Philada., July 12th, 28--1y · LAUCKS' RHEUMATIC PRESERVATIVE : FOR SALE, WHOLESALE AND RETAIL, BY SAMUEL LAUCKS, Proprietor, East King st. Lancaster city.

Young Hamilton, seeing his parents waiting for his approach with outstretched arms, with modest demeanor and accelerated steps, threw himself in-to the arms of his mother, who hid her face in his bosom, overcome by his feelings of silent joy from thence he tore himself to grasp his father's hand in a long and cordial shake, and ended by receiving and returning the enraptured embraces of his sisters. As soon as this highly dramatic scene was over, one sudden burst of huzzas re-sounded through the room. The flag was paraded and marched around the room to the tune of Hail Columbia-after which it was brought to Mrs. Madison and laid at her feet, but she did not tread on it as some of the opposition papers alleg-ed. You may well suppose that this new and unexpected feature in the ceremony, gave an increased zest to the entertainment, and that it went off with charming and enhanced gusto. Young Hamilton was a very handsome officer, and invested as he was with the virgin honors of this great naval victory, which dissolved the charm of British invincibility on the ocean, was the synosure of all the fair eyes present ; but he bore his triumph and his honors meekly. He was promoted to a Lieutenancy, and in that capacity was cut in two by a chain shot in the action of the President with the Endymion, or rather a British squadron, off the coast of Rhode Island, a few months after while he was bravely discharging his duty under the gallant Decatur.

The BREED OF LOCOMOTIVES .- The editor of the N. Y. Commercial confesses to "a lurking affection for anything that can be made to go," and having heard that a locomotive had recently run on the Long Island Railroad ninety-six miles in two hours and twenty inine minutes, running time, he "resolved to make the engine's acquaintance and learn who had breathed into it such an inpetuous spirit." He thus describes it; under the head of "A Good'un to Go :"

We called at the depot, where the noble creature stood in his capacious stable and run our eye over his proportions which were singularly beauti-ful and symetrical; every joint was firmly knit, and his barrel tound and full-formed. W. were cautious, however, to keep off his track, for it was plain at a glance that there wasa fiery nature within him that might prompt him to show off a little and we were "sorter" suspicious that we could not keep ahead of a creature that could trot a hundred miles in a hundred and fifty minutes, well weighed, too. It would be rather to long a heat without training. We were told that this "good'un to ga" was raised at Paterson Iron Works, by Rogers, Ketchum & Grosvenor - meaning that the engine was made by those gentlemen. Indeed, they had left their mark upon him, baving branded their names upon his flank in letters that will not easily be effaced. The railroad company have christened him "Btooks," though to one thinking he can outstrip any brooks that we ever saw from the Nisgara at the Palls down to the sluggish Mississippi. He ought to have been called "Young Lightning." The cream of the joke is, that these same Paterson gentlemen-Messrs. Rogers, Ketchum & Grosr-are raising another engine, to be called "New York"-this city, of course, is always shead-that, on an even course and with equal weight, is to beat "Brooks" by several lengths ;and we suppose they'll do it. It was a caution to see "Brooks" start. A few additional cars were no object, any more than a flying squirrel would be behind Fashion's rider. As soon as he got his nose outside the depot gates the began to snort impatiently, "Clear the track!" this distended nostrils, a sort of contemptuous sugh! ugh! that was loud enough to shake one's nerves, the driver gently tickled him with a small piece of iron, you saw the creature's sinewy muscles gathering play, there was a momentary flash of the scubeam upon his polished sides, and the creature was out of sight, We know some locomotives that would be vastly improved by cross with the Patterson Iron Work breed.
