

POTTSTVILLE.

VATURDAY MORNING, SEPT. 24, 1842.

Job Printing Office. The subscriber has procured the necessary type, galleys, &c. and has attached a complete Job Printing Office to his Establishment, where all kinds of Cards, Pamphlets, Handbills, Cheques, Bill Lading, &c. will be printed in the very lowest rates, and in the shortest notice. Being determined to accommodate the public at the very lowest rates, he respectfully solicits the patronage of the public.

Card Press. A Card Press has been put up at the establishment, which will enable us to execute Cards, of almost every description, at very low rates.

Important. Let every citizen bear in mind, that it is not only his duty, but his right, to purchase every thing he needs, from the mechanical industry of his own neighborhood, which will enable us to execute Cards, of almost every description, at very low rates.

U. B. Palmer, Esq. No. 104, South Third Street, Philadelphia, is authorized to act as Agent to receive subscriptions and advertisements for this paper.

Without again call upon our subscribers to attend to this neighborhood, we call and discharge their subscriptions. Our wants are such that a compliance with this request is rendered absolutely necessary.

PUBLIC MEETING.

HENRY CLAY.

A Protective Tariff. A National Currency, and a Distribution of the Lands of the Public.

The Democratic Republicans of Schuylkill County in favor of elevating that sterling champion, distinguished statesman, and great democrat of liberty, Henry Clay, to the Chief Magistracy of the country; and who are also in favor of establishing a National Currency of equal value throughout the country, convertible into gold or silver at will—in favor of distributing the proceeds of the sales of Public Lands among the States, and against a repeal of the Protective Tariff Bill passed at the last Session of Congress; are requested to attend a Mass Meeting at the TOWN HALL, in the Borough of Pottsville, on SATURDAY, OCTOBER 1st, 1842, at 3 o'clock, P. M.

Miners, Mechanics, Laboring Men, Merchants, Millwrights, one and all, rally to this occasion, and show their allegiance to Henry Clay and his followers.

How many Clay Men are there? The meeting will be addressed by several gentlemen from Philadelphia, Mr. Vangazer, a mechanic from Montgomery county, Geo. V. Farquhar and James H. Campbell, Esquires, and several others.

- Thomas C. Pollock, George H. Stichter, M. Bright, N. Wilson, John Porter, A. Meiss, George Heiler, La Mar Hay, John W. Heiler, Wm. H. H. Russell, M. Strouss, Isaac Taylor, Byron Phillips, A. Russell, John Waterhouse, Jr., Samuel Russell, James Focht, E. W. Egel, U. Shillington, B. T. Taylor, Geo. Peterson, William Welch, James Lafferty, Ansel Lewis, Joseph Bowen, Joseph Bier, Thos. Canby Hulme, Abraham N. Sipple, J. Jeff Coatworth, Isaac Allbach, Isaac Taylor, Jr., James Johnson, John Fretwell, Jonathan Shum, George Cotson, P. Phillips, Peter Hanley, Samuel Cliff, William Jones, Richard Smith, J. W. Murray, Samuel Hart, John Major, John E. Jones, D. E. Nies, Albert G. Brooks, Thomas Walsh, Richard Walsh, James McLachry, Patrick B. Blum, Henry Filer, Michael Sands, John Durkoon, Richard Lee, Aijah Merrill, Jacob Reed, Jacob Kline, James Boutan, William P. Smith, G. G. Palmer, Thomas Frasier, Edw. V. Farquhar, James H. Deady, E. Woodside, Daniel Latex, Jacob Hammer, Nathan Bates, Samuel B. Fisher, Michael Flynn, Patrick McCafferty, John Silver, Edward E. Bland, David Brown, William Brown, George Eaton, William Fox, Paul A. Substone, John Moore, Richard Marshall, John C. Neville, John Hand, J. Siligano, Jr., William Sheffler, Archer St. C. Nichols, John Pott, John Boyer, Andrew McFarland, E. V. Richards, James W. Eason, Lewis G. Langberg, Sord Patterson, Charles Lawton, Charles Pitzer.

Henry Clay. A call for the friends of Henry Clay will be seen in another part of our paper. It is signed by upwards of two hundred of our most respectable citizens, and most heartily do we hope that it will be warmly and universally responded to. The people of this country have been cursed with one of the most degraded spectacles human eyes ever rested upon, that of a traitorous Executive. Like the serpent in the fable, he has been warmed and cherished into a high political existence, when the first act of his newly acquired power is to sting the hand that assisted him. How the heart swells, and the thoughts brighten, when we turn from contemplating this humiliating picture, to gaze upon the man whom the cheerful call of millions of freemen will invite to fill his place. High in the hearts of his countrymen—a bright and glorious example of a true and unvarnished American Patriot, he stands emphatically above upon the page of his country's story. Unmolested, calm, unlooked upon by his detractors, who will and when he is always the same simple minded poor American. No man can couple the name of Clay with treachery—no man can say that ambition has ever influenced him against his country's interests—no man can bring one charge to prove that he ever deviated from pursuing, through the whole of his career, the happiness and welfare of the masses.

Henry Clay. The People know this, and they intend to act in their gratitude and confidence by placing in his hands the trust they had intended that the late Harrison should guard. We never saw an American who did not feel proud of calling himself a countryman of Clay's. Men of all parties and all principles unite in admiring him; and no man of any reputation dares to risk it by attempting to asperse the character of this great man.

Henry Clay. We hope our citizens will attend this meeting in person; and will be in regard to the situation of our country, and the duty of individuals, and a number of eloquent addresses will be delivered. Come one and all, and let the country know how many friends the Farmer of Ashland has in Schuylkill county.

Henry Clay. A picture—Brother and sister, eye, thro' they stand, the very embodiment of health, beauty, and affection. Hallowed, doubly holy, by the spark that kindles the light of sympathy between pure, bright, and unselfish, is the invisible chain that binds their young hearts together, for they have learned to breathe in quiet and peaceful, untroubled by the thousand cares that make life a dreary pilgrimage; that do the brow of the wanderer with lines and furrows, and silver his hair with care colored strands. See them as they sit around together, eye beaming, hearts brim-ful of their little thoughts, swelling with the inspiration of perfect and innocent contentment. Aye, about on, bright ones! though the heart leaps with joy, yet the reflection which follows is sad and sorrowful. Here sit these young ones, and away with them! they've got their fingers full of ink. Oh, let the heart be making away! take them away! take them away!

Henry Clay. The Sabbath. The most powerful reason, not only religious but political, demands a reverent observance of sanctity in keeping this day. It is one of the safest laws to preserve the morals of a people and to strengthen government, that the most profane legislators have ever devised. Independent of the high command, "Honor the Sabbath and keep it holy," we look upon those human laws which enforce it as wise and generally provisions. Who, that sees a people so generally observant of that high principle, can deny the wisdom and purity of their conduct? Even the most confirmed infidel acknowledge the admirable political effects which it results in; then why can confessed Christians be found heedlessly and recklessly breaking the rule, and setting forth an example which the vicious wish to readily follow.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Call for the friends of Henry Clay will be seen in another part of our paper. It is signed by upwards of two hundred of our most respectable citizens, and most heartily do we hope that it will be warmly and universally responded to. The people of this country have been cursed with one of the most degraded spectacles human eyes ever rested upon, that of a traitorous Executive. Like the serpent in the fable, he has been warmed and cherished into a high political existence, when the first act of his newly acquired power is to sting the hand that assisted him. How the heart swells, and the thoughts brighten, when we turn from contemplating this humiliating picture, to gaze upon the man whom the cheerful call of millions of freemen will invite to fill his place. High in the hearts of his countrymen—a bright and glorious example of a true and unvarnished American Patriot, he stands emphatically above upon the page of his country's story. Unmolested, calm, unlooked upon by his detractors, who will and when he is always the same simple minded poor American. No man can couple the name of Clay with treachery—no man can say that ambition has ever influenced him against his country's interests—no man can bring one charge to prove that he ever deviated from pursuing, through the whole of his career, the happiness and welfare of the masses.

Henry Clay. The People know this, and they intend to act in their gratitude and confidence by placing in his hands the trust they had intended that the late Harrison should guard. We never saw an American who did not feel proud of calling himself a countryman of Clay's. Men of all parties and all principles unite in admiring him; and no man of any reputation dares to risk it by attempting to asperse the character of this great man.

Henry Clay. We hope our citizens will attend this meeting in person; and will be in regard to the situation of our country, and the duty of individuals, and a number of eloquent addresses will be delivered. Come one and all, and let the country know how many friends the Farmer of Ashland has in Schuylkill county.

Henry Clay. A picture—Brother and sister, eye, thro' they stand, the very embodiment of health, beauty, and affection. Hallowed, doubly holy, by the spark that kindles the light of sympathy between pure, bright, and unselfish, is the invisible chain that binds their young hearts together, for they have learned to breathe in quiet and peaceful, untroubled by the thousand cares that make life a dreary pilgrimage; that do the brow of the wanderer with lines and furrows, and silver his hair with care colored strands. See them as they sit around together, eye beaming, hearts brim-ful of their little thoughts, swelling with the inspiration of perfect and innocent contentment. Aye, about on, bright ones! though the heart leaps with joy, yet the reflection which follows is sad and sorrowful. Here sit these young ones, and away with them! they've got their fingers full of ink. Oh, let the heart be making away! take them away! take them away!

Henry Clay. The Sabbath. The most powerful reason, not only religious but political, demands a reverent observance of sanctity in keeping this day. It is one of the safest laws to preserve the morals of a people and to strengthen government, that the most profane legislators have ever devised. Independent of the high command, "Honor the Sabbath and keep it holy," we look upon those human laws which enforce it as wise and generally provisions. Who, that sees a people so generally observant of that high principle, can deny the wisdom and purity of their conduct? Even the most confirmed infidel acknowledge the admirable political effects which it results in; then why can confessed Christians be found heedlessly and recklessly breaking the rule, and setting forth an example which the vicious wish to readily follow.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Call for the friends of Henry Clay will be seen in another part of our paper. It is signed by upwards of two hundred of our most respectable citizens, and most heartily do we hope that it will be warmly and universally responded to. The people of this country have been cursed with one of the most degraded spectacles human eyes ever rested upon, that of a traitorous Executive. Like the serpent in the fable, he has been warmed and cherished into a high political existence, when the first act of his newly acquired power is to sting the hand that assisted him. How the heart swells, and the thoughts brighten, when we turn from contemplating this humiliating picture, to gaze upon the man whom the cheerful call of millions of freemen will invite to fill his place. High in the hearts of his countrymen—a bright and glorious example of a true and unvarnished American Patriot, he stands emphatically above upon the page of his country's story. Unmolested, calm, unlooked upon by his detractors, who will and when he is always the same simple minded poor American. No man can couple the name of Clay with treachery—no man can say that ambition has ever influenced him against his country's interests—no man can bring one charge to prove that he ever deviated from pursuing, through the whole of his career, the happiness and welfare of the masses.

Henry Clay. The People know this, and they intend to act in their gratitude and confidence by placing in his hands the trust they had intended that the late Harrison should guard. We never saw an American who did not feel proud of calling himself a countryman of Clay's. Men of all parties and all principles unite in admiring him; and no man of any reputation dares to risk it by attempting to asperse the character of this great man.

Henry Clay. We hope our citizens will attend this meeting in person; and will be in regard to the situation of our country, and the duty of individuals, and a number of eloquent addresses will be delivered. Come one and all, and let the country know how many friends the Farmer of Ashland has in Schuylkill county.

Henry Clay. A picture—Brother and sister, eye, thro' they stand, the very embodiment of health, beauty, and affection. Hallowed, doubly holy, by the spark that kindles the light of sympathy between pure, bright, and unselfish, is the invisible chain that binds their young hearts together, for they have learned to breathe in quiet and peaceful, untroubled by the thousand cares that make life a dreary pilgrimage; that do the brow of the wanderer with lines and furrows, and silver his hair with care colored strands. See them as they sit around together, eye beaming, hearts brim-ful of their little thoughts, swelling with the inspiration of perfect and innocent contentment. Aye, about on, bright ones! though the heart leaps with joy, yet the reflection which follows is sad and sorrowful. Here sit these young ones, and away with them! they've got their fingers full of ink. Oh, let the heart be making away! take them away! take them away!

Henry Clay. The Sabbath. The most powerful reason, not only religious but political, demands a reverent observance of sanctity in keeping this day. It is one of the safest laws to preserve the morals of a people and to strengthen government, that the most profane legislators have ever devised. Independent of the high command, "Honor the Sabbath and keep it holy," we look upon those human laws which enforce it as wise and generally provisions. Who, that sees a people so generally observant of that high principle, can deny the wisdom and purity of their conduct? Even the most confirmed infidel acknowledge the admirable political effects which it results in; then why can confessed Christians be found heedlessly and recklessly breaking the rule, and setting forth an example which the vicious wish to readily follow.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intelligencer tells of a marvellous cure effected by mesmerism, upon a Mrs. Eckson, who had been afflicted and confined to her bed with a disease known as "milk-leg." After being thrown into a magnetic sleep by Dr. Ewing, the operator, who, he was asked, and to the astonishment of her friends, walked about the room with a "best fit you can."

Henry Clay. We will try a woman so severely afflicted with the rheumatism that she could not move any of her limbs, was conveyed on a bed to the room of Mr. Reubens Peale, in this borough. After a period of some days for some time he requested her to walk, when she arose and walked from thence to her home, a distance of seven miles. Pottsville for ever!—best fit if you can.

Henry Clay. The Pittsburgh Intellig