Had Mr. Riddle been re-nominated, we would have helped to defeat him with a hearty good will. But he certainly deserved something different from his own party. Usage, custom, fair-dealing, and everything else are thrown overboard in order to give the Gasette the pleasure of supporting a "free and accepted mason," of high rank in the order. And the Journal and Ameri can are compelled to raise his name at the head of their columns, much against their will. We like to see a little consistency in those who are. We hope the democrate will give us a good candidate next week, and then we will go in for city reform, and the rule of the people.

NEW YORK HERALD. The Herald openly announces itself as the leading organ of the disorganizers, and opponents of the administration in New York, and in the United States Senate. We hope the small faction, that has thus foolishly undertaken to embarrass the administration of Gen. Pierce, are proud of their leader. He is certainly unscrupulous enough to suit their purposes, and like many of themselves, Bennett too is maddened by disappointment, as an applicant for office. It must be confessed that Mr. Bennett has had wonderful success in forming a new party in so short a time, and gathering to it such strength as election of an opponent of the administration as printer to the Senate. Capt. Bennett has certainly got up a large company in a short time, but we are unable to see what good or harm this new party can do. Gen. The poultry, on being unpacked, was found in a slimy, tainted condition, on the verge of putrefaction. Before being exposed for sale it underwent a process of being "manufactured over"—a process wel known by the knowing ones. This is accomplished by soaking the poultry in alum water, which divests it of the slime and appearance of decay, and restores it to an apparently freal etate. After undergoing the process, this poul-try was offered for sale, and in three days the entire lot was disposed of from the sale of which the speculator realized a profit of over $800 Poultry that has undergone this process turn
