DAILY MORNING POST.
SATURDAY MORNING.....JULY 22.

HUMOROUS.

Too Bad.—"Mr. Slocum, I believe, sir."

"Yes," answered James Slocum.

"Some six months ago, Mr. Slocum, you gave me credit for a pair of boots—price five dollars. I have now called to pay the demand."

"Owe me five dollars? Why, really, I have no remembrance of the fact."

"Be that as it may, the debt is honest, and must be paid."

Here the middle aged gentleman in pepper-and-salt pantaloons took out a well filled pocket-book, and handed Slocum a twenty dollar bill. Slocum balanced the account, and handed to the middle aged gentleman, in the seasonable wearing apparel, fifteen dollars, being the "balance on the boots."

The middle aged gentleman left, while Slocum went off in a reverie.

"Well, the world is not so bad after all; here, at least, is one genuine honest man, I will never speak ill of the honest family again."

Scene Second—An Exchange Office.—Enter Slocum.

"Bullion, my boy; just discount that lot of money and give me current."

"Certainly, sir."

Bullion runs over the "pictured blotting-paper," and throws out a twenty dollar bill.

"What do you throw that out for?"

"Not worth a cent—one of the new counterfeits came out yesterday."

Slocum once more goes off in a reverie.

"Curse that scoundrel! That's the very bill that honest man paid me yesterday for them boots. What a rile world! I don't believe that there is one upright man on earth."

The last we saw of Slocum he was putting off for a "politics," to enter a complaint.

Moral—Don't allow yourself to be done by too much virtue.
