MEDICINES.

Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills OF THE NORTH AMERICAN COLLEGE Of Health.

N O MEDICINE has ever been introduced to the A-merican Public, whose virtues have been more cheerfully and universally acknowleged, than the a-bove named WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS. To descant upon their merits, at this late day, would seem to be wholly unnecessary, as, very few indeed who read this article, will be found unacquainted with the real excellence of the medicine. But if further proof were wanting to establish the credit of this singular remedy, it might be found in the fact that no medicine in the country has been so SHAMELESSLY COUNTERFEITED.

Ignorant and unprincipled men have at various pla-es, manufactured a spurious pill; and in order more ompletely to deceive the public have made it in outcompletely detected the patter have made it in our ward appearance to resemble the true medicine.—
These wicked people could never pass off their worth test trash, but for the assistance of certain misguided ess trash, but for the assistance of certain misguided storekeepers, who because they can purchase the spusious article at a reduced rate, lend themselves to this monstrous system of imposition and crime.

The patrons of the above excellent Pills, will therefore be on their guard against every kind of imposition, and remember the only genuine Agents in Pottsville, are Mussrs. T. & J. Beatty.

The following highly respectable store keepers have been appointed Agents for the sale of WRIGHT'S INDIAN. VEGETABLE PILLS, FOR Sclected from f. W. Longfellow. Let no one fondly dream again,

That hope and all her shadowy train
Will not decay; Fleeting as were the dreams of old, Remembered like a tale that's told, They pass away.

Behold of what delusive worth, The bubbles we pursue on earth The shapes we chase, Amid a world of treachery! They vanish ere death shuts the eye, And leaves no trace.

From the Boston Courier Law of Kindness-Remedy for Crime. There is great hope for the philanthropist in the tendengies of the public mind. Love-unother name for Christianity, whose spirit and law it is -is the only remedy for moral evil. Force may restrain and control the incorrigible and dangerous-it cannot reform. Kindness and sympathy alone regenerated the heart. Mrs. Child, in a recent letter from New York, tells the following anecdotes, which she heard at a recent meeting of the Prison Reform Association. Isaac T. Hopper, whose life has been one long lesson of practicable benevolence, related a few highly interesting incidents which occurred while he was one of the inspectors of the Philadelphia. prison. The cordial response he received from the audience showed how ripe the public mind is for humane and salutary charges in the treatment of criminals.

He said that Mary Nortis, a middle-aged woman, who had been frequently re-committed to teen years serves to operate in a community. prison, on one occasion begged him to interceeded for her, that she might go out. "I am afraid thou wouldst come back again soon," said he. soon," she said with stolid indifference of man-

No respectable peo-Whether I am guilty or not, is of no consequence; nobody will believe me inocent. They will say ·She is an old convict. Send her back to prison. That is the best place for her.' O, yes, I expect to come back soon. There is no use of trying to do better.' Much affected by her tone of utter hopelessness Friend Hopper said, 'But if I could obtain steady employment for thee, where thou wouldst be treated kindly, and be paid for thy services, wouldst thou really try to behave well ?'

Her countenance brightened, and she eagerly eplied, 'indeed I would.' The kind-hearted inspector used his influence to procure her dismissal, and provided a place for her, as head nurse in a hospital for the poor. She remained there, more than seventeen years, and discharged the duties of her situation so faithfully that she gained the respect and confidence of all who knew her. He likewise told the story of two lads, one fifteen and the other seventeen, who had been induced by a bad father to swear falsely to gratify his own revengeful feelings. They were detected and sent to prison. When Friend Hopper saw them arrive at dusk, hand-cuffed and chained together, their youth and desolate appearance touched his compassionate feelings. Be of good heart, my lads," said he. "You can retrieve this one false step if you but try. You may make useful and respectable men yet." He took care to place them away from contagion of those most hardened in vice, and from time to time, he praised their good conduct, and spoke to them encouragingly of the future. After a while, he proposed to the Board of Inspectors to reccommend them to the Governor for pardon. He met with some opposition, but his arguments finally prevailed, and he and another gentleman were appointed to wait on the Governor. His repuest was granted after considerable hesitation, and then only on condition that worthy men could be found who would take them as apprentices. Friend Hopper took the resposibility, and succeeded in binding one of them to a respectable turner, and the other to a carpenter. After giving them much good advice, he told them to come to him whenever they were in difficulty, and to consider him as a father. For a long time, they were in the habit of spending all their leisure evenings with him, and were well pleased to come n and listen to the reading of instructive books. These brothers became respectable and thriving nechanics, married worthy women, and brought up their families in the paths of sobriety and useulness. In the days of their prosperity, Friend Hopper introduced them to the Governor, as the lads he had been so much afraid to pardon. The magistrate took them by the hand most cordially and thanked them for the great public good they had done by their excellent example.

For some reason or other, he was reprieved at the foot of the gallows, and his sentence was changed to ten years' imprisonment .-He was a man of few words, and hope seemed almost dead within him ; but when Friend Hopper, who became inspector during the latter part of his term, talked to him in a fatherly manner, his heart was evidently touched by the voice of kind-

Friend Hopper often spoke to him words of friendly cheer, and things were going on very satisfactorily, when a robbery was committed in the neighborhood, and Patrick was immediately arrested, His friend went to the Mayor, and inquired

'Nay, it is nor enough,' replied Friend Hopper. He has suffered severely for the crime he did commit, and since he has shown the most sincere desire to reform, it never ought to be mentioned against him. I think I I low his state of for statues, columns, obelisks, &c. such as the mind, and I will take the responsibility of maintaining that he is not guilty.' But to all his ur-

Indeed I was not. God be my witness, I want to lead an honest life, and be at peace with all men. But what good will that do ! They will all say, 'he is an old convict, and that is enough.' Friend Hopper told him that he would stand by him. He did so; and offered to be buil for his appearance. The gratitude of the poor fellow was overwhelming. He sobbed like a child. His innocence was afterwards proved, and to the day of his death, he continued a virtuous and useful citizen. What would have been his fate, if no riend had appeared for him ! If every human heart had refused to trust him? Ups and Downs.

FIFTH YEARS AGO The City of Washington--The National Intelligencer copies some interesting extracts from the Gazette of the United States, published in Philadelphia in 1790. In the original plan of the city of Washington, as submitted to Congress by the President in January, 1790, we find minition, says the Intelligencer, of the subjoined 'magnificent intentions,' which are unfortunately not yet entirely realized:

An equestrian figure of George Washington, monument voted in 1783, by the late Continen

An historic column, also intended for a mile or inerary column, trong whose station (at a mile rom the Federal House) all distances and places brough the continent are to be calculated. 'A naval itineary column, proposed to be ereoted to celebrate the first rise of a navy, and to stand a ready monthlight to perpetuate its progress and schievements. 'A church intended for national purposes, such &c, and assigned to the special use of no partic-

HORRIBLE CUSTOMS OF THE PREJETANS. Wives are often strangled or buried alive at the funeral of their husbands, and generally at their own instance. Cases of this sort have frequently been witnessed by the white residents. On one occasion Whippy drove away the murderers, rescued the woman, said carried her to his own house," where she was resuscitated. So far, however, from feeling grateful for her preservation, she loaded him with abuse; and ever afterwards manifessed the most deadly hatred towards him. That women should desire to accompany their husbands in death, is by no means strange, when it is considered that it is arie of the articles of their belief, that it is in this way alone can they reach the realms of bliss; and that she who meets her death with the greatest devotedness, will become the favorite wife in the land of spirits. The sacrifice is not however, always voluntary; but when a woman refuses to be strangled, the relations often compel her to submit. This they do from interested motives it for hy her death, her connections become entitled to the property of her husband.
