CARD.

A FEW days since, I published an advertisement of my A handro Pianos, in which an extract from a letter from Prof. II Robbock, of this city, addressed to Messrs. Baumgarten & Heins, of Hamburg, the manufacturers, was inserted. This morning I observed in several of the daily papers a "Notic," signed by Prof. R, in which he states that I was incorrectly stated and applied.

In reply—I presumed that if he had written the letter, he, of course, meant what was therein contained, and consequently required no authority from him to make the same public. As regard, the assertion as to its incorrect ness, I have the letter in my possession, and it speaks for itself, word for word as I have published. Messrs Baumgarten & Heins are not dependant upon Mr. Robbock for endorsement—their Planos were known, appreciated and previous the highest rommendations from the first artists long before Prof. R, saw fit to pass an optalon upon them. My resnon for publishing the strate was in the fact tash be was well known in the city, and not be suse his recommendation was necessary to establish the merit of the Planos. In conclusion, I may add that they stand on their own merit, and are endorsed by such men a List, Thalberg, and others, solely on account of their merit.

With Las Cases, at Literia, which, he said, were an absolute leprosy, a social caacer. My code, he said, had slugglarly diminished law suits, by placing numerous cases within the comprehension of every individue. But there remained much for the legislator to accomplish. Not that he could hope to prevent men from quarrelling; this they have done in all sges; that he might have prevented a third party in society from living upon the quarrels of the other two, and even stirring up disputes to protect their own interests. She stated that the members of the to have opened the door and admit the Commit-tee; but the door was opened before she had time to do so, and there were so many gentletime to do so, and there were so many gentle-about the door that she could not enter herself. While in the chapel, the gentlemen were en-gaged in loud conversation, which she consider-ed very improper. The lady at her devotions in tered, and attempted to leave by a door which she found looked. One of the gentlemen asked her several questions which she declined answering in the chapel. The gentleman followed her without the chapel when the conversation was resumed.

Samuel May, Esq., then interrogated the witness as to the scene in the chapel; but her answers did not vary materially from her previous testimony. Several other gentlemen then put questions to the witness, when the meeting was adjourned to meet to morrow morning at 92 o'clock, to hear the testimony from the other ladies of the institution. The Lady Superior was accompanied to day by a sister of Bishop Fitz-patrick and by Rev. Mr. O'Brien.

Talent versus Aristocracy. The sudden loss of prestige by the aristocracy of England seems to be the fulfillment of Carlyle's strange prophecies in his Latter Day s a passage from one of them which the "governing class" there could perhaps have studied to some profit when written, but they are "moribund" now, and no medicine can save

"Who are available to your officers in Downing street? All the gifted souls, of every rank, who are born to you in this generation. These are appointed by the true eternal 'Divine Right' fornia bullion, or any other crop you grow."

LAW SUITS.—Napoleon, in a conversation with Las Cases, at St. Helena, dwelt upon the evils arising from law suits, which, he said,
