ed our good father Adam to eat too, and thus brought a curse upon all the earth confound her."

We are eloquent about oppression on a large scale,-we deprecate the tyranny of government, which, after all, extends but to few, and yet how little pity is bestowed upon those who suffer from that worst of tyranny in daily practice, in daily life. , What grievances would most family histories disclose !- how much kindly feeling wasted - by the arbitrary cruelties of temper ! I say cruelties; for what toriure of rack or wheel can equal that of words ? Take the annals of the majority of hearths for a twelve-month, and we should be amazed at the quantity of wretchedness that would be writ in them, if wilt truly.

We receive great obligations as if they were our due, and are thankless as much out of vanity as ingratitude.

Confidence is a feminine necessity. There are very few women but who like each other's sociesy, and of this liking sympathy is the grand secret; none but themselves can fully enter into their hopes, fears, and plans; all of which are nothing without being discussed. A woman only can understand a woman; and it is pleasant to be understood sometimes.

WHISKERS .- Of all things avoid a vulgar whisker. This is of various kinds. A short, scrubby, indomitable, ng whisker ; a weak, fuzzy, white moth-eaten, mouldy whisker, is a vulgar whisker; a twisting, twining, serpentine, sentimental, corkscrew of a whisker ; a Lig, black; bluff, brutal looking whisker, is vulgar; a mathematical, master-of-artistical diagram of a whisker, is a vulgar whisker ; whatever is not any of these, will do.

"The Honorable Mr. Boyle,' says Bishop Burnet, in his account of that learned and pious person, "had the most profound veneration for the great God of heaven and earth, that I ever observed in any man. The name of God was never mentioned by him without a pause and stop in his discourse.

It is related of Pythagoras, an emined philosopher of antiquity, that before he would admit any one as a pupil into his school, he was accustomed to inquire, who were his associates:-justly concluding that those who cculd keep had company would not be much profited by his instructions.

Considering how much we say that we do not mean, how fortunate it is that we are not taken at our wod ! We should then be kautious how we talked of rustic and innocent pleasures, of dying for love, and cternal constancy.".

Well, nature makes some wise provisions, it must be confessed. We should be envious of other's happiness, if, in nine cases out of ten, we did not despise it.

And how many women have believed that any change must be for the better, and only discovered their mistake when too late to remedy it !---a sime, by the way, at which mistakes are usually found out.

. It was an observation of Publius Scipio, that he was never less idle than when he had most leisure, and that he was never less alone than when he was alone.

---- . No life is pleasing to God, but that which i useful to mankind.

. To say little and perform much, is the characberistic of a great mind.
