EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE. ALLIANCE, October 29, 1858.

Old Post :- Here we are in the midst of the Backeyes. We have been scampering through Beveral sounties of Ohio, and traveled so fast that we had no time to let you hear from us till now. Wherever we go in Ohio we find excellent land, fine farms, and every appearance of thrift, intelligence and comfort. The population of this State is over two millions; and probably no two millions of people on any region of the globe enjoy more of the comforts of life, get belier rewards for their labor, or are more gen erally prosperous than the people of Ohio. We believe the last census shows that this State has very few paupers. And we see no reason why every man blessed with bealth and a willingness to work; cannot thrive in this State. In company with our friend Eyster we visited to-day a coal bank that has been opened about two miles from the village of Alliance. It may seem strange that Pittsburghers would walk two miles through the mud to see a coal mine. But we had to wait three hours for the cars, and so undertook to see how an Ohio coal hank would compare with our unrivalled Pittsburgh coal. This stratum of coal is only two feet and four Inches in thickness, and the diggers have to work on their hands and knecs. They can only

THE COAL TRADE-THE RIVER. The water rose to six feet on Monday, which was sufficient, if continued, to bring out the largest class of steamboats, and make business much more active on our wharves. But it is sinco falling. The coal boats have to wait yet, and we fear, for some time. Great distress is apprehended in 1064 1925 2059 1236 1361 1121 2345 658 2361 1758 1758 1758 1758 1758 Louisville for want of fuel. A gentleman, just from that city, informed us, on Saturday, that in one week's time from that date, all the coal in in one week's time from the Some manuface Clark turing establishments in that city had stopped, and sold out their stock of coal on hand, for from 35 to 40 cents per bushel. It was difficult to obtain any even at that price. Should cold weather set in there before the Pittsburgh coal could Dea get there, great suffering must be endured by krie

 At the price which coal now bears in Cincinnati, it would pay handsomely to send it by the railroads now in operation between Pittsburgh and Cincinnati. But it will hardly be attempted this year now, from want of preparations, and, 1326 1948 1705 820 2124 2169 487 with the hope of sufficient water soon in the river. Coal carried by railroads would be liable to none of the losses which now hear so heavily, and often ruinously, on those engaged in the trade. It would keep prices uniform throughout the year, by affording a constant supply; and it would save to the dealers the cost of the boats, which is a loss as at present managed. We believe that, could a full computation of the losses by sinking boats loaded with coal, and of the cost of all the boats, of the loss of interest on capital while waiting for water to run, and the expense of keeping the boats clear of water from lenknge; all these items, we believe, would amount to a sum equal to the extra cost of carrying coal by railroad, when the road by the ittaway shortest route is completed through. Then the expense of a large number of hands on each is of a very poor quality, and would hardly be is of a very poor quality, and would hardly be oonsidered worth mining in the vicinity of Pitts-burgh. But fuel bears a high price in this ro-gion since the railroads have been opened. Our Central Road company will have to be the coal monthst monthst and the besupplied, and second

His dent, is borne in and placed on the table. His face is damp and pale; he casts an anxious, eager look around; then with a shudder he closes his eyes, and lies down on his back. The bhoroform apparatus is now applied to his mouth, and a dead silence marks the general ex-pectancy. The man's face flushes—he struggles, noutin, and a dead offender makes the generative. "Hai ha! has Capital!" he shouts, evidently in imagination with bis boon companions, "joily good song, and with bears a look of drunken joility good song, and with bis boon companions, "joily good song, and
