Taor, April 21, 1854.

I am much pleased with Mr. Henck's little manual, the "Bield Book of Railroad Engineers." With the presentation of some of the most practical and useful of recognized processes among railway ungineers, he has given others which, new at least in their present form, appear to possers a mint of higher value than that of mere novelty—that of being in general susceptible of available, not to say desirable, practical use. In conclusion, while I think the design of Mr. Henck's book is such as to daupt it excellently well to professional needs. I have pleasure in expressing my cordial satisfaction with its execution, alike with the perspiculty of arrangement effected by the author, and the excellent typographical taste displayed by his publishers.
