Streutan Plance .-- A young woman went into a pawnbroker's establishment, not many mites from Kilmarnock, the other days with a basket containing a quantity of chins, which she wished to pledge with " mine uncle," for two pounds.-iafter examining the contents of the basket, he gravely stated that be could only advance the balf of that sum. In reply to his statement, she said she was a servant, and that the articles were the property of her mistress, whom she would require to consult before taking the money. She therefore left the office for that purpose, and in a short time returned with the basket, saying that her mistress would take what was offered. "Mine Uncle" again glanced into the depository of the precious ware, and saw that it apparently contained the same goods that he formerly examined. The cash was then paid to the woman, who, immediately left the house, and the basket was carefully set aheard by the broker is uing from the basket, which he again examined, and in which, to his utter atonishment, he found a fine child, carefully wrapt up in fishnel, and over which a slight covering of china had been ingeniously placed for the purpose of deception. No known substance possesses those preservative and beautifying properties so desirable in a paint, to an equal extent with unadulterated white lead; hence any admixture of other materials only mars its value. It has therefore been the steady aim of the manufacturers, for many years, to supply to the public a perfectly pure white lead; and the unceasing demand for the article is proof that it has met with favor. It is invariably branded on one head - WETHERILL & BROTHER, in full, and on the other, WAR-RANCED PURE-all in red letters.
