DAILY MORNING POST. A friend informs us of an include connected with this same abolition cathedral, which strictly illustrates abolition consistency. Au individual will who had attended the church, but found the usl who had attended the understanding for his coun capacities of endurance; offered his pew for sale, but was for a long time unable to find a purchaser. He at length hit upon the curious a purchaser. He at length hit upon the curious expedient of a sham sale of the pew to a negro, enjoining upon him to occupy the pew with his wife and children until further orders. The pew was in a most conspicious and eligible situation, wife and children until further orders. The pew was in a most conspicious and eligible situation, and when, on the succeeding Sunday, the son of Africa and his wife took possession, they were the "observed of all observers."

It was not many minutes before the occupants of neighboring pews vacated their places, and the looks of indignation and disgust they cast upon the intruders, exhibited the true character of their abolition philanthropy. The next time the negro attended church, he found the pew door looked, but he lifted his affectionate yrow and sable chorubs over the enclosure, then followed himself, listening with great edification to the abolition theories from the pulpit, in such atrange contrast with the practice of the people. The third attempt of the negro, to attend service was successfully defeated by locking the church door upon him, and the upshot of the matter was that the pew owner's trick was entirely successful, and the abolitionist gave him three prices for his pew, in order to psevent the abolition-theory from being practically illustrated. This is but an example out of a thousand of the insincerity and inconsistency of abolitionism.—Ledger. of abolitionism .- Ledger. By the President of the United States.

It almost imposible to hear, unless in the very londest toric of voice. I rumained in that attuation until last sunsiser, a period of eighteen vears, when I heard of SOARPATS DMPOUND ACQUSTIC OIL. I immediately obtained a bottle, which I have used, and am happy to say it has noted like magic, and quite cured me.
