MEDICINES.

Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills

OF THE NORTH AMERICAN COLLEGE of Health.

NO MEDICINE has ever been introduced to the American Public, whose virtues have been more cheerfully and universally acknowleged, than the above named.

WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS.

To descant upon their merits, at this late day, would seem to be wholly unnecessary, as very few indeed who read this article, will be found unacquainted with the real excellence of the medicine. But if further proof were wanting to establish the credit of this singular remedy, it might be found in the fact that no medicine in the country has been so

SHAMELESSLY COUNTERFEITED.

Ignorant and unprincipled men have at various places, manufactured a spurious pill; and in order more completely to deceive the public have made it in outward appearance to resemble the true medicine.—These wicked people could never pass off their worthless trash, but for the assistance of certain misguided storekeepers, who because they can purchase the spurious article at a reduced rate, lend themselves to this monstrous system of imposition and crime.

The patrons of the above excellent Pills, will therefore be on their guard against every kind of imposition, and remember the only genuine Agents in Pottsville, are Messrs. T. & J. Beatty.

The following highly respectable store keepers have been appointed Agents for the sale of

RIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS, FOR

SCHUYLKILL COUNTY,

and of whom it is confidently believed the genuine medicine can with certainty be obtained.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.

The only security against imposition is to purchase from the regular advertised agents, and in all cases be particular to ask for Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills.

Office devoted exclusively to the sale of the medicine, wholesale and retail, No. 169 Race street, Philadelphia.

TWO Gentlemen who shave themselves, this article offered with the greatest confidence as equal, if not superior to any other Shaving Soap in use. "The Saponaceous Compound for shaving, is the best—perhaps the very best article in use for scraping the beard from the human face divine. What with a keen razor and this compound, you may shave yourself in half the time, you are accustomed to, with as little anonymity in language—it is very good shave, and yet no shave."—Boston Daily Mail.

The Road of Life.

This is a charming song, as the subject of it is the same as that which inspired Shakespeare, we will quote the words as a sort of appendix in the "Seven Ages."

"Oh! youth, happy youth, what a blessing,
In thy freshness of dawn and of dew,
When hope the young heart is caressing,
And our griefs are but light and but few,
But in life, as swiftly flies o'er us,
Some musing, for sadness, we find
In youth we've our troubles before us,
In age we leave pleasure behind.

Ay, Tronble's the post boy that drives us,
Up hill till we get to the top,
While Joy's an old servant behind us,
We call on, for ever to stop,
O! put on the drag Joy, my jewel,
As long as the sunset still glows;
Before it is dark 'twould be cruel
To haste to the hill foot's repose.

But there stands an inn we must stop at,
An extinguisher swings for a sign,
That house is but cold and but narrow,
But the prospect beyond is divine!
And there, whence there's never returning,
When we travel, as travel we must,
May the gates be all free for our journey,
And the tears of our friends lay the dust."

From "The Crescent and the Cross."

THE EAST.

Woman—The Harem.

Thus in the ever-closed harem,
As in the open Western home,
Sheds womanhood her starry gleam
Over our being's busy form.
Through latitudes of varying faith,
Thus trace we still her mission sure,
To lighten life, to sweeten death,
And all for others to endure.

R. M. MILNES.

On entering a strange country, its women are the first objects of interest to the moralist as well as to the epicurean; to the former, because the education of a people, and the framework of its society, depend mainly upon maternal and domestic character; to the latter, because almost every grace and charm of daily life is owing to her influence or intervention with her being—"On a dit, qu'il y a de la femme dans tout ce qu'on aime."

Among the lower classes of all nations, especially in the country, the life and habits of women approximate more or less to that of men in an inverse proportion to their civilization, as they share with the ruder sex their labors, hardships, and daily occupation. Among savage tribes almost the only difference between the sexes is physical. It is of the Moslem women of the middle and upper classes that I am now about to speak, and I do so with a diffidence proportioned to such mysterious matters.

Difficult a study as woman presents in all countries, that difficulty deepens almost into an impossibility in a land where even to look upon her is a matter of danger or of death. The seclusion of the harem is preserved in the very streets by means of an impenetrable veil; the well-bred Egyptian averts his eyes as she passes by; she is ever to remain an object of mystery; and the most intimate acquaintance never inquires after the wife of his friend, or affects to know of her existence.* This very mystery, however, piques the often-baffled inquirer; and between Europeans who have become almost Egyptian, and Egyptians who have become almost European, one is able to obtain some information even on this delicate subject.

The Eastern woman seems as happy in her lot as her European sister, notwithstanding the plurality of wives in which her lord indulges, or ventures upon. In her "public opinion's law" there is no more disparagement in occupying the second place as a wife, than there is in Europe as a daughter. The manners of patriarchal ages remain in Egypt as unchanged as its monuments, and the people of Cairo think as little of objecting to a man's marrying a second wife, as those of Memphis of questioning the legitimacy of Joseph. The Koran, following the example of the Jewish doctors, only allows four wives to each Mussulman, and even of this limited allowance they seldom avail themselves to its fullest extent. Some harcems contain two hundred females, including wives, mothers-in-law concubines, and the various slaves belonging to each; but these feminine barracks seem very different from what such establishments would be in Europe. In the harcem there is as much order and decorum as in an English Quaker's home: it is guarded as the tiger guards its young, but its inmates consider this as a compliment and think themselves neglected if not closely watched. This cause for complaint seldom occurs, for the Egyptian has no blind confidence in the strength of woman's character, or woman's love. He holds to the aphorism of Mahomet in the matter, "if you set butter in the sun it will surely melt;" and considers it safer if not more glorious, to keep her out of the reach of temptation, than to run the chance of her overcoming it when exposed to its encounter.

Born and brought up in the harcem, women never seem to pine at its imprisonment: like cage-born birds, they sing among their bars, and discover in their aviaries a thousand little pleasures invisible to eyes that have a wider range. To them, in their calm seclusion, the strifes of the battling world come softened and almost hushed; they only hear the far-off murmur of life's stormy sea, and, if their human lot dooms them to their cares, they are as transient as those of childhood.

Passing through the secluded suburbs of Cairo, I once found myself near one of the principle harcems; I paused by the dull, dark wall, over which the palm-tree waved, and the scent of flowers and the bubbling of fountains stole; and there I listened to the sweet laughter of the Odalisques within. This was broken by snatches of untaught song, to which the merry unseen band joined chorus, and kept time by clapping hands, on which their jewelled bracelets tinkled. It was a music of most merry mirth; and as I pictured to myself the merry group within, I wondered whether they deserved all that pity from their European sisters, which they so little appreciate. An English lady visiting an Odalisque, inquired what pleasure her rich profusion of ornaments could afford, as no person except her husband was ever to behold them: "and for whom," replied the fair barbarian, "do you adorn yourself? is it for other men?"

I have conversed with several European ladies who had visited harcems, and they have all confessed their inability to convince the Eastern wives of the unhappiness or hardship of their state. It is true that the inmate of the harcem knows nothing of the advantages of the wild liberty (as it seems to her) that the European woman enjoys: she has never witnessed the domestic happiness that crowns a fashionable life, or the peace of mind and purity of heart that reward the labors of a London season; and what can she know of the disinterested affection and changeless constancy of ball-room belles, in the land where woman is all free. Let them laugh on in their happy ignorance of a better lot, while round them is gathered all that their lord can command of luxury and pleasantness: his wealth is hoarded for them alone; he permits himself no ostentation except the respectable one of arms and horses! and the time is weary that he passes apart from his home and his harcem. The sternest tyrants are gentle there; Mehomet Ali never refuses a woman's prayer; and even Ali Pasha was partly humanized by his love for Emineh. In the time of the Mamelukes, criminals were led to execution blindfolded, because if they had met a woman and could touch her garment, they were saved, whatever was their crime
