SATURDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 17, 1912.

ABNEY'S MARRIAGE—Have I mentioned the recent death of the wife of the late John Abney, the great surgeon, who was not a doctor, but a man of letters, and who was a member of the Academy of Natural Sciences? There is a story of the wife in which Abney got this woman to marry him. Once upon a time he went to church and met a girl into a pew where there were two ladies. He had no prayer book, and the young lady handed him one. They walked out of the pew together, and Abney offered to take them home in his carriage which was waiting. They had some chat in the course of which it came out that they were mother and daughter, not very well off, and widow and daughter of an officer in the army. Abney set them down at their humble dwelling. As he stood at their table, he handed his card to the daughter, and said, "Thank you, I am Mr. Abney, the surgeon. I have never married, for I never could find time to court. I should like to marry you. If you will have goodness to write me a few lines on Tuesday, saying whether you will have me, I shall call the next day and take you to church." Monday afternoon he walked to the office, and found a letter from the daughter of a very pretty woman. It was written on the Wednesday, and he drove home with her in his only motor car, which he had bought for her. "My dear," said he, after he had introduced her to some of his friends assembled to receive them, "that you have married, I am glad, for I have to give my lecture at Barnhills's Hospital, which I cannot do on any account." They were a very happy couple, and when Abney died, in 1881, his widow carried her property, real estate, and other things like one hundred thousand pounds—London Times.
