By the merry singing.
Of the birds smong the trees,
And the flowers that lake were flinging.
Their coars on the breeze.
And the flowers the tree flinging of the mountain side,
and the mountain side,
And the shocks their young ones leading where the rivulots do glide. Now, we cally hear the rustle
Of the dry leaves as we treat,
Or the timid squirrel startle
From the branches overhead,
Or the sportement's gun resounding
Among the naked hills,
Or his greyhound's sect foot bounding
Across the rocks and rills.

We feel the sun of summor.
But its verture do not see,
While there comes a whispered murTour every bestess true.
Which checks the votes of gadness
That else might ring again,
And brings a drowy sadness
To taken on the brain.

Yes'tis the Indian summer,
For treacherous are its bosus;
And as fading as the glimmer
Of happiness in dreams,
The very mists of morning,
Though heralding fair days,
Are shadowy forms of warning,
Which vanish while we gazo.

Thus summer's ghost Keeps becker
Our willing feet to ream,
While we fouge the reckening.
Or winter days to come;
And yet so sailly pleasant
is all we feed or see.
That in the dreamy present
Forever would we be.
