From the Crayon, July 4 .! Free - Abraham Hartzell, A few days since a commission for a picture was received by Mr. A. R. Durand, for which tion. he is to receive the sum of one hundred and Pennsylvania Insurance Company est of a fund bequesthed for the purpose of procuring annually "a specimen of the fine arts by a native born artist" This bequest was made by a wealthy resident of Brooklyn, about three years ago, with other charitable and enlightened bequests, and the above, we believe, is intended for the first of the series. The late Mr. Augustus Oraham is the person we allude James S. Negiry. to, and we cheerfully tell in a fon words what we know of bim, and the bequest referred to. Mr Graham was a Scottchman. He came to OFFICERS: this country many years ago, and settled in Brooklyn, and there made a fortune. He was a man of singular benevolence, specially intersted in education, and bestowed his money freely upon various benevolent institutions both in New York and in Brooklyn. He with others became interested in the Apprentices' Library. which at the time he did so had failed, and many of its books were scattered and lost. If collected them, purchased a building for $25. 000, changed the name of the library to the Brooklyn Institute, presented the building to it, and established it upon a firm basis.
