WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS.

To descant upon their merris, at this late day, would seem to be wholly unnecessary, as very few indeed who read this article, will be found unacquainted with the real excellence of the medicine. But if further proof were wanting to establish the credit of this singular remedy, it might be found in the fact that no medicine in the country has been so SHAMELESSLY COUNTERFEITED.

Ignorant and unprincipled men have at various places, manufactured a spurious pill; and in order more completely to deceive the public have made it moutward appearance to resemble the true medicine.—
These wicked people could never pass off their worthess trash, but for the assistance of certain misguided storekespers, who because they can purchase the spurious article at a reduced rate, lend themselves to this monstrous system of imposition and crime.

The patrons of the above excellent Pills, will therefore be on their guard against every kind of imposition, and remember the only genuine Agents in Pottsville, are Mussrs. T. & J. Beatty.

The following highly respectable store keepers have been appointed Agents for the sale of WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS, FOR

A PARENT'S PRAYER. the patch on both knees and gloves on. BY REV. L. WITHINGTON. At this hushed hour, when all my children sleep

Hage, in thy presence, gracious God, I kneel;
And, while the tears of gratitude I weep,
Would pour the prayer which gratitude must feel Paternal love! O set thy holy seal On these soft hearts which thou to me hast sent: Repel temptation, guard their better weal; Be thy pure spirit to their frailty lent, And lead them in the path their infant Saviour went

I ask not for them eminence or wealth-For these in wisdom's view, are trifling toys; But occupation, competence and health, Thy love, thy presence and the lasting joys That flow therefrom; the passion which employ The breasts of holy men; and thus to be From all that taints, or darkens or destroys The strength of principle, forever free ! This is the better boon, O God, I ask of thee.

If these soft feet, which now the feathers press Are doomed the path of ruin soon to tread; If vice concealed in her unspotted dress, Is soon to lure to her polluted bed! If thy foresecing eye discerns a thread Of sable guilt, impelling on their doom, O spare them not-in mercy strike them dead. Prepare them for an early, welcome tomb,

Nor for eternal blight let my false blossoms bloo And teach me, Power Supreme, in their green days, With meekest skill, thy lessons to impart; To shun the harlot, and to show the maze Thro' which her honeyed accents reach the heart Help them to learn, without the bitter smarty Of bad experience, vices to decline; From treachery, falsehood, knavery, may they start As from a hidden snake; from lust and wine-From all the guilty pangs with which low scenes combine Though Persecution's archers o'er them spread. Or sickness undermine, consuming slow; Though they should lead the life their Saviour lea And his deep poverty be doomed to know; Wherever thou shalt order, let them go; I give them up to thee-they are not mine : And I could call the swiftest winds to blow To bear them from me to the Pole or Line,

To distant lands to plant the gospel's bleeding shrine From the Boston Courier.

A patch on both Knees and Gloves on. IN IMITATION OF DR. GRANKLIN. When I was a boy it was my fortune to breathe for a long time, what some writer calls the bracing air of poverty.' My mother-light lie the turf upon the form which once enclosed her strong and gentle spirit-was what is commonly called an ambitious woman, for that quality, which overturns thrones and supplants dynastics, finds a legitimate sphere in the humble abode that the shadow of poverty ever darkened. The struggle between the wish to keep up appearances and the pinching gripe of necessity produced endless shifts and contrivances, at which, were they told, some would smile, and some to whom they would recall their own experiences, would sigh. Butlet me not disturb that vale of oblivion, which shrouds from profane eyes the hallowed mysteries of pov-On one occasion it was necessary to send me upon an errand to a neighbor in better circumstances than ourselves, and before whom it was necessary that I should be presented in the best possible aspect. Great pains were accordingly taken to give a smart appearance to my patched and dilapidated wardrobe, and to conceal the rents and chasms which the envious tooth of time had made in them; and by way of throwing over my equipment a certain savor and sprinkling of gentility, my red and toil-hardened hands were enclosed in the know me one man of honor-shall have de satisunfamiliar casing of a pair of gloves, which had belonged to my mother in days when her years were fewer and her heart lighter. I sallied forth on my errand, and on my way encountered a much older and bigger boy, who evidently belonged to a family which had all our own dragging poverty, and none of our uprising wealth of spirit. His rags fairly fluttered in the breeze; his hat was constructed on the most approved principle of ventilation; and his shoes from their venerable antiquity, might have been deemed pair of fossil shoes-the very ones on which Shem shuffled into the ark. He was an impued horseman because he was well dressed; to tear ayunea boy's ruffle simply because it was clean. As soon as he saw me, his eye detested the practical inconsistencies which characterised my costume, and taking me by the shoulders, turning me round with no gentle hand, and, surveying me from head to foot, exclaimed with a scornful laugh of derision 'A patch on both knees and gloves on.'

I still recall the sting of wounded feeling which shot through me at these words. To parody a celebrated line of the immortal Tuscan-That day, I wore my gloves no more. But the lesson, thus rudely enforced, sunk deep into my mind, and, in after life, I have had frequent occasion to make a practical application of the words of my ragged friend, when I have observed the practical inconsistencies which so often mark the conduct of mankind. When, for instance, I see parents carefully providing for the ornamental education of their children, furnishing them with teachers in musicdancing and drawing, but giving no thought to that moral and religious training, from which the true dignity and permanent happiness of life alone can come, never teaching them habits of self-sacrifice and self-discipline and control, but rather by our example teaching them evil speaking, in uncharitableness, in envy, and in falsehood, I think, with a sigh, of the patch on both knees and gloves

When I see a family living in a cold and selfish solitude, not habitually warming their houses with the glow of happy faces, but lavishing that which should furnish the hospitality of a whole year upon patch on both knees and gloves on. When I see a house profusely furnished with both knees and plopes on. When I see the public men cultivating excluively those qualities which win a way to office,

When I see men sacrificing peace of mind and health of body to the insane pursuit of wealth, living in ignorance of the character of the children who are growing up around them, cutting themselves off from the highest and purest pleasures of their natures, and so perverting their humanity, then that which was sought as a means insensibly comes to be followed as an end, I say to myself; a patch on both knees and gloves on."

When I see thousands squandered for selfishness and osientation, and nothing bestowed for charity, when I see fine ladies be-satined and bejewelled, cheapening the toil of dress-makers, and with harsh words embittering the bitter bread of dependance, when I see the poor turned away from proud houses, where the crumbs of the tables would be to them a feast, I think of the patch on der disgrace and their inclination to renew their

both knees and gloves on. THE FRENCHMAN'S DOG,

OR A DOSE ADMINISTERED BY THE DOCTOR. There is a class of men in this world who for the most trivial cause, bluster and look big. They are of the Bob Acres school, and will awagger and swear they have killed or can kill a dozen men a day; but once test their metal, and like the valiant Bob, their courage oozes out at their fingers' ends. Let one of them, be but met with a bold front, and like the friend of William Patterson, so far from evincing a desire to inflict personal chassement, he is apt to become laudatory of the action at which he first affected to take offence,

We will, as lawyers say, quote a case in point. Yesterday, about the time the clock tolled three, Dr. - and two friends entered the Blue Dial Resturant with the view of dining there. Simultaneously with them there entered a fierce-looking Frenchman, with a face all beard and a military frock all buttons: He was accompanied by a dog -a cur of the lowest degree. The animal hap. pened to come in contact with the doctor's legs, and from his position there he turned up his snout and gave a snar at the great medicine man, which the latter promptly repaid with a kick that sent the canine intruder away yelping under his master's legs, who by this time had taken his seat, at one of the small tables. He saw how the doctor's foot had been applied to the posteriors of his favorite dog, and how the latter-calling on him to avenge, as it were, the blow-sought for rafety seemed to be to spring on the doctor, who, by the years :way, though made of the sternest stuff, is not a on 'nursing his wrath to keep it warm.' The doctor all this time took but little notice of him; his dinner over, he settled the bill for himself and two friends, and was near the door on the shoulder. He turned round, and there stood the enraged Frenchman. He looked at the doctor, and the doctor scowled at him as ferociously as if he were about to amputate his leg or his your dog, and I am anxious to know what you have got to say about it ?' The Frenchman knit his brows, began to raise and compress his tids, put his cane quietly under his arm, and cooly replied : 'I have got dis one ting to say, mons have one vera large dog at home, dat would positive bite you if you kick him !"

The Frenchman took a pinch of snuff, politely ouched his hat and walked out. The doctor and dent variet, with a dare-devil swagger in his gait, his friends followed, impressed with the belief that and a sort of 'I'm as good as you' leer in his eye it is by no means as dangerous to kick some -the very whelp to throw a stone at a well dress. SHARSPEARE'S ACCURACY.-The boots and shoes of the ordinary classes during the fourteenth century were altogether of peculiar form, and had remarkable twist when the figure was viewed n front. Soles of shoes of a much earlier age, have been discovered cut to fit one foot only; and one of the sandals of an early ecclesiastic, of this form, is engraved in Gough's Sepulchral Monuments' but an earlier example may be readily cimade also right and left. Shakspeare's description, in his King John, of the tailor who, eager to acskies had just exhibited, and whom Hubert saw

"Standing on slippers which his nimble baste Had falsely thrust upon contrary feet.," is strictly accurate. But half a century ago, this passage was adjudged to be one of the many proofs of Shakspeare's ignorance or carlessness. Dr. Johnson, ignorant himself of the truth in this point, and, like too many other critics, determined o pass the verdict of a self-elected and ill informed judge, makes himself supremely ridiculous, by saying, in a note to this passage, with ludicrous solemnity, Shakspeare seems to have confounded the man's shoes with his gloves. He that is frighted or hurried, may put his hand into the wrong glove, but either shoe will equally admit either fout. The author seems to be disturbed by the disorder which he describes.' This offhand style of accusation and condemnation, founded on mistaken affinity between ages remote and distinct from each other, may be quite as easily fallen into the profession of a single night, I think of the by the artist who would alter the shapes or form of an article of costume, because it may clash with modern ideas of taste, perhaps quite as full sumptuous furniture, rich curtains and luxurious of unfounded prejudice, as the taste of an earlier carpets, but with no books, or none but a few time, and which may thus falsify more than imtawdry annuals, I am reminded of the patch on prove his subject. That which tells most upon the eye in an encient picture or sculpture, as a quaint or peculiar bit of costume, and which may occasionally, be taken as bad drawing is not unand neglecting those which will qualify to fill frequently the most accurate delineation of a real honorably the posts to which they espired, I recall peculiarity.—Art, Union,

NAPOLEAN'S ATTEMPT TO PASS THE RED SEA .- The author of Eothen, or Traces of Travel; after mentioning several speculations as to the point at which the Isralites passed the Red Sea one of the suppositions being that they had traversed only a small creek at the northern extremity, near Suez, proceeds as follows :--

Napoleon when at Suez, made an altempt to follow the supposed steps of Moses, by passing the creek at this point, but it seems, according to the testimony of the people at Sucz, that he and his horsemen managed the matter in a way more resembling the failure of the Egyptians, then the success of the Isralites. According to the French. account. Nupoleon got out of the difficulty by that warrior-like presence of mind, which served him so well, when the fate of nations depended on the decision of a moment. He ordered his horsemen to disperse themselves in all directions, in order to multiply the chances of finding shallow water, and was thus enabled to discover a line by which' he and his people were extricated. The story told by the people of Suez, is very different. They liciare that Napoleon parted from his horse, got horoughly submerged, and was only fished out by the people on shore. I bathed twice at the point assigned to the Israchtes, and the second time that I did so, I chose the time of low water, and tried to walk across, but'I soon found myself out of my depth, or at least in water so deep, that I could only advance by swimming, SENSITIVENESS OF BIRDS.—The following incodote shows the strange imitative powers of the Mocking Bird, and would seem to prove the fact that emulation is a strange principle in birds. that when their music is excelled, they droop, unefforts ceases. A gentleman had an American mocking hird in such health and vigor, that it was etther constantly singing, or else imitating the various sounds it heard. In order to try the powers of this bird, its owner purchased a fine sky lark. When placed in the same room with the mocking bird, the song of the former, was heard to echo through the house; as if it were chaunting on fluttering wing, its well known welcome to the rising sun. The mocking bird was silent for some time, but at last burst forth in the strains of the 'aerial' songeter,' but louder and clearer, as if mounting and stretching its wings towards heaven. The lark was silent from that moment, nor was a joyous note over heard from it afterwards. Wishing to test the powers of the mocking bird still further, an unusually large price was given for a black bird, celebrated for its vocal powers. It was placed in the same room with the mocking bird, early on the second morning, its song was resumed, and its charming notes were warbled forth with all the sweetness and modulations which may be heard in its 'thorny brakes.' Tho: mocking bird listened and was silent for some time; then all at once the blackbird's notes were heard to issue forth, but sweeter and louder thanthose of the woodland songster. The poor blackbird heard them, felt that it was conquered, remained silent drooped, pined and died.

If you possess one bad habit—one harmful practice—be it as dear as thy right hand, or the apple of thine eye, cast the leprous excrescace off-now! xow!! NOW!!! Wait not till the tainture of its moral corruption hath spread Itself throughout thy entire system . till it hath spread pollution to those around thy path; for, with every moment's delay, thou art becoming tenfold more deeply implicated as the foe of the human race.

Remember that as the oak strengthens itself in the tempest so the harmful habits which darken and disgrace our nature, are empowered and stimulated, not deadened, by delay.

Monat Counage The late Timothy Pickering, Secretary of State, under Washington, gava an excellent rep'y to a challenge. Considering that Col. I ickering was a military man, his answer ted. The Greeks and Romans had their boots is remarkable, and under the circumstances of the age when it was given, may be regarded as better evidence of genuine courage than could be deduquaint his friend, the smith, with the prodigies the ced from a brilliant series of military achievements. In his reply he said. That he was willing to make atl reasonable concession, but as to fighting, he added, A an neither afraid nor ashamed, but from my first knowledge of things, I have ever held the practice of duelling in abharrence : and I much less fear to die, than offend the Being who gave - me existence. MINABERC -- It is said that the celebrated Mirubeau, in the latter years of his life, butterly reretted the tollies of his youth. If his moral character had been pure, his influence would have been jumphse. One of his biographers says that the was fully aware that if he had enjoyed personal consideration, all France would have been at his. feet, that there were moments when he would have: consented to pass seven times through the heated; furnace to purify the name of Mirabeau. Idiaveseen him weep with grief, and heard him say, almost sufficated with sobs: I am cruelly expiating;
