Medicines.

THE constantly increasing popularly and cale of B A. Fahnestock's Vermiting has induced persons who are envious of its success to palm off upon the public preparations which all medical men know to be inefficacious in experiing worms from the system.
This Vermilige has made its way rato public favour pon the ground of its own intrinsic merits, more han any other medicine of the kind now used; and shile many worin remedies have by dint of puffing been forced into sale, and shortly after gone into the obscurity which their worthlessness justly mer-ited. B. A. Fhanestock's Vermiuge continues to be triumphantly sustained. It has only to be used and its effects will fully sustain all that is said of its wonderful expelling power.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY,

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR CONSUMPTON

And the best Medicine known to Man for the cure of sthma, of every stage, Liver Complaints, Bronchitis, Influenza, Coughs, Coulds, Bleeding of the Lungs, Shortness of Breath, pains and weakness in the side, breast, &c.;
and all other diseases of the medicine of the Pulmonity Organs.

A VERY important diseases over which this 'Balsam' exets a very powerful influence, is that of a DIS-EASED LIVER. In this complaint it has undoubtedly proved more efficacious than any remedy intertice employed, and in numerous instances when patients had endured long and severe suffering from the disease, without receiving the least benefit from 'various remedies, and when MERCURY has been resorted to in vain, the use; of this Balsam has restored the LIVER to a healthy action, and in many instances effected PERMANENT CURES, aber every known remedy had failed to produce this effect.

It not only emanates from a regular Physician, but has also been well tested in all the complaints for which it is recommended. It la not my intentior, therefore, either to cloak it in mystery, or in any was deceive the public by overrating its virtues; on the contrary, I shall simply endeavor to give a brief statement of its u-follows, and flatter myself that its urprising efficacy will enable me to furnish such proofs of its virtues as will satisfy the most increditious, that Constumption may and 'CAN BE CURED,' if this medicine be resorted to in time.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Sept. 18, 1845.

Mr. Seth W. Fowle:

Dear Sir:—The character of Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry is so well established throughout the country, and respecially in the State of New York, that any further testimony would seem to be unecessary. Yet I have derived so much advantage from it that I am, happy to communicate through you to the sick and afflicted, what it has done for me and I consider the neighbour and definited when the sick and afflicted what it has done for me and I consider the neighbour and definite or the sick and the sic sick and afflicted, what it has done for me and i consider tip privilege and duty to do so. The Forest Tree. By Eliza Cook.

Up with your heads, ye sylvan lords: Wave proudly in the breeze! For our cradle band and cofin boards Must come from the forest trees. We blass ye for your summer shade, When our week limbs fail and tire: Our thanks are due for your winter aid, When we pile the bright log fire.

Oh: where would be our rule on the sea,
And the fame of the sailor band,
Were it not for the oak and the cloud-cap'd pine
That spring on the quiet land? When the ribs and masts of the good ship live,

And wen ther the gale with case, Take his glass from the far who will not give A health to the forest trees Ye lend to life its earliest joy, And wait on its latest page; In the circling hoop for the rosy boy, And the easy chair for age.

The old man totters on his way, With footsteps short and slow; But without the stick for his help and stay, Not a yard's length could be go. The hazel twig in the stripling's hand : Hath magic power to please; And the trusty staff and slender wand Are pluck'd from the forest trees.

Ye are seen in the shape of the blessed plow And the merry ringing flail; Ye shine in the doom of the monarch's home And the sacred alter rail. In the rustic porch, the wainscotted wall.

In the gay triumphal car; the rude-built but or the banquet hall-No matter-there ye are! Then up with your heads, ye sylvan lords:
Wave proudly in the breeze;
From our crudle bands to our cofin boards
We're in debt to the forest trees.

From the National Intelligencer. THE ORPHAN BOY.

"He faded, yet so calm and meek,... So gently wan, so gently weak." The bustle of the fight was over; the prisoners lapsed into midnight quiet and repose. I sought my hammock and soon fell a leep. But my slumbers were disturbed by wild dreams, which, like the visions of a fever, agitated and unnerved me; he late strife, the hardships of thy early life, and a thousand other things mingled together as fig. ures in a phantasmagoria. Suddenly a hand was laid on my shoulder, and starting up I beheld the surgeon's mate. "Little Dick, sir, is dying," he said. At once I sprang from my hammock. Little Dick was a sort of protege of mine. He was a pale, delicate child, said to be an orphan, and used o gentle nature; and from the first hour I joinedthe schooner, my heart yearned towards him, for I too had once been friendless and alone in the world. He had often talked to me in confidence of his mother, whose memory the regarded with holy reverence, while to the other boys of the ship e had little to say, for they were rude and coarse he delicate and sensitive. Often when they jeer ed him for his melancholy, he would go apart by nimself and weep. He never complained of his lot, though his companions imposed on him con-tinually. Poor lad! his heart was in the grave inst as a sabre stroke was levelled at me : and interposing his feeble cutlass had averted the deadly blow. In the hurry and confusion since, I had quite forgotton to inquire if he was hurt, though at the time I inwardly resolved to exert all my influence to procure him a mid-hipman's warrant in requital for his service. It was with a pang of reproschful agony therefore, that I leaped o my feet.

"My God!" I exclaimed, "you don't mean it Ie is not dying ?" "I fear, sir," said the messenger, shaking his ead sadly, "that he cannot live till m in ing. "And have I been lying idly here!" I exclaim l with remorse. " Lead me to him !" "He is delerious, but in the intervals of lunacy ne asks for you, sir," and as the man spoke we stood beside the bed of the dying boy.

The sufferer did not lie in his usual hammock.

or it was hung in the very midst of the crew, and he close air around it was too stiffing; but he had een carried under the open hatchway and laid here in a little open space of about four feet square From the sound of the ripples, I judged the school er was in motion, while the clear, calm, blue .ky een through the opening overhead and dotter ith myriads of stars, betokened that the for had broken away. How calm it smiled down on the wan face of the dying boy! Occasionally a higher current of wind-Oh! how deliciously cool in the pent up hold—eduied down the hatchway, and lifted the dark chestnut locks of the sufferer, as with nis head reposing in the lap of the old seteran, he lay in an unquiet slumber. His shirt collar was unbuttoned, and his childish bosom, as white as hat of a girl, was open and exposed. He breathed suick and heavily. The wound of which he was dying had been intensely painful, but within th ast half hour had somewhat fulled, though even now his thin fingers tightly grasped the bed lather, as if he suff red the greatest agony. A pattle-stained and grey-haired seaman stoo eside him, holding a dull lantern in his hand, and gazing sorrowfully down upon the sufferer. The urgeon knelt with his finger on the boy's pulse. As I approached they all looked up. The ve-teran who held him shook his head, and would have spoken; but the tears gathered too chokingly The surgeon said: "He is going fast, poor litle fellow, do you see this?" As he spoke he lifted up a rich gold locket, which had lain upon the boy's breast, "He has seen better days," I could not answer for my heart was full-he was the being to whom, but a few hours before, I had owed my life—a poor, slight, unprotected child—lying before me with death already written on his brow-and vet I had never known his dan ger and never sought him out after the conflict. How bitterly my heart reproached me in that hour. They noticed my agitation, and his old friend, the seaman that held his head, said sadly : . Poor little Dick, you'll never see the shore you have wished for so long. But there'll be more than one-when your log's out," he spoke with notion-"to mourn over you." Suddenly the little fellow, opened his eyes and aked racantly around.

"Has he come yet?" he asked in a low voice. Why won't he come?" "I am here," said I, taking the little fellow's and, "don't you know me, Dick?" He smiled faintly in my face. He then said:

"You have been very kind to me, sir-kinder than most people are to a poor orphan boy. I have no way to show my gratitude, unless you will take the Bible von will find in my trunk. It's a small offering I know, but it's all I have." I hurst into tears—he resumed.

"Doctor, I am dying, ain't I!" said the little fellow, "for my sight grows dim. God bless you,

"Can I do anything for you, Dick !" said I, Tyon saved my life. I would coin mine to buy "I have nothing to ask-I don't want to liveonly, if it spossible, let me be buried by mother—you'll find the name of the place and all about it in my trunk." "Anything-everything, my poor lad," I answered chokingly.

The little fellow smiled faintly—it was like an angel's smile—but he did not answer. His eyes were fixed on the stars flickering in that patch of blue sky overhead. His mind wandered.

"It is a long, long ways up there-but there are bright angels among them. Mother used to say that I would meet her there. How near they come and I see sweet faces smiling on me from among them. Hark! is that music?" and lifting his finger he seemed listening for a moment. He fell child was dead. Did he indeed hear angel voices?

God grant it! who has been detected in extensive cheating a cards, is announced by a correspondent of the Etats Unis, to have " embarked for America, that asylum reserved by Nature for unappreciated accomplishnents and victims to European prejudices." exposure of this gentleman, who held a most honor able commission as one of the corps of officers at tached to the service of the Tuileries, took place at the races of Chantilly, which had drawn out the entire sporting and dissipated world of Paris, male and fomale. There was an endeavor to hush up the affair, and the most prompt offers were made of refunding to the losers, but the rumor had flown with too great rapidity. The culprit had the hardshood, however, to present himself to the Prince for orders, the next morning, as usual. He was received with, "Begone, sir! Send in your forfeited commission in, fifteen minutes, and depart immediately for America?" It had been secured, and the deck washed down, the watch piped and the schooner had once more relapsed into midnight quiet and repose. TAKE CARE OF YOUR HABITS .- It is just about n vaingfor a man somewhat long in life, to alter himself materially; to change fixed fiabite of years' growth and long suffering; he must go on pretty much in the same way and shape.

His general habits of life are fixed—and his character is shaped and fixed—fixed by the growth of years-if not, it is no character at all. He is like a tree that has attained t. full size-a permanent form and bearing. You may lop off a few of the branches, and transform it a little in this way; but t o.c is the same trunk, and the same bearing, and essentially the same character. Thus a man may rid himself of a few habits, or modify them somewhat; but his general character remains radically unaftered. Not so with his reputation, entirely. This is a thing of not such permanency and immutability. It is a thing more apparent, and less real, subject to shades of change from varying positions and other circumstances. Charneter is the substance; reputation the shadow only, thus failed to produce this effect.

He sides its a-tonoshine efficacy in the disease above mentioned, we also find it a very effectual remedy in ASTHMA, a complaint in, which it has been extensively used with decided success, even in cases of years standing.

It is a tonoshine efficacy in the disease above with his lost parents.

I took a stronge interest in him, and had light-since characteris but a "bundle of habits," that years have been picking up and combining; and late fight I had owed my life to him, for he rushed when combined, you may sumbilate the composilonger and sometimes shorter. How important tion but you cannot alter it. It is no easy ma ter to drop habits even those that hang most love ly upon the outside. We have an attachment to them, or they have an attachment to us, which is iot readily se; crated. They are like an old pair of shoes, which, though there are no advantages attending them, sal they are easy and we are loth o "cast them off." They are like an old hat, which, though it has become "seedy" and unsightly, still sits comfortably on our head, and we dread e breaking of a new one.

THE FALLEN BROTHER .- A man possesses an extremely low and grovelling mind, who rejoices at the downfall of another. A noble heart, instead of denouncing as a consummate scoundrel, one who has erred, will throw around him the mantle of charity and the arms of love, and labor to bring nim back to duty and to God. We are not our own keepers. Who knows when we shall so far forget ourselves as to put forth a right hand and sin ? Heaven keep us in the narrow path. Bur if we should full, where would be the end of our every brow we read revenge? Deeper and deepwould we descend in the path of infamy; when if a different course were pursued, and a different spirit were manifested toward us, we might have tayed our career of sin, and died an upright and

THE QUESTION SETTIBO. - Major General Pilow, while on a recent visit to his family, took occasion to say, in the hearing of many persons, that Gen.
