Another of Mrs. Caudie's Curtain Lectures Lecture II .- Mr. Caudle has been at a Tavern with a Friend.

Poor me! Ha! I'm sure I don't know who'd be a poor woman! I don't know who'd tie themselves up to a man, if they knew only half they'd have to bear. A wife must stay at home, and be a druge, whilst a man can go anywhere. It's enough for a wife to sit like Cinderella by the ashes, whilst her husband can go drinking and singing at a tavern. You never sing! How do I know you never sing! It's very well for you to say so; but if I could hear you, I dare say you're amongst the worst of 'em.

"And now, I suppose, it will be the tavern evry night. If you think I'm going to sit up for you Mr. Caudle, you're very much mistaken. No: and I'm not going to get out of my warm bed to let you in either. No? nor Susan shan't sit up for you; nor you shan't have a latch key. I'm not going to sleep with the door upon the latch, to be murdered before the morning.

"Faugh! Pah! Whewgh! That fifthy tobiccosmoke! It's enough to kill any decent woman You know I hate tobacco, and yet you will do it. You don't smoke yourseld! What of that! If There's that wretch, Prettyman. See what he's come to. He does nt now get home till two in the morning; and then in what a state! He begins quarrelling with the doorman, that his poor wife may be afraid to speak to him. A mean wretch! But don't you think I'll be like Mrs. Prettyman. No; I wouldn't put up with it from the best man that ever trod. You'll not make me afraid to speak to you however you may swear at the door-mat. No, Mr. Caudle, that you won't.

"You don't intend to stay out till two in the morning! How do you know what you'll do when you'get among such people? Men can't answer for themselves when they get boozing one with another. They never think of their poor wives, who are grieving and wearing themselves out at home. A nice headache you'll have to morrow morning-or rather this morning; for it must be past twelve. You won't have a headnche! Its very weil for you to say so, but I know LHa! that filthy tobacco again! No: I shall not go to sleep when they re sufficated!

make me as bad as you are. Talking about getting divorced—I'm sure tobacco ought to be good grounds. How little described to the followgrounds. How little described to the followgrounds. That filthy tobacco! I'm sure its enough to she marries, that she gives herself up to be poisoned! You men contrive to have it all of your own side, you do. Now, if I was to go and leave you and the children, a pretty noise there'd be! You. however, can go and smoke no end of pipes .-You didn't smoke! It's all the same, Mr. Caudle, if you go among smoking people. Folks are known by there company. You'd better smoke yourself, than bring me home the pines of all be coming home tipsy every night; and tumbling down and breaking your leg, and putting out your shoulder; and bringing all sorts of disgrace and expense upon us. And then you'll be getting into a street fight - oh ! I know your temper to well to doubt it, Mr. Caudle-and be knocking down some of the police. And then I know what will follow. It must follow: You'll be sent for a month or six weeks to the treadmill. Pretty *thing that, for a respectable tradesman, Mr. Caudle; to be put upon the treadmill with all sorts of thieves and vagabonds, and-there, again that horrible tobacco ! and riff-raff of every kind. I should like to know how you're children, are to hold up there heads, after there father his been upon the treadmill! No; I won't go to sleep. And I'm not talking of shat is imposible. I know it will all happen every bit of it. If it wasn't for "the dear children, you might be ruined and I would not so much as speak about it, but-h, dear, dear! at least you might go where they smoke good tobacco-but I can't forget that I'm their mother. At least they shall have one priced. "Tavem!, Never did a man go to a tivern, who didn't die a beggar. And how your pot compa nions will laugh at you when they see your name in the Gazette! For it must happen. Your business is sure to fall oil; for what respectable man will buy toys for their children of a drunkard! You're not 'a drunk sid! No : but you will be -it's all the same.

"You've begun by staying out till midnight .--By-and-by 't will be all, night. But don't you think, Mr. Caudie, you shall ever have as key. I know you. Yes; you'd doexactly like that Prettyman, and what did he do, only last Wednesday? Why he let himself in about four in the morning, and brought home with him his potentipanion, Leanly. His dear wife woke at six, and saw Prettyman's dirty boots at her bed-ide. And his dear wife's pockets-ha! what that poor creature has to bear !- and had got the brandy. A pretty thing for a wife to wake at six in the mor-

DEAFNESS CURED.

The following Editorials and certificates wil be read with interest as they speak facts, which are "stubborn with interest as they speak facts, which are "stubborn things."

Most Extraondinary Cure!—If any have donbts they may now dismiss them, and the most incredulous may confider Deafness as curable. Numerous cases of cures, and many of them very remarkable—by the use of "scarpa's oil," have been published, but this 'caps the climax.' Young or old may yet recover hearing. A lady in Smithfield, Pennsylvania, and now about 80 years of age had been gradually getting deaf for more than 40 years, so that it was next to impossible to make her bear conversation in the loudest tones of voice; Last winter she was induced to try 'Scarpa's Oil for Deafness.' It is only necessary to add that she has used two bottles, and that her hearing is perfectly restored—she is cured.

ARE induced from the favor with which their Teas have been received in Philadelphia, and by aumerops fraulies in the Country, during the past season, to give a more extended, notice of the location of their Branches, which are at 69 Chesnut street, 2d flow door below Third street, and for below Third street, and for below Third street, and few doors below Race street. Their Agents are supplied wreekly, with the choicest assortment of Green and Black Teas, of the latest importations. Their Teas, after a thorough trial of their qualities, by persons of great experience, are packed in a manner to exclude the air, and preserve their fragrance, and owing to the rigid test, to which they are subjected, one uniformity of quality is preserved. For the respective qualities they are believed to be the cheapest Teas in the Market; and each package is warranted to contain full weight, independent of the wrapper.

The Farmer's Ode.

Let Commerce spread her flowing sails, And Trade her path pursue, Without the Farmer what avails, Or what without him do ? Let learn'd Divine and Lawyers house

Let Physic follow in her train, The Farmer's skill is valued most In making gold sheaves of Grain. Let Statesmen rack their brains with care, Some mighty project to fulfil,

The Farmer's wiser projects are His flocks to feed, his grounds to till. His orisons at early dawn, To the Almighty Power he makes. Then treads the dew bespangled lawn,

Or pleasure in high labor takes. He hears the robbin's early song.

And the rude notes of cheerful thrains, While heedful of his crops along,

He travels o'er his own domains A stranger he to fretful care; No busy scenes perplex his life, Contented with his homely fare, His children and a prudent wife

No prodigal nor careless waste On his domain is ever found; With open hand he yet will hasto

And now his earthly labor past, And old in virtue he has grown.
To crown his well spent life at last

Kind Heaven shall claim him for its own, PRESERVING POTATOES .- Some years ago it. as stated that a farmer in moving his potatoes in the spring, incidentally lay some on charcoal dust, and they did not vegetate, and since that time charoal has been reccommended as a preservative of
