TRADE.

Last year at this time the accounts from Europe represented the growing crops in nearly all the European countries as remarkably healthy and promising. But this year the re- giving in spring is a novelty. It is possibly to ports in regard to them are thus far less encoursgiog. In Great Britain and France there is every year a deficiency of food that has to be ubs and of southern Russia, from Egypt and the total receipts for the month being $355,from Poland and the Baltic Provinces of Russia, 349 29. Some years, as in 1847 and 1853 and 1854, the

But while the allies are thus destroy- | car in safety. ing the commerce of their enemy in that sea they are cutting off one source of their own supplies of food. But there will this year be no great quantities of provisions to spare in that quarter. The Russian garrisons in all the fortresses along the Baltic coast have been trebled in numbers; and an army of some two hundred thousand men is assembled near St. Petersburg. If we enumerate the laborers upon the fortifications, and all others employed in the military operations and works of defence there will be found along that coast a million men who are to he fed out of that surplus food that is usually sold to foreign countries. From Poland and the Baltic provinces of Russia then the western na-

At the same time the vast preparations for war have withdrawn from the productive innearly a million soldiers, and in their fleets and account. in all the other ways in which services are re- Gov. Gardner's Reasons for Refusing to quired in carrying on a war at such a distance from home, a million more men will be employed. The Austrian army now numbers half a million; and the Prussian army nearly four hundred thousand. All the States of Europe, in fact, are increasing their military strength, and are thus increasing their demand

Now, in this state of affairs in Europe the fearmers of the United States can find much to encourage them, and to stimulate them to the production of as much food as possible this year; and, it may be, for years to come.
