At that time, we procured a bottle of that valuable medicine, Taylor's Balsam of Liverwort. After taking one bottle we began to have hopes of his recovery. He contined until he had used five bottles. REMARKABLE FACT .-- We learn from a correspondent, that, although there were each day 40,-000 persons at the races at Cather, not a blow was struck, and very few drunken men were seen. To whom is the exemplary behaviour of the 40,-000 persons attributably-to the De Grey government, or to Father Mathew ! ILLICIT DISTILLATION .- In the northern parts of Mayo, in Sligo, Donegal, Londonderry, and Tyrone, the illicit distillers are actively at work in all quarters. The revenue police care worked night and day; and it is said additional means of prevention must be resorted to, either by an increase of that force, or the employment of the military as " still hunters." We understand that all the distilleries in which what is termed " Coffey's Still" is established, have been stopped by order of the Excise Board in London, which has refus ed to renew their licenses, on the allegation that frauds against the revenue had been committed, to a considerable extent; owing to the peculiar construction of "Coffey's Stills." The distillers in question appear without a remedy, as, if they adopted the ordinary still in use elsewhere, they would be under the necessity of entirely remodelling their concerns at a great expense. Scotland. CURIOUS ENCOUNTER .- As John M'Kenzie piper to the Marquis of Breadalbane, was one day last week on his way to the Castle, about half past one o'clock, A. M, he was attacked by one of the red deer, with which he had a severe struggle. The animal struck him with his horns in several places about the thighs and legs. One of his hands was also much bruised. After dragging him some distance, the brute let go his hold, and thus Mr. M'Kenzie was fortunately released. He

SINGULAR ABDOMINAL ACCIDENT.-A Casu ality of rather a singular nature happened to a person of the name of Benjamin Thomas, residing at Velin Voel, near Llanelly. As he was going over a wall, the handle of a spade, which he did not notice, on the other side, entered the bottom of the abdomen, and lacerated it to the extent of about five or six inches. The Ball-room Belle. The moon and all her starry train
Were fading from the morning sky,
When home the ball room belle again,
Return'd with throbbing pulse and brain,
Flush'd cheek, and tearful eye.

The plumes that danced above her brow, The gems that sparkled in her zone, The scarf of gold-wove myrde bough Were laid aside,—they mocked her now When desolate and lone.

That night, how many hearts she won!
The reigning belle, she could not stir
But, like the planets round the sun,
The suitors followed all but one?
One, all the world to her.

THE FIRST DAY OF TERM. BY E. L. BULWER.

·Has any body called upon me this morning, Mrs. Brown ?' inquired Mr. Launcelot Transit. a young gentleman of fashionable exterior, as he entered the breekfast-parlour of his land-lady, a middle-aged person, of a pursy presence and agree-
