Listen to the rest, nesumed he, addressing the empress, we are coming to the denouement, which is well worthy of the rest of the story. The day following, as Currova was entering the Hittle garden of his granfather, he saw Bettina Biasi approaching him. Five vears had diminished nothing of her beauty, except that she was pale, and resembled one of hi

o.vn white marble statues. 4.0 Bettina! Bettina!' cried he, will you pardon Ame my ingratitude, and confer on me a happiness scarcely deserve. I had not yet seen you, when all the fervent and tender affections I once bore you re surned upon me with increased strength.' "Listen!" said Bettina, whose voice trembled with emotion, disten! Antonia Mio,-I suffered much when I learnt that you were to be married to Dommiica, but I felt even then, dearest friend, that the humble village girl of Pradazzi, the daughter of a peasant, the affianced of the apprentice, Antonio, could never be the wife of the celebrated Canova. Nevertholess, I refused several offers of marriage; and for five years I lived upon the recollection of him I loved. But when I heard that you were about to resturn to Possagno, when I concluded, from my own feelings that you would not be able to see me again without emotion-when I reflected that we might both be weak enough to renew intimacter rendered unreasonable by your present position, I was buxious to save us both, not only the possibility of yielding, but also the agitation and struggles we should have to undergo-I married.'

". Married! you married." "About eight days ago, to a deserving young man who has sought my hand for four years." Oh! that was a noble and worthy creature, cried

Marie Louise. Canova had left his shat and had gone to lean this head against the window to conceal his grief. A knock came to the door, and the Minister of Police, the Duc d'Otrante, put in his plain but expressive head.

Really, M. le Duc, you could not have arrived at a more opportune moment.

See the effect I have produced, thanks to the in-·Adiou, Canova,' continued he, gently patting the shoulder of the artist. "Employ yourself in making the bust of my wife, and when you have finished it, if you still persist in returning to Italy, I suppose we must let you go.

Good night? I have business with M. le Duc d'Otrante. Ah! it is a hard life that of emperor.' said he, it is not often, I have an evening to myself, may be placed in two streams of water, one of which and a pleasant chat with my wife and a friend, near is hot and the other cold !

We must not ornit to add, that this was the evening of the 11th October, 1810, and that the Emperor. Marie Louise and Canova were in the same room, and near the same tire place, where Napoleon signed his abdication on the 11th of April, 1814.

Pottsville Lyceum .- We are gratified to state ! that John Ludlow. D. D Provost of the University of Pennsylvania, will deliver a lecture before this association on Tuesday evening next. We have not m iy choose to select.

Examination of the Pottsville Institute.-We attended the public examination of the pupils under Mr. Pit nan's charge on Thursday and Friday of this week, and must express our high gratification at the progress of the different classes. . Without a solitaattention has been directed. We would particular designate the classes in Algebra and Geometry and the higher Arith netical studies, the pase and promptaess with which the introduces of Q sudcuties were unrayelled, swere as grantly mg to the spectators, as creditable to the care of the instructor. The minor classes appear well grounded in the different branches, and will no don's on a recurrence of anothor examination, come in for a full share of public commendation.

The Ridgingy Case. - In the case of the Comnonwealth vs. Jacob Ridgway and others, brought refore the Court of Common Pleas on a writ of habeas corpus, Judge Randell on Saturday gave the printon of the whole court, which was unanimous or discharging Mr. Ridgway.

This result has been precisely that, which was anscipated by all who were acquainted with the high ntegrity, and standing of this gentleman. That he should lend himself to any scheme of collusion for purposes of fraud, has never been supposed for a moment by his friends. The principal charge against him, was that he sustained the credit of Dr. Dyou's Bank, when he knew it was bankrupt. Now the simple fact that Dyott, has been found guilty of traudulent concealisent of property, tends to show that his Institution must have been solvent, up to the time he made a secret assignment of his property, and Mr. Ridgway was as likely to be deceived by the specious devices of the Jacksonian Banker as any one else. Had the Manual Labor Bank been a loosing concern, Dyott could not have made away furtively with funds, of which crime he has been convicted, and this is certainly strong evidence that Mr. R. was honest in his expressions of confidence in the standing of the Bank,

We should be pleased to publish the comions of the possibility. We are however firmly of opinion, that the "conspiracy," if any existed, was aimed at Mr Ridgway, and that the attempt, like all other wicked actions, will recoil terribly upon its projectors. taxes.

The Cherokees.-The deplorable effects of our national policy towards the Indian aborigmees are beginning to develope themselves. Some eight or nine years past, when Andrew Jackson violated the national faith, John Ridge and Elias Boudinot, two of the chief Cherokees were among the most eloquent in their denunciations. They had both been ducated in Connecticut, and married white wives. Ridge we remember to have heard in New York, dopict in all the glowing colors of an accomplished orator, the treachery of the Government, and lament the desecration of their ancient rights and priviledges. A short time subsequent to this, these opinions underwent a change; they advocated the western emigration, and the sale of their lands to the United States, was ultimately effected by the " Ridge Trea-A large majority of the Cherokees, with Ross, Bushhead and other Chiefs, were in favor of maintaining their native soil, and of dying on the spot.

The eloquence of Ridge finally prevailed, and the emigration was commenced. No sooner were they beyond the Mississippi, than the old fires of animosity were rekindled, Ross being unwilling to accede to the terms of the Treaty, and Ridge contending for its adoption. On the 30th June last, the Grand Council of the nation met for the purpose of holding a talk; at which a cesession was made by Ridge and his friends, in consequence of a rejection of a law they had proposed. Inflamed by this conduct, the followers of Ross, resolved on the destruction of all the opnosing chiefs, rendered sacred by the remembrance of their sires.

On the 22d inst. about forty of them came to the house of John Ridge, and just about day light entertional education, which doubtless would show the The following is the result of the vote, Tyrrel yet to ed the chamber of Mr. Ridge unperceived by any of the family, and bursted a cap at his head, which awoke him, who then saw and felt his impending fate no doubt, and called on his assailants for mercy. Finding the instrument of death which they had presented, failed in its fatal purpose, they took him out of his bed from beside his wife, carried him into the vard, and there butchered him in a most savage, brutal manner, by stabbing him in the body some twenty-seven times. They then threw him up in the air as far as they could, and when his body reached the ground, each one stamped upon the body asthey marched over it by single file, until the last man of them had performed his fiendish purpose. This tragedy was executed in the presence of his wife, children and servants. The shock to Mrs Ridge was more than she could bear, and was seized with spasms, which threaten her life.

The party after killing John Ridge, took up the of J. His intercourse with the intelligent and wealthy gave him the appearance of a wealthy southerner. He was kind and hospitable-and about sixty-five years of age.

Gen. Arbuckle has acted with promptness in the matter, and sent a body of dragoons to demand the murderers of the elder Ridge, who was killed within the limits of the state of Arkansas. In the mean time, the partizans of the late two rival chiefs have congregated in large numbers, and it is to be feared, that should they meet, one of the most bloody tragedies will be enacted, which Indian history has for instant.

The Brauharnois' Family .- The history of the Empress Mosephine and her descendants, is tinged with all the romance of a fictitious legend, and exemplifies in a striking manner the changes and chances of mortal affairs. After the family had been grafted money and postages in the British Queen are worth to the Bonaparte stock by marriage, it shared the fortunes and reverses of its greatest scion. Attended by his step-son, Eugene Beauliarnois, the mighty Napoleon, "poured to northern wars," the legions of France, invaded Russia, captured Moscow, and in the blaze of the Kremim, lighted a conflagration to affright allahe nations of Christendom. The present administration's share of credit for the prosperity of our business relations, is something on a par with the rather questionable practice of the ermont physician. His father was asked, on his eturn from visiting him, how he was getting on ! Oh very well, first rate, " was the reply, " he has already filled one grave yard full, another nearly so, and is doing a pretty fair chance business all about n other parts of the country."

FOR THE MINERS' JOURNAL

"Notice to the Public" which appeared in the advertising columns of your last Journal, in which it was stated that the Proprietors of the Mail and Express Lines of Stages, had dissolved all connection with the Dust Line. Will you inform me, if any dissolu-tion has ever been published, and whether the facts as stated in that "Notice." are true? The public have been so long subjected to the overbearing in insolence of the old proprietors, and such gross and indiscruninate abuse has been bestowed on the nunerous respectable citizens, who have patronized the Opposition Line, since its establishment that I to one shall be very cautious in patronizing any one who cannot wash his hands clean of all connection but their unfortunate former connection must ren der me guarded. A TRAVELLER.

We will answer our correspondent categorically To our knowledge, no dissolution has been publish ed, and in our opinion, the facts in the "Notice" are intentionally mis-stated. We seriously believe the whole to be a scheme to deceive the travelling community, and are firmly convinced that the three old lines are as much one as ever they were. We were told some months ago that the Dust Line was running on its own book, but now that is contradic ted by notices, that the connection was not dissolved until the 1st July. The whole is an evident russ. too palpable to deceive any one, much less a community, who have for years been subjected to all the evils of which our correspondent complains.

In conclusion, we advise all who have patronized the Opposition Line of Pott, Shaner, & Co. and found attention, ease and confort, where before they received nothing but insuft and disrespect-all who have been so grossly abused and stigmatized for exercising their right of option to journey as they choose-to continue their support to that line which has introduced a reform on the route, and which deserves so much at the hands of every one who tratels between our Borough and Philadelphia.
