

CORSETS.
AN IMITATION OF CORSETS "POCKET."
 Let them talk of their pockets of Corsets! I say!
 I say! I say! I say! I say! I say! I say!
 For with Corsets so light, so gentle and so clever,
 A fig for the lungs, and consumption forever.
 An old maid of honor, in time of King Jack,
 By a fall from her palfrey dismounted her back.
 But an article with order of knighthood was deck'd, When with corsets so snug, so concealing the defect, Each corset and dame, and each crook'd back said,
 With corsets delightful themselves soon stray'd!
 As they strutted the streets with their bodies so clad,
 The way, you'd swear, by their long had been grac'd.
 But now every one must in corsets be seen, From the stiff maid of forty, to the girl of fifteen;
 And to obtain their praise let each belle endeavor
 And this be the motto, Consumption forever!

Madman's Frolic—Michael Kelly, in his "Dramatic Recollections," relates, with great effect, a story that Mrs. Matlocks, the actress told him.
 She went to Bolton with some friends, and the keeper pointing to one cell which they had not seen, said, "Here's one in here who is perfectly quiet so long as you don't contradict him. Mind, I say, if you don't contradict him." Accordingly they entered the cell, and saw a pale-faced melancholy looking man, with dark eyes, which had a penetrating brightness peculiar to madmen. He was in deep thought as they entered. The party having satisfied their curiosity, were about retiring, when, said Mrs. Mat-locks, he seized me by the wrist, shutting the door and placing his back against it, and held me in his firm grasp.
 "Well, young woman," said he, "you're in a comical situation here, what in with a madman?"
 "Sir," said I.
 "But you needn't be alarmed—I you are perfectly safe; they told you I was harmless, didn't they?
 You needn't answer. Are you fond of drawing?
 I know you are. What is this?" he concluded, holding up a bit of paper.
 "A ship," said I.
 "A ship, is it? You call my tree a ship do you?"
 "Yes, yes," said I, "it is a ship."
 "Oh, and pray what is this?"
 "Obeyed to say something, and not knowing what he thought it was, I answered a "A house," which it was.
 "A house, eh?" So saying, he pulled a clasp knife from his pocket, and opening it with his teeth, at the same time swinging me round the cell with his huge arm, said, "Now, is it a house or not?"
 "It is, it is."
 "Then I'll tell you what it is then—this is a dolphin."
 Then holding up his knife and gnashing his teeth,
 "Can you tell what this is, and no mistake?"
 "A knife," I answered.
 "Right for once," said he. "And can you tell me what I shall do with it?" I trembled, and shook my head in silent negative.
 "I'll tell you what I shall do with it; I shall scotch my charcoal."

A Blue Jacket's Opinion of Steamers—If you wish to put an old sailor's patience to a severe test, although it is not quite fair, talk to him about steamboats. It is his quintessence—the bodegody that he cannot help attacking, though he knows that he will suffer by it. He will tell you that this smoky, dirty craft, will ruin all good seamanship, and put all value and gallant bearing out of the world. Although he hates a steamer as a nuisance, and damns it as an impertinence, he has a secret and superstitious dread of it, and holds it to be the machinery of the devil. Thus runs his opinion:—"While things was as they was, d'ye see, we blue jackets had it all our own way, for d'ye see, if Johnny Crapan caught us, we wopped him, if he built more ships we took them! And so Belzebub grew spiteful, and see, whilst a British sailor gets his grog and his pipe, d'ye see, I shall never be able to shove my ear in his boat, and turn the world topsy turvy, d'ye see. So he plans with the toe-tollers and the scalds, and tries to disrate the grog tub, and promote the tea-kettle, d'ye see! But he could not do that job by halves, for his d'ye see, may there be an eternal frost in his fire pipe, and his coals run short, so, having partly failed, what does the devil do! Having got hold of the right hint, he turns the tea-kettle into a boiler—claps wheels to the ships' sides, as if they were no better than hackney coaches, or so many dung carts—and thus ruins, d'ye see, the out-and-out blue water English sailor for ever.
 I've done it, says he, d'ye see; and I never hear of those varmint steamers spluttering, fazing, hissing, but I think I hear the devil saying, 'Ah, Jack, you villain, I've done you at last!' d'ye see!"

For Children, this Balm of inestimable value. It affords certain relief in Rosel Complaints, Chloro- used in every family, as it is much better for the complaints incident to children than Paregoric, Godfrey's Cordiac, or the most common used, as hundreds in this City have testified.

It is now about five years since this medicine was extensively introduced in this City, and section of the country, since which time it has constantly increased in public favour, and it is at the present time the most popular Cough Medicine, in most of the Northern and Western States. More than Two Thousand Five Hundred Bot-

 For the satisfaction of those interested in Certificates, the following are added, although the common practice of collecting a long string of vouchers, has not been considered the best way to make its virtues known, yet for the sake of public opinion, for those who have used it, Physicians who prescribe it, ask the Agents who sell it to try it yourself, and then judge as ye find Read the following—I hereby certify that early in the spring of 1838, I contracted a severe Cold, which settled upon my lungs, and threatened a hasty Consumption.
 I used several prescriptions, but obtaining little or no relief; I was much alarmed. Hearing of the Balm of Hoarshound, I purchased a bottle, and immediately used it.
 I was much surprised to obtain relief at once—and by the use of that simple balm, which was perfectly restored, in this inclement season, I say go and do likewise.

 In gratitude to the licentiate of this man with a face who is the best of his kind for a few dollars will, (at the expense of truth and honesty) "crack up" an article and bring it out to sell; neither are we willing to remain silent, after having tested the utility of Hoarshound, and so sudden was the cure, that we forgot we ever had a Cold. Those who are afflicted may try it and see for themselves.
