MM BLACK OF BEARGRASS. Jim Black was one of those persons usually designated thard customers,' and in his case the term aptly applied. A careless devil that could whip his weight in wild cats, and care no more for a tustle with a bear than a fisticuil with one of his neighbors, for Jim was 'cock of the walk' on ! the head waters of Beargrass. Although he had the good will of most of the neighbors, yet none of the folks in them diggins' fett inclined to a nearer relationship with him. Of this fact he seemed pretty well satisfied, for he never attempted any flictation with any of the fair ones of Bearany flittation with any of the fair ones of Beargrass. It happened that when Jim had reached

Philadelphia Sejat 27th, 1815. two of the tallest gals you ever did see, as Jim described them. One of them, Nancy, took his eye tarnation strong, and he concluded to sit right up to her.' Jim had heard it always took two to make a bargain ; but the parsibility of a third person coming into contact never for a moment entered his mind. Things progressed smoothly, we may say brapidly, for a short time, when Nancy's father took it into his head he ought to have something to say in the matter .-This bothered Jim amazingly, and came near a broken bones or two for the old gentleman; but finally, Iim was ordered from the promises, with the request that he would forever after keep as far as possible from that plantation. This was a sail go for Jim; but, in the carnestness of a stout heart, to determined never to give it up so, and he sat his wits to work to out-general the old man. The gal was on his side, and why should nt he? 'The track of the real genuine lover, always was crook-

the cabin on the following Sunday and be gone the whole day, it was proposed that Jim should spend the day with Nancy, that they might mature their plan for plutting the blind upon the old foil s. Sunday came, and according to agreement the family left home, to visit a neighbor, and Jun left home to visit Nancy. The day passed off as days will underlike circumstances, until near sun-down. It occurred to Nancy that there could be no im propriety in just stepping to the door, to see if the old folks were coming. Oh, crackee, Jim, here they come; hide yourself or the old man will hide Here, jump into this barrel, quick !' . Turnation!' said Jim, as he soused himself into the barrel. What pigs !' asked the old man. Why the pigs out tother side of the cornfield. No sooner were the words out of her mouth than the old folks, and young ones too, except Nancy and Jim, were off to see after the pigs.

I say, Nance, it's a mighty hot place here, said Jim: 'can't a feller come out now?' he a-ked. Well I guess they can Jim; but you must cloar out quick, for they will be back right away. Jim-eleared the barrel at one bound, and said If that ain't the hottest place about this house, then I give in. But I say, Nance, that yarn of yourn about the pigs is full out as slick as that soft soap, but it don't hurt half so bad.' farmer's Department.

Tur Husnandman .- I am a true laborer. I earn that I cat, get that I wear, owe so man linte, envy no man's happiness; glad of other men's good, content with my farm and the greatest of my pride is to see my ewes graze and my lambs.

Such is the picture of a husbandmanishing drawn by the unerring pencil of Shakspeare, and such the sentiment we would endeavor to instil into the minds of our readers. In the structure of our animal economy, a wise provision has been made for its healthy action, by giving employment to body and mind as necessary to procure the com-forts of life, without eating the bread of idleness, and thus deteriorating in muscular strength, and in a capacity or taste, for the enjoyment of all that is rich, rare, and beautiful in the Garden of Nature. Let us for an instant transport the eyo to yonder field! See the strong arm guiding the plough and delving the earth for treasures whose riches shall be revealed to him at the harvest time! See him gazing with admiration upon the waving corn-the bleating flocks-the clustering treesthe neat cottage, and a thousand other things tofill this soul with gratitude and praise! That man is the envy of Kings, with a landed title securer than the throne on which they sit, and happier far-than he that wears the diadem. He earns that heeats,' and his food thus becomes sweeter to his. taste from the fact that be has labored for it. But there are many who seem discontented: with the endearments of a rural life, and sigh for pent-up atmosphere of a crowded city. To, such we would say, shake off the delusion! The gilded drapery of fushion, the pride and pomp of gloated wealth may, for a moment, dazzle the eye,...but when we look around us for the comforts and quietude of our own peacoful cottage, we will soon perceive that these trappings cannot give ease to an aching breast, or slumber to a troubled conscience. We love the country—the green open country-and would rather go forth to the field. with spade in hand, and 'earn that we eat' than 'chew the cud of idleness' or bask in the smiles of fashion. Our theatre is there -our dome is the heavens -our curtain the dark blue sky-the sweet seented honey suckle and the green grass are the carpet on which we tread—roses are strewn before us-the tinkling bell awakes, and the rising sun points to our work. Action, that great propellor of the human heart, nerves us for our labors -and as the scene is disclosed, our senses are saluted with sweeter songs and views, than were ever witnessed by the votaries of jewelled halls with their most enrapturing songs. not live in such a country !- Valley Farmer. Cunino Hans .- We copy from The Cultivator,' the following article, which is particularly interesting at this season.

The recipe must be worthy of trial, as we see by the remarks preceeding it, that it is a re-publication at the request of several Farmers-who have tried and know it to be good. For every one hundred pounds of meat, take five pints of good molasses, for five pounds brown sugar.) five ounces saltpetre, and eight pounds rock salt—add three gallons of water, and boil the ingredients over a gentle fire, skimming off that froth or gum as it rises. Continue the boiling till the salt &c., is dissolved. Have the Hams nicely cut and trimmed, packed in casks with the shank end down, as the pickle will thus strike in better. When the pickle prepared as above is sufficiently cool, pour it over the hams. They may he in pickle from two to six weeks, according to the size of the pieces or the state of the weather-more time being required in cold than in warm weather. Beef or mutton hams, or tongues intended for smoking and drying, may be cured according to this mode, and will be found excellent. There are other modes of pickling hams which are much esteemed in various countries. In that excellent and agreeable, work entitled 'Farming for Ladies,' we find the following directions for preparing the celebrated Hambro Pickle, which is said to be equally applicable to beef, pork, tongues, &c. To each gallon of water, put one pound and a half of common salt a quarter of a pound of coarse brown sugar, and one ounce of IN MANY INSTANCES CHEAPER THAN PHILADAL, PRICES,] saltpetre; boiled, and to be carefully scummed .---POTTSVILLE. tinguished German Chemist asserts, that our clothing is to be considered nearly in the light of an equivolent for a certain amount of food.' In all situations where the body is kept warm and com-fortable by the protection of suitable garments, the demand for food in order to sustain the natural unctions, of the systems, will be less than where the protection is scanty, or but ill adapted to subserve the purpose for which it is designed. Now For sile this observation applies with no less force to the management of domestic animals, than the management of ourselves and our children. A cow orced to stand exposed to the weather in inclenent seasons, to repose on the cold ground, or in barn or hovel where the piercing night-blasts have free access, necessarily requires a far larger amount of food than one carefully sheltered and provided with a comfortable stall and bed. The difference in the amount or food consumed by animals treated in the different styles above indicated, has been demonstrated by actual and repea-ted experiments, to be from 25 to 100 per cent. in favor of the latter! But this is not all. Exposure topifies and emaculates the system, para-lyzes the functions of the stomach, and opens a door for the introduction of many a fearful disease. An animal habitually exposed to cold, usually falls away. If a cow, she shrinks her milk, if an ox, he will experience a loss of vivacity and become stupid and inert, and but feebly prepared to ans-wer the often exhorbitant drafts made upon his muscular powers under the yoke 'A merciful man is merciful to his beast.
