Thaddeus Stevens, says a great many good things, one of which has just met our eye. A gentleman from the interior entered his office one day with his son, whom he desired to place in the charge of Mr. Stevens, for instruction in the law. After baving propounded certain interrogatories, touching the general character of the young gentleman, Mr. Stephens wound up with : "Is he perfectly honest?"

The gentleman signified that he thought h Well, sir, said Mr. Stevens, if he be thoroughly honest, you had better make a preacher of him; but for a lawyer, it is necessary that he should be perfectly honest." HERE IS THE BEST .- The best anecdote we have seen yet, we came across yesterday, in one of our exchanges. It may be old as the bills, but that don't take away from its merits. Read and it a most excellent feed for migh cowe; in fact I think it is the best feed we give them together withpasture. I cut and feed it green, I had two crops the same ground. From the little experience have had I would say that the ground requires o be good, and as free from weels as possible. The first crop, in our section of the country, should be sown as early in the spring as the weatther will permit: the second Gop not later than the first of July to ensure a full crop, and time to feed green. A letter from M. P. of New York, says: I last year, sowed about two acres of corn broad cast. Though I neither measured nor weighed the crop. it was so abundant and profitible, as green and dry fodder, that I intend to do the same while I have a Farm. - Albany Cullicator. The following letter describes the mode of proceeding: The manner in which I proceed, is to low he land as usual for corn, and about the same time. Then lay it off in forrows a fuot wide, and two and a half feet distant from each other, so as to minit a small horse to ploy between the rows. Spread manure in the furgive, and then sow southern corn on the manure so that the seeds. may be six urseven inches apart, and cover them the same depth corn is when plagted. Southern corn whil afford a much greater deantity than North-
