TWENTY SIXTH CONGRESS. Monday, December 16, 1839. HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES. The elect members of the House of Representatives were called to order at noon, by heir Chairman, the honorable J. Q. Adams.

The Journal of Saturday having been read,

The House then proceeded to the unfinished business of Saturday, being the election of Speaker. Mr. Dromgoole rose and said that, before the ballot proceeded, he would ask leave to make an an-unciation to the House.

Leave having been granted, Mr. Dromgoole continued: I have been requested by my friend and colleague, (Mr. J. W. Jones,) whose name has been before the House as a candidate for the office of Speaker, to request that his ame may be considered as withdraws from the

The chairman then announced to the House that ROBERT M. T. HUNTER, having a majority of the whole number of votes, was duly elected Speaker of the House of Representatives.

The Chairman then requested Mr. Banks and Mr.

andust the speaker to the chair, and Mr. Lewis Willia as to administer the oath of office to him.

Mr. Banks and Mr. Lawrence accordingly conducted the Speaker to the chair. And, when he had taken it, and the oath was adminustered to him. The House, on motion of Mr. Wise, adjourned. Tur-Day, Dec. 17, 1839.

Mr. Hunter, of Va., the Speaker elect, took the chair, and with enaffooted modesty, he said:

Gentleman of the House of Representatives:

The high and undeserved honor which you have conferred upon me has been so unexpected, that even now I can scarcely find terms in which to express my greatful sense of your kindness. I trust, howev er, to be able to offer, a better evidence of that senti-ment in the earnest efforts which I shall make to discharge my duties justly and imparitally. Called as I have been to this high station, not so much from any merits of my own, as from the independence of my position, I shall feel it as especially due from me to you to preside as the Speaker, not of a party, but of the House. Whilst I shall deem it my duty, on all proper occasions, to sestain the principles up-on which I stand pledged before the country, I shall hold myself bound, at the same time, to afford every facility within my power to the full and free expres sion of the wishes and sentiments of every section of this great Confederacy. You will doubtless deem it your duty, gentlemen, as the grand inquest of the nation, to investigate all matters of which the peo-ple ought to be informed; to retrench expenditures which are unnecessary or unconstitutional; maintain the just relations between all of the great interests of the country; and to preserve inviolate the Constitution which you will be sworn to support; whilst it will be mine to aid you in such la-bors with all the means within the power. And although deeply impressed with a painful sense of my inexperience, and of the difficulties of a new and untried station, I am yet elected by the hope that you will sustain me in-my efforts to preserve the order of Business and the decorum of debate. I am aware that party lervor is occasionally impatient of the regrains which it is the duty of the Chair to impose upon the asperity of debate, but at the same time I know that the just of all parties will anstain its members.

Permit me, its conclusion, gentlemen, to tender you the comage of my heartfult thanks for the honof which you have conferred upon me, and to ex-press the hope that your councils may be so guided by wisdom, as to redound to your own reputation, and the welfare of our common country.

The rest of the day was consumed in administer.

When New Jersey was called up, the Whig members demanded to be swern, which again revived all the old ground, and an adjournment was made pending the question.
