The Knoxville (Tenn.) Register, of the 12th inst. contains an account of the extraordinary richness and abundance of minerals in the eastern part of that State. One copper mine is represented as capable of producing a half a million dollars worth of copper per month; and the veins of ore are believed to extend through several counties. But these copper veins, it is said, do not represent one-tenth of the mineral said, do not represent one-tenth of the mineral wealth of that region. Coal of excellent quality, and inexhaustible emount is discovered in different places; and iron ore abounds throughout the billy regions of that part of the State. East Tennessee, the writer supposes, will soon become one of the wealthiest portions of the several counties. But these copper veins, it is Union.
