THE COUSTY FAIR .- The exhibition of the County Agricultural Society was opened yesterday to exhibitors and members of the Society. The Fair is located on the same grounds used for the former exhibitions, a lease of which the Society possess for five years. In addition to the the buildings within the enclosure last year, several new sheds and houses have been erected, which give more room for exhibitors, and improve the general appearance of the grounds. But few persons were on the ground, yesterday, as the day was disagreeable and denoted rain. Such exhibitors as had their articles on the ground wer e busily engaged arranging them, out the collection was neither varied or large We were informed that a large number of e trics have been made on the books, and if so, doubtless many a iditional articles will be place

Dickinson, of Amherst, Mass., and exhibited by J. Weibrecht, of Birmingham. Its simplicity and cheapness will give it a preference over any machine for a similar purpose which has come under our notice, and the thoroughness with which it takes the corn off the cob would make it an essential to every farmer who raises Indian maize, even though it cost troble the sum. This corn sheller will be in operation all to-day, and we advise all, our farmer friends especially, to take a look at it. take a look at it.
