This weather for a week past has been quite cool, and, to it, very unpleasant. Besides being cool, and impleasant in that way, it is exceedingly changeable. On Wednesday, the 18th, the thermometer stood, between 80 and 90 in the shade most of the day. Thu, next day, overcosts and fires were necessary to comfort; and, an Friday morning there was quite a hard forst in this vicinity, though nothing was suriously injured thereby. As a consequence of these sudden changes, many people are efficient with bad coids and coughs. We observed a lady at Church the other evening so much annoyed with a hard cough, that we really fall elarmed for her safety so much so, that it was with some affort we could refrain from "talkim" out in meeting," and recommending her forthwith to procure a bottle of Keyser's Pettoral Byrup, to give her immediate relief—to be had at John McClelland's store.
