The latest intelligence from Louisiana states that the democratic whige have both houses of the Legislature. Mouton's majority is only about 500. He is a Creole, and was elected by creole whig votes. Several districts that gave him large majorities elected Whig delegates. It was almost rendered certain that two of the three delegates elected to Congres were whigs.

We invite the attention of our readers, and particularly the working men, to the following article. It is copied from a moderate loco foco paper. It contains truths that must come home to the mind of every man divested of party prejudices:

From the American Sentinel. A Laborer to his Brethren. Some time ago I undertook to give you some lines upon our condition, and the times that were approaching. After that I got a little work for a short spell, and I am now idle again, and, I am afraid, likely to continue so; and, therefore, I can write all I have to say to you. Well, we have got the Monater fairly down, broke up root and branch, and a good many other banks-we have got free trade, and we have come down to the real specie basis. So far, we have conquered -we have won the battle. Now then, let us see what is the cost of the victory. In the first place, all wages must come down, or, I may say, in truth, have come down-there is not a laboring man of my acquaintance, far or near, that has not been cut down already. But this is a small part of the matter-three-fourths of us can not get employment at any wages! And then our wives and daughters, who used to get work and belp us along-they are all out. My old woman used to work for one of the Bank Aristocrats, and did his linen up at seventy five cents a dozen. She would have some five or six dozen of them a week, all cash. Then my daughter Nancy worked for a large hatting establishment. also one of the Bank Whigs, and used to get her three dollars and a quarter a week-cash down from there, too, every Saturday night. We had a merry time of it-no trouble to pay our rent, but on Sunday we were all brave in our new clothes, and our Nancy was a fine lady! The young house carpenter, who was just out of his time, used to come and go with us to church. and he talked of building a nice house, and all things looked fine for us. Well, now the victory has taken all these things from us, I am afraid we have not only pulled down the old Bank, but we have fallen under it. It is a sad change that has come over us-and so sudden, too. Poor Nancy came home crying the other day, just as I got home. "What is the matter with you, Anna ?" said I. "Why, father," said she, "my employer has sent me home. He discharged all the girls in the shop to-day, and says until they get a new bank, he cannot go on." With that I heard another sigh in the room, and there stood the old woman, wiping her eyes. "Why, Betsey," cays I, " what's the use? I dare say the mill will go again." "No,no," says she: "the very best gentleman, the kindest hearted man I ever saw, that I worked for, has failed-he paid me his last to-day, and God knows where I shall now find another paymaster after him," Well, so it was. Neither of them reproached me, but I felt sort of convicted-they are both good souls, and too kind for that. Well, in walks my par ticular friend, neighbor Talkfast, the patriot. reckon he got scratched. He began in the old way, to talk about banks, and bank thieves, and Between Philadelphia, & Pottsville great rogues, and all that; but the old woman. took himshort. "You may talk of the rogues as much as you please," said she; " but tell me who took the bread out of my children's mouths? You can be a fine politician, and walk down to Chesnut street every day, and let your poor wife stand in the market, selling her little things, t keep a house over your head; but my husband n an industrious man, and wants to work and lay up a little when he gets old. Can your specie folks find him work?" Now this was, as an old sailor of my acquaintance used to say, giving him a shot between wind and water. Neighbor pulled his hat over his forehead, and walked spanish, I tell you; and I sat down as quiet as a limb, and began to think the thing over. Says I wold woman, get me out the pen, ink and paper, and I'll try and mend it." With that her face brightened up, and Nance came and gave me a kiss, and, said she, "father you used to write a guinst the 'Monster,' as you called the Bank, and Mr. Fur Dealer this day said, if the working men took the thing up, they would soon get a bank." So I thought if I told this just as it oclay up a little when he gets old. Can your spebank." So' I thought if I told this just as it oc-curred, some of von might have had the same Green Turile Soup, per bowl, 183 thing to happen, and perhaps your wives and daughters wanted you to do the same thing. Well, as I said, this has been a pretty dear victo y to us working folks; indeed, none but the office holders can get along. The sheriffs, constables, prothonoteriès, judges, and all those folks who get their salaries-they can say to us, "hurto boys, down with the Bank-let us have the real constitutional money-none of your shin plasters:" Just as I wrote this far, in comes another neighbor, a hard working, honest weaver. "Well, Jemmy," says I, "you see I am at work." " Yes," says he, "but I am afraid it is all work and no pay, for I cannot get a cent from my employer. My rent is due, and my wife and all the girls are out of work, too. What are you about !" says he. I told him I was calculating what the working men had gained by destroying the Bank! I will tell you, save he; we have gained great political reputation, and have lost every thing cles." Why, says I, that's like what old Falstaff said about honor. -- Will political repthe laborer, pay his rent, keep his clothes whole ? Not a particle of at. Well, said I, the power that pulled down can build up We had good times, we had plenty of gold and silver, we had u much work as we wanted, and we had a good Bank and a good Toriff; and I say to you, neighbor, the working men can bring back all these things if they will do as the sailors did with Jonah.' How was that !' said he. 'Why,' said I, when Jonah went on board the ship, and the wind blew furiously, and the waves threatened to wallow the vessel, they looked about for Jonah, and lo! he was asleep in his berth! So they said, this must be a wicked man, or how could he sleep when we are in such danger, and so they pitched him overboard and the vessel was saved

THE COAL TRADE.

There are but few men at work in this region a present, and the shipments are light again. This is also caused in a considerrole degree by the want of a demand for the article. At several of the collieries the men are ready to go to work—but they find it impossible to effect sales until the fate of the Tariff Bill now hefore Congress is ascertamed. The shipments from the Lehigh region up to the th inst. amounts to 89.514 tons We have no returns from the Lackawana region.

White Ash Coal is now offered on board the resel at Richmond, by the Rail Road, at $3,25 per ton, and Red Ash at 83,50.

The trade on the Schuylkill is dull, and quotations emain same as formerly. Freights coastwise hav lechned a little.

PROCLAMATION.

WHEREAS, a large number of persons have assembled at different places, armed with Clubs, and using divers threats and menaces—contrary to the laws of this commonwealth, and place ing thereby the lives and property of our citizens in jeopardy; Now be it known to all such Persons, that from and after the date of this Proclamation, all persons so offending, will be arrested agreeable to existing laws, for engaging in a RIOT; and all persons, aiding and abetting such rioters, by encourage sons aiding and abetting such rioters, by encouragement or assistance of any kind, will be arrested in like manner for the same offence.

The Constitution of Pennsylvania, gives to her citizens the right of assembling "in a peaceable, manner," for a redress of grievances— by Petition, redress or remonstrance." With the enjoyment of this right, the authorities will not interfered but that order may be preserved, I have deemed it my duty to give the following points of Low, for the information of all whom it may concern:

Act of 1705—Sec. 1. "If any persons to the number of three or more, shall meet together with clubs.

ber of three or more, shall meet together with clubs, or any other hurful weapons—and shall commit or design to commit violence or injury upon the persons or goods of any of the inhabitante, and shall be convicted thereof, such persons shall be reputed and punished as rioters—and such act of terror or violence, or design of violence, shall be deemed and ac counted a rioter."

" If any person seeing others actually engaged in a riot joins himself to them, he is as much a rioter as if he had assembled with them for the same pur-

"If any person encourages or promotes, or takes part in riots, whether by words, gestures or signs, or by wearing the badge or ensign of the rioters, he is himself to be considered as a rioter; for in this case all are principals."

"All persons are bound to submit themselves to the judgment of the law, and therefore if any one being in custody, frees himself from it by an artifice, he is guilty of a high misdemeanor, unnishable by
