Below we hall the appearance of a new poet, who in this one simple production proves his claim to that neglige humor which we must admira. There is pathos, quiet beauty and faithful versification about it, united with the nicest description of drollery. We trust that the next compiler of American poetry will publish in his work this little gom of native American gonius; for we feel fully confident that no one, who has a perticle of genuine poetry in his soul, can fail to peruse it without feelings of the utmost pleasure and delight.

Song by an Cyster, Love me while I live. Bat me when I die; What to me are pain or death; So that thou be nigh?

Once I opened rich, Now I'm growing poor; Oh what for thy dear sake Could I not endure? Even a sizzling roast,

Even a simmering stew, Or in batter, I'd been fried, Had it strengthen'd you. Kies me for my love. Come, and murmur in my shell

That thou lov'st again. SHACK. Ir Won'r Do .- It won't do to do a great m ny things in this world, for instance: It won't do to denounce false teeth in the premenes of dentists, nor in the presence of old maids who have not had a sound tooth in their head for a quarter of a century.

It won't do to talk about horn flints and wood en nutmegs when there are Connecticut Yankee It won't do to imagine a Legislature will compel the banks to resume, when three-fourths of the members are among those who will suffer the most, if forced to pay their debts instanter. It won't do to cat soup with a two pronged fork, or roast beef with a spoon, when anxious to dine in great haste? It won't do to pull a man's nose until you are folly satisfied he has not spunk enough to resent it by blowing your brains out. It won't do for a fellow who is so drunk, that he cannot see a hole through a ladder, to attempt to stand on the top of a lamp post or a fire-plug, and make a speech to the multitude.

It won't do to throw off fiannel shirts on a warm day in January, in full belief that there will be no more cold weather until another winter. It won't do for an editor to wait for a mail or Friday, until night, before he commences the preparation of copy. It won't do to go too near the hind legs of s jacknes who has been taught to kick at stran-

It won't do for a man to undertake to drown himself when he is in the last stage of hydropho-

It won't do for a lady to presume that every man is in love with her who treats her civilly. It won't do for a man to suppose that more than one half the young tadies who tolerate his attentions have any notion of marrying him. It won't do for a man to bump his head against a stone wall, unless he is completely convinced that his head is the hardest. Finally-it won't do to-draw the conclusion that our stock of "it won't do's" is exhausted, just because we happen to think it won't do to give our readers a larger dose at this time. - New Or-

"It was said of Attila, that on that spot where of grass ever grew egain.2 It may be said in a similar tone, that where Gouraud's Poudres Subtiles touch the skin, the hair vanishes from the place like magic."

"Oh, mother I a bee has stung me!" said a beautiful girl as she came running in from the garden. "Never mind, child," replied the mother, "he mistook thee for a flower."

"Papa, why is the serpent called the father of pies ?" a "Because he has a forked tongue, and he cells two different stories at the same time."

The patriotism of a nation consists in love and sttachment to her laws and institutions. When these dis-patriotism dies. No war is so much to be dreaded, as that which grows out of a distrust of one's own institutions.

An Arkansas paper wishes to know "what the poor Indians will do when the Buffalos disappear." We suppose they will have to bear it. Working men should be especially careful to treat each other with urbanity and politeness.-They will always fell better for it and command the respect of others. Politeness is what every man owes to every other, whom he acknowledges worthy of respect. THE WEST .- General Wilson, who has recently returned from Iowa to New Hampshire, says that mechanics are wanted more than farmers the West. the supply of agricultural products is THE PHILADELPHIA, READING, and greater than the demand. In a late address at Nashua, the General is reported by the Nashua, Telegraph to have said if he had the skill of hammering iron, he could make more money than any member of Congress with his eight dollars a day. The price of shoeing a pair of horses was five dolfore, and it took a load of corn, for those horses, to pay it. . This was the result of absence of competition in the mechanical trades, and a too great competition in agricultural products beyond what was required for the support of the population.-

Jihnson for re-election as President and Vice President. Judge A. G. Brown, Volney E. How-, and and Lewis Sanders, Jr. were the speakers. Much ill feeling pravails in the Legislature .-The Anti-Bond majority complain that the minority consider them scoundrels and cannot help showing it: Whereupon the said majority threaten a general figh tor fracas of some kind. They may be able to flog or even kill the Bond-payers, but they cannot make themselves honest men and deserving of respect without renouncing Repudiations .- N. Y. Tribune.

VESTILATION OF MINES. The mode of ven tilation introduced by Dr. Letoret at Mons, has been found to answer the expectations formed of it. The ventilator is capable of receiving 1000 revolutions a minute but with 200 the workmen can hardly stand the rapid current of air which it occasions in the shafts; 120 revolutions suffice and the force of two horses, at the most, is all that will be necessary to ventilate mines of the greatest depth.

579 00 have been paid—leaving the amount of bonds due by the county—$38,597. TThe Collectors above named, who stan charged in the Duplicate Books previous to the year 1840, are hereby required to call at the Commissioner's Office, and have their accounts closed previous to the first day of May next, as it is 297 74 believed that many of them have been settled, but still remain open on the books; they will therefore bring with them their receipts. Those who neglect this notice, will be proceeded against after the above date.

Feb. 12, 1842. HUMAN HAIR. CLEANLINESS OF THE HEAD AND HAIR STRANGE it is that persons who attend strictly to personal cleanliness, baths, &c. should neglect the flead—the flair the most essential the most exposed-and the most ocautiful when properly cared for, of all the gills of the Crestor. Perfectly free may it be kept of dandruffer 42 00 scurf with a certainty that the hair cannot fill out, by the use of the Balm of Columbia. Ladie.

I answer fearlessly. No, if you have once tried and experienced its purifying effects-its sweet perfume.

A hundred articles have been put forth on the credit of this-the only first-theonly really saluable article. mass of testimony from all classes to these facts. From the Boston Chronicle. June 10. We see by an advertisement in another column that Massre Comstock & Co., the Agents for Oldridge's Balm of Columbia, have deputies to sell that article in Boston and elsewhere.-We know a lady of this city whose hair was so near 1001 21 ly gone as to expose entirely her phrenological developements, which considering that they be tokened a most amiable disposition, was not is reality very unfortunate. Nevertheless the mourned the loss of locks that she had worn, and, after a year's fruitless resort to miscalled restorstives, purchased, some months ago, a bottle or two of Oldridge's Balm, and she has now ringlets in rich profusion, glossy, and of raven blackness 308 69 We are not puffing—none of the commodity has been sent to us, and, indeed, wede not want any for though we were obliged to wear a wig a year ago, we have now, through its virtue, hair & lough, and of a passable quality, of our own DARING FRAUD. The Balm of Columbia has been imitated by notorious counterfeiter. Let it never be purhased or used unless it have the signature COMSTOCK & CO. on a splendid wrapper. This is the only external test that will secure the public from deception. 45 31 Address COMSTOCK & CO.
