

Mysterious!—A very hungry gentleman lately seated himself at a dinner table and walked into a leg of mutton; it has not been heard of since.

Potent Needle Machine.—A machine has been invented and put in operation in Sheffield, (England) which draws out the wire, straightens it, cuts it into the exact length, points it, grooves it, drills and countersinks the eye, files off the rough edges, and finally drops the perfect needle into a box at the rate of forty per minute. Fifty machines may be attended by five persons, who will thus produce one million two hundred thousand per day.

A MEMBER OF CONGRESS DEAD.—The Columbus (O.) Statesman of the 6th, says—"We learn that Wm. H. Creighton, the whig member elect to the House of Representatives from the counties of Fayette and Madison, died at his residence in Washington, a few days since. His death was caused by bleeding of the lungs, a complaint he had long been subject to. He was highly esteemed by his neighbors.

Since the above was in type we see that the Hon. gentleman has denied he is dead, and being a good Whig, we will take his own word for it. The Ohio folks however, must cry "wool!" too often to deceive us, or when he does come in earnest, we shan't believe them.

Rather Ancient.—In the village of Cahokia, Illinois, is a church built by the first French settlers, in 1683, having "battled with the storms of more than a century." The bell that hangs in the church, was brought from France more than a century and a half ago.

Pennsylvania.—Granville Penn., a great nephew of the founder of our Commonwealth, residing at Stone Park, in the County of Buckingham, England, has had permission granted him of the Queen, to the use of the following armorial bearings:—

A fess charged with three plates, and on a canton of honorable augmentation, a crown, representing the Royal Crown of King Charles the Second, and for a crest a demigriph gorged with a collar, and charged with three plates, and above an escroll, there on the word 'Pennsylvania.'

A Peculiar state of Mind.—A prisoner who had just received sentence for two years, before the Boston Municipal Court, thus addressed the judge:—"I think my sentence is peculiarly and unjustly severe, considering the crime of which I am guilty. I have taken fifteen dollars worth of another man's property, when I was in a very peculiar state of mind. I do not rise however, to ask you to change my sentence, but only to express a hope that your official and moral career may terminate before my sentence expires; and when your career does terminate, I hope you will go where Judge Jeffrey went before you, and he didn't go to Heaven by a d—d night."

TAMPERING WITH JEALOUSY.—Among the foreign papers tells a horrible story of jealousy and murder which illustrates the character and quality of the creations of the French penny-liners. It is not probable that there is a word of truth in it.—N. Y. Sun.

Considerable sensation has been excited in Madrid by a murder committed by M. Rodriguez, the Deputy, on the person of his wife, a young and beautiful woman, to whom he was married about two years ago at Seville. M. Rodriguez, who is extremely jealous, accompanied his lady to a masked ball given by M. Vinaceros. His wife's brother was among the guests incognito, and wishing to cure his brother-in-law of his failing, imprudently accosted him with an inquiry if he was still as jealous as ever. I am at all events not of you, beau masque, was the reply.

There you are, a very handsome wife, with whose charms I am deeply smitten." So much the worse for you, returned M. Rodriguez. "By no means," said the brother, "for your wife returns my affections, and as a proof of it, I can inform you that she has a violet mark under her right bosom." At these words, M. Rodriguez seized the stranger with the utmost violence by the hand, exclaiming, "my life or mine! Meet in a quarter of an hour at your house. He then tore his wife from the quadrille which she was dancing, and without reaching his hotel, he ascended the staircase with his wife still on his arm, dragged her into his cabinet without procuring a light, opened his secretary, and taking from it a loaded pistol, placed the muzzle close to his wife's bosom and shot her through the heart. At the report, a number of domestics, accompanied by the involuntary lady's brother, who had heard the revolutionary cause of this frightful catastrophe, rushed into the room with their pistols. On witnessing the dreadful scene which met his eyes, the brother tore off his mask and proclaimed his near relationship to the victim. The disclosure deprived the wretched husband of his senses, and he was hurried from the spot in a state of raving madness, which the Madrid correspondent whom we quote, fears, but we might perhaps more charitably hope, he will not survive."

SAGACITY OF ANIMALS.—The instinct of animals as it is called, in some cases approaches so closely to reason, that it is exceedingly difficult to draw the line between them.—Many animals, particularly the dog, the horse, and the elephant, can draw an inference from established premises, with the acuteness of a practiced logician. Even the domestic cat, some times seems to try to prove that she is a rational creature. We have somewhere seen it stated that a favorite cat was usually to ring the bell affixed to the stairway as a signal for dinner. At these times the cat pattered, and indulged, always received her share of good things, and hastened to the hall as she heard the untimely clatter. One day she was suddenly shut up in a chamber during dinner, and on being released from her confinement an hour or two after, she hastened to the dining hall, but alas for poor Grimalkin the table was cleared away. Shortly after the bell was heard to ring loudly & repeatedly. The cat notices of the house, hastened to see what was the matter, and were much surprised to find the poor, hungry puss, clinging to the bell rope, and ringing away with all her might! Who will say that this cat could not draw an inference? That the noise of the table was customary for those French domestics, who were tending in coming to dinner to have some of the pantry ring a little bell, which was placed in a convenient spot, on hearing which the cook would pass out the portion of food contained in a little box, which turned horizontally by means of machinery. The dog watched all these operations, and was often treated with a bone, from one of the Frisks. But one day being particularly hungry, and not receiving his customary share of food, he seized the bell in his mouth and gave it a good shake! A portion of good wholesome food was instantly passed out from the pantry, which the sagacious quadruped seized and devoured with good gusto. Delighted with his success, he repeated the experiment daily, until the cook found that some one was playing him a trick, that he furnished more rations than there were mouths. He complained to the Superior; a watch was privately set to detect the gormandizing culprit, and poor fido was caught in the act. Nevertheless the brotherhood were so pleased with the stratagem for satisfying the demands of hunger, that the cook was ordered to allow him his portion regularly, with the remainder of the fraternity, whenever he made the signal!—Boston Merc. Jour.

FOR THE MINERS' JOURNAL. TO— Oh! yes, 'tis sweet at hour of eve, When autumn winds are stilled, To bend our thoughts on themes which breathe Of power and works, with glory filled. "The silver moon"—the silver moon! ah, yes, It speaks of purity and love, Breeding high hopes, nor is it less An emblem of the brooding dove. "The gl'ring stars"—the gl'ring stars they tell Of him whose wondrous might The sky in radiant deck'd, and dell, And hill—scenes fraught with beauty bright. "My home! my home!" the spirit's rest, When sneers the world, or friends deride— A shrine where meet the lov'd and best— Our ills to sooth, by fraud decid'd. To These! to These! we upward turn, To stay of the lone and trusting heart; Thine Altar's sheen! oh! may it burn Till light dispels the censor's art. ELLEN.
