New York press were the only ones who speak out against the outrage; but unfortunately for the validness of such an argument, the majority of Philadelphia newspapers take the same view, as well as all others in different parts of the country. The Ledger, to confirm the suspicion that it is in the pay of the Camden and Amboy monopoly, has another article, entitled: "Double tracks not a guarantee against accident," which shows that a number of accidents have occurred

An express train for Edinburg, drawn by large engine used for the royal train, ran off the rails when about three miles from Berwick, and the carriages were all precipitated down an embankment. Several of the passengers were injured, among then an American lady. In the second accident, the engin of a local train on the Eastern Counties railroad gave way, when another train approaching in the same direction ran into it. Sixteen persons were more or less injured from contusions. In the third accident, a heavy excursion train, conveying about 1000 persons, on its return journey trom Blackpoot to Sowery bridge, Yorkshire, was overtaken and run into by a goods train. None of the car riages were broken, but several passengers were
