THAT CITY POST. ST TO LETS FOR SALE AT THE OFFICE. THEATER. Our play-goers all appear to be delighted that Manager Foster has effected a reengagement with Miss Ince. During her previous short engagement, she left such a favora-ble impression, that they are all glad to hall her return again. She appeared last night, but to rather a poor house, which, however, can only be asserbed to the play she appeared in—the Stranger. Although the character or Mrs. Haller is one wherein an actress can exhibit her shillity to considerable advantage, the play is a ability to considerable advantage, the play is so contemptible that it rarely draws a good house We were sorry to see Miss Ince select it for her We were sorry to see Miss Ince select it for her opening night, and our anticipations that a poor audience would follow, were, unfortunately, more than realised. The lady rendered the character with great effect; in fact as completely did she identify herself with the part, that she drew tears of sympathy from all the ladies present, for her fictitious sorrows.

To night, Sheridan Knowles' beautiful play of Love will be performed, Miss Ince appearing as the Countess. This character is the one in which she first made her debut in Philadelphis: her she first made her debut in Philadelphis: her representation received the unanimous emonitums of the press of that city, and was concidered a triumph in every sense of the word. The English Iron Trade.

A circular dated Birmingham, January 11th, says: The ironmasters' meeting to day was fully attended. The hall and committee rooms were during the day crowded. Such houses as Barrows and Hall (the producers of what is called markst iron,) were understood to be firm, but, taken generally, the price of iron was reduced 460 per ton. Bars are therefore at about £9. The concluding meeting will be held at Dudley on Saturday; but there is no reliance to be pixed upon prices fixed at quarterly meetings; they are eventually settled by necessity. A considerable demand for manufactured fron exists, but the North American call, which need to be very considerable, is restricted and uncertain. So soon as the American trade is improved our exports red to be very considerable, is restricted and uncerta o soon as the American trade is improved our expe-cross the Atlantic may be expected to be better in p ortion.
