DISASTERS OF THE YEAR.

In no year probably for half a century have steamers were wrecked and lost during the year past than during the whole of the three preceling years; and nearly three times as many as it any former year.

A gentleman residing in New York, and engaged in commerce, gives to Rev. Henry W. Beecher some appalling statistics in regard to the shipwrecks of the last year. During that year, according to his statement, over four thouforeign trade, were lost: and the whole number reported as lost from all parts of the world exceeds ten thousand vessels of all classes. In that time over fifty vessels have departed from their ports, and "never been heard of more." Among this number were the City of Glasgow worth, with its cargo, a million dollars : and the packet ships Constitution and Waterloo, valued at $200,000. Among the most valuable vessels wrecked and totally lost were the steamer Humbolt, in Halifax harbor, valued at $1,200,000; steamer Franklin, near Long Island, $1,500,000; steamer Arctic, with cargo, $2,000,000, and the steamer San Francisco, worth about three-quarters of a million dollars. During the last year the Marine Insurance Companies of New York city alone have paid for losses of vessels and cargoes over twelve million dollars. Some of these disasters at sea have been of the most appalling character, and attended by the most fearful loss of life. Over a down in sight of land with over three hundred lives were lost by the sinking of the Arc.ic. Three hundred went down in a Bremen ship. A regiment of soldiers went down in a British steam er. But it would be difficult to estimate the

But even greater disasters, so far as property is concerned, have occurred on land in the same twelve months. By fire and storms it is estimated that over eighteen million do'lars worth of property has been destroyed in this lieved to have injured the rice crop to the extent still greater amount of damage. Large fires have occurred in many cities and towns; and during the drought wast quantities of timber were deself probably reduced the value of the crops in this country $100,000,000. It has been estimated by many at a far higher amount.

Within the same year. Railroad disasters have been frequent, and many lives and much property destroyed: and many steamboats have been burned or wrecked upon our lakes and rivers. The ravages of disease have added another page to the mournful record of the year. The cholera has swept off its thousands.

The Russio-Turkish war in Europe and Asia has already cost probably not less than 80,000 lives; far more dying hy diseases induced by the exposures and hardships of the campaign than in battle; and in some of the battles thousands have been slain.

The Chinese civil war, though it may ultimate ly result in favor of freedom and christianity, has been disastrous to the industry and commerce of that empire for the last year; and

The year 1854, thus far, certainly presents a gloomy record; and will long be remembered as a year of great and almost countless disasters. Nor have its annals been relieved by the announcement of any great discoveries in science ; improvements in the arts; or changes in governments favorable to the masses of mankind. In Spain a partial revolution was checked and crushed before any signal advantages had been gained to the cause of freedom and humanity. In China the revolution is still in progress, and of doubtful issue. It may be years before its muccess is assured, and its fruits enjoyed.

The battles of the Danube, of the Crimea, and of the Baltic, though they may have formed a brase band, numbering twenty-two checked the ambition of the aggressor and performers. Several of them were formerly the despot, yet their result in favor of the members of Frank Johnston's famous Philadelallies give no promise of the restoration of phia band.

PROBIBITION.—The Lancaster Express, of the 21st inst., contends that the prohibitory law is carried in fact, because the districts that have cleated a majority of the members of the Legislature, voted for prohibition. Thus Allegheny county gave 6000 in favor of prohibition; our five members, therefore, according to the Express are bound to vote for the law next winter; and the fifteen members from Philadelphia are in the same position.

There is food enough for all, not withstanding the drought, and prices of food are already reduced. Let other nations waste their already reduced already reduce have been not only exaggerated but unfounded acquired such weight and consistency as to obain the belief of the large majority of civilized curope, including not only journalists and their eaders, but men experienced in the movements of armies and statesmen at the head of wary and incredulous Governments. Probably the intense anxiety of the world to witness, and if possible to accelerate, the discomfiture of the power of Russia, caused this intelligence to be more generally received than it deserved to be; but it was There are formalists and dogmatists in all professions, who deny the truth of every thing they don't find set down in certain books which they have been taught to regard as the undoubtedly supported by corroborations so fre quent, and apparently so consistent, that it found almost universal acceptance. Our busi ness is, however, to dismiss from our minds the summun bonum of the principles and practice of their cal and to form a more correct estimate of our po experiment, nor discredit their results. Medical martinets might possibly be found who would deny that MORSE'S INVIGORATING ELIXIB OR CORDIAL is the safest and sition from the official accounts which arrived vesterday, and have now been published. These for, although Sebastopol has not been taken hy matic brilliancy, the facts which are positively known to have occurred down to the events of the 28th of September, are all favorable to the allied armies, and show the steady progress of their operations.

edcliffe, on the 30th, strangely omits all men tion of the events which must have occurred between the 20th and 28th. The result of these operations is, therefore, alone clearly known to us—namely, that on the morning of the latter day the allied armies established their base of operations at Balaklava, and were preparing to march without delay against Sebastopol. Ves-sels of war, under the command of Admiral Ly-ons, were in that port, and the landing of the siege train of the armies was going on. This fact at once enables us to arrive at several inferences, which materially alter the view hitherto taken of the operations. Balaklava is harbor on the south coast of the Crimea, situa and cleven miles to the east of Cape Chersonese It is still, as it was described by Strabo, a por-tus angusto introitu, the mouth being only thirty yards in width, but it will contain twelve sail of the line. The site is one of the most beautiful in the East, and it derives its name from the Belle Chiave" of the Genoese, who founded the ittle town at the bottom of the haven, and built he fort on the adjoining cliff. The port is ient to float the largest ships in perfect security : it is completely protected from perfect security; it to completely protected from every wind, and may be regarded as a dock for all the purposes of disembarkation. The occu-pation of this point is, therefore, an occurrence of the utmost advantage, for it enables us to place part of the fleet and transports in complete shelter, to land stores and supplies, to maintain Varna, and all this within seven miles of the place we are about to attack. The importance of the possession of such a port as Balakiava had not escaped the attention of those officers who had first reconneited the coast of the Crimes; but the heights which sur-round and protect it were then strongly occupied by the Russian forces, and it was foreseen that my attempt to land there in presence of the eneure port, which is at once accessible by sea and denfensible by land.

The fact that the allied armies had reached Balaklava from the land side on or before the morning of the 28th of September, proves to denonstration that in the interval between the bat le of the Alma and their arrival on the southern oast they had forced all the external lines of defence round Sebastopol, and had driven back the Russians successively from the Alma, the Katcha, the Belbek, and the Tchernaia, which feeds the harbor of Sebastopol, and, further, that they had crossed and occupied the heights separating these vallies from the southern coast. The form of the eastern coast of the Crimea is not unlike that of the county of Pembroke, and our readers may form a tolerably correct idea of operations, and is worthy of observation that his army, which consisted of 50,000 men on the Alma, is now said to be reduced to 20,000. Indeed, so severely is the want of men felt by the Russian generals, that they are said to have burned and abandoned Anapa, which is the key of the Circassian coast, in order to march the garrison of that place into the Crimea; but this part of Lord Stratford's despatch appears to be at least questionable.

Thus far, then, we arrived at a clear, and, we elieve, correct conception of these operations own to the 28th, which must have been triumhantly successful to enable the allied armies in one week to defeat the enemy in a series of ac-tions, and to drive him from several concentric positions of great natural strength, cutting off Prince Menschikoff and his army altogether from the fortress. It now remains to consider the nature of the movements which would neces-sarily follow, inasmuoh as we are told that "the armies were preparing to march without delay

It was already known to us upon Sebastopol." It was alread; that the since increase and then marched to the coast near Tenby. These vallies or ravines in the Crimes are well wooded, abounding in fruit and water, peopled with flourishing villages, and easily capable of defence. The post road from Sebastopol to Bakshisers! passes along the val-ley of the Belbek, and must have formed the principal line of communication between the fortress and the interior. Since, however, we know that the allied armies have reached Balaklava, it is certain that all these lines have been passed, and that these communications are intercepted. There is reason to believe, from a despatch result of the passes of the communications are intercepted. There is reason to believe, from a despatch result of the passes of the communications are intercepted. There is reason to believe, from a despatch result of the passes of th ceived from Odessa, and dated the 29th Septem ber, that several successive actions have taken place, especially on the 25th and 27th, and these dates probably correspond to the days on which the allies forced the lines of the Belbek and the First Lecture of the Season.

The movement of the armies has thus precisely realised the plan we had indicated some days before, when we said that they might advance across the whole promontory to the southern coast, and so entirely invest the fortress. Prince Mensohikoff has meanwhile been driven to the east of this line of paratters, and is worthy of observation that are not surpassed.

Doors open at 6½ o'clock; Lecture to commence at 7½ o'clock; Teckets of admission 25 cents; to be had at the Music and Book Stores, Library Rooms, Lecture Committee, and at the door.

which can oppose a certain resistance to an ar these circumstances, the proverbial military ex-pression, that "a place invested is a place taken," may probably be applied with great jus-tice. Sebastopol must now be effectually invest-ed by land and sea, and much more effectually than if the attack had been begun on the northern side of the harbor, leaving the south coast open for reinforcements or for retreat. The plan of the campaign, as we now more closely under-stand is, indicates the hand of a master; and though the public have been disappointed in that sudden and unlooked for triumph which they had been led to battle for, they will find that the end will be accomplished with equal certainty by the more patient operations of regular warfare.
