Solling .- Dr. H. A. Field, at a late meeting of the New York Parmers Club, stated that this method of soiling was as follows: Fo select a picce of land neither wet nor-very dry, and make it rich as possible by manuring. In September sow rye ; double seed it—it will come early in the spring; then sow oats, clover, and the common field pea, which will be of a heavy growth. After the rye is of, sow Indian corn broad cast, cut the stalke before it has tasselled. You can have two or more crops of cutting in a season by beginning early, and continuing to sow for several woels in succession. Thus you can sow rye in Septemsuccession. I nus you can sow rye in Septem-ber, oats, peas and clover early in spring, and corn in early summer. If this green food should should cause distrohea, give the cows for a while dry feed. He said that four of his cows soiled in a summer after this plan, had yielded about $300 worth of milk the past year, sold to certain lioles.
