ST. VALENTINES' DAY.

A week from to morrow is St. Valentines' Day -a day devoted to the interchange of friendly troduced. feelings and the warmer emotions of youthful hearts. There are many persons whose bosoms are throbbing with the excitement of passion whom modesty restrains from giving utterance to their sentiments. To all such, St, Valentines' Day is welcome. They have then an opportinity of declaring in writing or by emblems, those feelings which the tongue cannot utter without faltering. But as a 'general thing St. Valentines' of our citizens, and we hope that the Legislature Day is an occasion of sport and frolic, and the epistles interchanged are either of a humorous or a serious character. There is no day which furinishes better apportunities for fun, and young people are generally cager to enjoy it.

The origin of St. Walentine's Day is a little uncertain, but the most rational account we have the Canal & Railcoul Companies, in fixing their seen, and probably the most correct one is given by an English outhor Mr. Donce, who explains _it as follows: "St. Valentine was a Priest of Rome -it was" But believing that they did not possess the power the custom in that ancient city to celebrate the to make such an appropriation under their present Lupercalia, which were feasts in honor of Juno. charters, application has been made to the Legis, On this occasion amidst a variety of ceremonies the names of young women were deposited in a Vase, from which they were drawn by the men rizing these companies to make the appropriation, as chance directed. > The New York Express gives the following explanation of the publication of Gen. Taylor's letter, which it is admitted was addressed to Gen. Gaines, and by his consent given to the public :

GEN. TAYLOR AND HIS LETTER. When in Washington, some days since, we scertained beyond all question, that the Administration was intrigueing for the overthrow of Gen. Taylor, and that in nearly all their political cir-

The is to prevent the Navigation Company from using intrigue began last autumn, and it was an intrigue their own property, with the hope of obtaining to displace what Mr. Ficklin called a "Whig Ge- the control of the Company's boats, and renew neral,"-solely because he was a General, imburd with and educated in Whig Principles. As the Administration had not the courage to displace

Gen. Taylor, of whose splendid achievements it was becoming jealous, and fearful, lest they should eclipse their more humble doings in the eves of the Public ! Mr. Polk took to his councils Mr. Benton, when it was resolved to recommend the appointment of a Vice Roy; or Licut. General, which place, Mr. Benton was to fill. In this way Gen. Taylor at first was to be superseded -but the Administration had not even the courage to take this responsibility. Subsequently it was agreed that Gen. Scott, a Whig General, should be sent out to supersede Gen, Taylor, another Whig General, when, soon after, Mr. Ben-ton should be sent out as Vice Roy over both. In this way the conduct of the war was to be taken out of the old hands of the Army, and put in the hands of the Politicians. Thus, the magnanimity for which the Administration was credited in sending out Gen. Scott, turns out to be only a miserable intrigue to use him to supersede Gen. Taylor, in order subsequently to supersede both by Mr. Benton.

Becoming aware of these intrigues among the politicians testing at their case in Washington, injure the gallant old . Hero, who has immortalized himself on the bloody fields of the Rio Grande, and on the heights of the Sierra Madre, and whose good conduct has rescued the Administitution from the disgrace its own measures already prepared for it, we felt it our duty to obtain, and to publish the simple and artless defence he had made of himself in a private letter to a triend.

and without reference to publication. It was the military defence one soldier was making of him. self to another, and it was but right that the country should see it. Although he (Gen. Taylor) had done wonders with his means, yet, as the Administration were supplanting him, ostensibly for not doing more, it was but fair the country should see why no more could be done. Generation

Taylor himself, desirous only of being recalled, n order to attend to his now suffering private offairs, unambitious of place or honor, w ould neve have taken the trouble to make any public defence of himselt; but when there was a defence of him, in the hands of another soldier, scarred by wounds paper, giving a total it was but natural that that defence should appear in the public prints. In the rigid military despotisms of Europe, such a publication may be a breach of military etiquette; but in a Republican country like ours, it is hard if not impossible, to suppress discussion, and, therefore, such information n as may enlighten whatever discussion is going on.

risburg Telegraph, I had the pleasure of seeing the name of our oble Representative A. W. Ley burn, E.q., mentioned as a fit and prominent man for the office of Canal Commissioner. I have had the pleasure of his acquaintance for number of years and can testify to his moral worth, his devotion to the interests of his country, and his zeal and indefatigable industry in every trust that has been confided to him: -His industry and actions in the present session of our Legislature are known to all.

As a Canal Commissioner his perfect knowledge of Public works, will enable him to perform he ardious duties of this office, now so ably per formed by the present worthy members of the Board, and I am sure that Schuylkill county and Pennsylvania will have no need to regret his nomination, and that he will gain nearly the unanimous vote of those sections of the State where he is so well and favorably known.

Mr. Leyburn has been engaged on Public Works as Contractor and otherwise for a number of years, and every trust that has been confided in him, has been honorably and faithfully performed; he is perfectly conversant with all the Public Works of our State in all their numerous details, and I think no one will give more satisfaction to the State for his County as Canal Commissioner than Mr, Leyburn, for he is, honest and capable having always the strictest eye to economy in the duties entrusted to him; and to be relied on as a man that would carry out the interests of the State at large.
