important changes in its political condition seem inevitable from present indications. Writers from Europe express the opinion that the reign of the Queen of Spain will not endure much longer. The Spanish people are evidently thoroughly disgusted with her dissolute charac ter, and the illiberal principles of her government. And the extertion and plunder of the people by officials, from the highest to the lowest grades, are fast destroying that reverence for royalty, and the reigning sovereign, which has long been a notable feature of Spanish character. For the first time perhaps in the history of the Spanish monarchy, not long since, an open public insult to the sovereign was given. The Queen, on her entrance to the royal theatre, was greeted by a numerous and respectable assemblaze with a storm of hisses. It is now said that a wide-saread plot exists among the Spanish people to dethrone the Queen, and change the dynasty; and it is further said that Louis Napoleon is secretly the main instigator of the movement.

tor of the movement.

Napoleon Bonaparte said that Russia, before many years would possess Constantinople; and that the Western Powers could not prevent it.

Perhaps the time has arrived for that prediction for the press the two concluding volumes of his works.

The New York Tribune and Congress. The above-named paper claims to have a wide influence throughout the non-slaveholding States of the Union. It sims to lead public sentiment, and give tone to the public opinion of the country. We hope at least that it will not be permitted to give tone to the press of the country, until it employs more civil and courteous language. We are compelled to say, that it uses more blackguard language, and more abusive epithets, indiscriminately and insolently applied, than any other paper we see.

In speaking of the bill introduced into the U. S. Senate, by Senator Douglass, to organize the territory of Nebraska, the Tribune draws largely on the billingsgate vocabulary, for terms to express his wrath against all Congressmen. The article is headed "THE RASCALS AT WASH-INGTON;" and starts off with the following win. sweet-tempered morsel of great Gotham's gen-

It then proceeds to denounce Congressmen in discriminately, as "the scamps, fools, culprits. traitors, deliberate violators of solemn compaots; vagabond repudiators of obligations the most sacred, who deserve to be roasted by the hottest fires of public indignation; and hung upon the gallows of public opproblum."

That is the language of the editor who sime to issue the model newspaper of the country. We say again, we hope the press of the country generally will never adopt a style so coarse when they learn from the Tribune that they have crime, treason, and "national scoundrelism." The editor of the Tribune then turns upon among them than is generally the case.
