

Monday Morning Post.

MONDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 27, 1900.

News of the Day. Mrs. Mary C. Taylor, charged with abducting Hoffman from St. Louis, has been acquitted. A dispatch from Washington says the Spanish Minister's recovery, who has been in ill health for some time, is now doubtful.

The New York Supreme Court has refused the motion to grant a new trial in the libel suit of Fry v. Bennett, of the New York Herald. The award of $100,000 damages in the lower court will soon have to be paid.

James Hall, the conductor of a freight train on the Pennsylvania Central Railroad, had one of his legs torn off by the train, as he was doing a stunt with the train. The performer died shortly after.

Among the marriages published in the North American on Thanksgiving day, was that of Charles Brockmeyer, of Philadelphia, to Harriet Mudge of Montgomery county. The ceremony was witnessed by the bride's relatives and friends.

The decision of the Court of Quarter Sessions on the motion to grant a new trial to Stephen S. Deale, convicted of a rape committed upon Miss Narcissa E. Mudge, while she was under the influence of ether for the performance of dental operations, was given by Judge Thompson on Friday morning.

The virtual man, who has been the terror of New York ladies for so long a time, has at length been arrested. His name is Theodore H. Gray, and he is a native of New York.

It appears to be a religious man, and his conduct is attributed to his zeal for the suppression of theatrical amusements. Another general convention of Railroad Presidents met in New York on the 23d. Their object was to discuss the various questions connected with the management of the different lines.

A reduction of speed is also contemplated. We are decidedly in favor of judicious appropriations by the general government for the improvement of such rivers as are useful for commerce, like the Ohio, the Mississippi and Missouri, the Red and Arkansas, and the Cumberland. They bear the burden of our inland commerce for thousands of miles towards the seaboard and the great lakes. Their navigation is a necessity for national prosperity.

MR. SOULE IN FRANCE.

The foreign news by the "Herauld" contains little that is of interest, and we will therefore only give an extract from the London Times, which is the only one that we have seen. It is in the opinion of Mr. Mason, chargé d'affaires in Paris, that the French government should demand his passport, unless the abolition of Mr. Soule's passport step the French territory was withdrawn.

Through this it is certain that the French Cabinet abandoned the position it had assumed, protesting that it did not respect the government of the United States was intended, and recognizing that no disrespect was intended to the American government, but that the presentation of Mr. Soule was purely a private ground.

Mr. Soule, who had been arrested at Southampton, as a guest of Mr. A. R. Crocker, the American consul there, prior to his departure by the San Jacinto, on learning the issue of the demand made upon the French government, determined to avail himself of his right, and indeed, that he might be expected from his rather impetuous character.

It is to be noted that Mr. Soule's belief that he had not been arrested or seen the members of the revolutionary party in France; that he was arrested by them because they happened to visit the house where he was staying, and that he did not converse with or see the members of the revolutionary party in London. All these assertions, I understand, have been given by Mr. Soule himself, and the other members of the American diplomatic corps in London, and to the Secretary of Legation, who was communicated by the United States Minister in Paris to proceed to London, to see Mr. Soule on that subject.

The French government, I have already mentioned, repeatedly declared that it had no objection to Mr. Soule's departure, and that it would not be a condition of his departure that he should not be arrested in France. It is to be noted that Mr. Soule's belief that he had not been arrested or seen the members of the revolutionary party in France; that he was arrested by them because they happened to visit the house where he was staying, and that he did not converse with or see the members of the revolutionary party in London.

THE OCEANIC AT FREDERICK.

Of all the horrors of the "Oceanic" is the most difficult of access. Once a year the ground surrounding the ship is thrown open to the public, when the ship is to be sold, and the ground is sold to the highest bidder. The ground is sold to the highest bidder, and the ship is sold to the highest bidder.
