thing we did see, however; and that is some of the almost countless railroads of Ohio: that we saw them all. Ohio is generally a level region, and railroads are built there at far less groups than in Pennsylvania. Almost every country in Ohio is wealthy. The people generally are wealthy, intelligent, and enterprising: and the way, they walk into railroad enterprises is perfectly astonishing. In fact, we think they are going a little too fast in that business. If we are not mistaken, they are building some failways that will never repsy the stockholders, at any rate, if they do damage the stockholders by individual, and not by municipal subscription. The prospect, at any rate, is that no state of this perfect was a state of things and salocon. The base arge supply on hand at his depoil to the state of things and salocon. Ohio adop. ted the free trade policy in regard to railroads; and allowed people from other States to build rallroads wherever they pleased within her borders. Witness the Ohio and Pennsylvania road, built mainly by Pennsylvanians; and the "Lake Shore," and other roads, built mainly by New York and Boston. Penusylvania adopted the "protective" or exclusive policy, and refused to Baltimore the privilege of building a road across the southern counties of our State; and to New York the privilege of opening the whole northern half of our state with a great western railroad. But the wealth and enterprise of Pennsylvania can yet do, and must and will do, what foreign capital was forbidden to accomplish. Our State will yet be abundanty supplied with railroads. And our roads; though they cost far more than the Ohio roads, was on account of George Law's liability as one will pay far better, because employed in carrying, not agricultural productions alone, but both our farming and vast mineral products, to the our farming and vast mineral products, to the paid up the whole penalty in which he was of the possession of his lineal descendants." must pass agreat portion of the products of Ohio | ment is very large. itself. The idea was distinctly developed in Lord Durham's famous report; it was advocated long ugo by Mr. Roebuck; it is popular among many of the more intelligent colonists, and is likely enough to have certain conveniences in practice. So much, however would depend upon the nature of the union, that we must see the plan before we can pronounce it desirable or otherwise.'

Currier, writes Coringa.-New Haven Journal and Courses. A FIGHT BETWEEN A SHARK AND A TURTLE -

One day while lying at anchor, and whistling for a breeze, the steward rushed in with the strange announcement that a shark and a turtle were engaged in a fight alongside. Doubtful and amazed at the account of so unusual and unequal a combat, we all rushed on deck, and there, sure enough, we saw an immense shark and a turfle of venerable antiquity, if one might judge by his size, and the profusion of barmacles and other parasites with which he was decorated. Without gaged in a fight alongside. Doubtful and amazed respect for his age and Quaker-like habits, the shark made a furious charge at poor turtle, who opposed the dangerous jaws of the enemy with sion could be made. On one occasion the tuetle did not turn quite sharply enough, which cost him the greater part of one unlucky flipper. In-dignant at the perversion of such an eldermanic banquet to the voracious and indiscriminative appetite of a shark, our skipper intervened with
