EXTRAORDINARY, IF TRUE. The New York Herald professes to have received reliable information from Washington, that the President has received an autograph letter from the Emperor of Russia, making the Chronicle? We are inclined to think the known to him important facts. The Herald says that this letter, after expressing the most cordial friendship for the United States on part of the Czar, announces the fact that the Czar has discovered, through his secret agents at the courts of Europe, that a league has been formed by the governments of England, France, Spain, and Austria, against the United States. The difficulties between our government and that of of Spain are to be fomented, and negotiations in relation to them protracted until the eastern war is ended, and then Spain is to get into a war with this country, and have England, France, Germany, and perhaps some other European States to back her, and thus open the desperate and final struggle between European absolutism and American democracy.

The Herald speaks positively in regard to the receipt of the letter, and that such are its contents; and it also asserts that immediately after its receipt the President sent for Senators Cass, Mason and Douglas, and Secretary Marcy, and the contents of the letter, and the proper measures to be taken in regard to it, freely discussed. The Herald's informant even undertakes to give the opinions of the different Sena tors on the subject. If that newspaper was always reliable, this intelligence would be deemed of great importance. But the proprietors of the Herald are fond of dealing in startling revelations, and so anxious to be shead of all its contemporaries, that it sometimes manufactures news, founded on probabilities, and thus gets up subjects for a good deal of fine writing. That the Emperor of Russia should, in the President of this republic, is by no means improbable. That he should desire to excite the jealousy of our government against his own formulable anamiss is quite possible and natural.

That Spain is encouraged by England and France in her insolence towards this country, there can be no doubt; and but for that, redress could be obtained for past wrongs, and some security given against their repetition. English and French vessels of war are to be found now in the ports of Cuba, prepared to defend the island against an expe-

Its virtues are cover mights and accounts that often they are sever in the professional states. is "DALLEYS MAGICAL PAIN EXTRACTOR." Its virtues are so rare, mighty and eccentric, that often they appear to work morp like miracles than by selence, so effective, electric, and astounding are its powers on the human body, that, though now it is daily tried by thousands of people,
