Mr. Seth W. Fowle:

Dear Sir:—The character of Wistar's Baisam of Wild Cherry is so well established throughout the country, and especially in the State of New York, that any further testimony would seem to be uncessary. Yet I have derived so much advantage from it that I am happy to communicate through you to the sick and afflicted, what it has done for me and I consider it a privilege and duty to do so. I have been troubled, with weak lungs for four years; had a cough more or less every winter. A BACCHIC ODE.

By James Bayard Taylor. Wine! bring wine! Let the crystal beaker shine, Brimming o'er with the draught divine! The crimson glow
Of the lifted cup on my forehead throw,
Like the sunset's flush on a field of snow I burn to lave
My eager lip in the purple wave;
Freedom bringeth the wine so brave:

Whose glow was caught From the warmth which Fancy's summer brought To the vintage-fields in the Land of Thought! Rich and free
To my thirsting soul will the goblet be,
Poured by the Hebe, Poesy!

HAPPE MOTHER'S SONG. From the German.

Look at me, my pretty boy.
With thy golden ringlets flowing,
Bright blue eyes, and cheeks all glowing;
Was there ever such a one?
No, I'm sure there can be none. Look at me, my sweetest boy;
Rosy as the summer morning,
Sweet as the dew the leaves adorning;
Was there ever such a one?
No, I'm sure there can be none.

no, I'm sure there can be none.

No, I'm sure there can be none.

No, I'm sure there can be none. ok at me, my darling boy,
No bad naughty boy could ever
Be so loved and lovely—never;
You may wish for one as fipe,
But, good folks, you can't have mine!

Should a merchant come to buy,
Let him ope his golden coffers,
Would I take his richest offers!
Never—buy wher'er he can,
He should not get my pretty man.

WHAT A PAIR OF ANDIRONS COST By Peter Piper, Jr.

"Peter," said my uncle, knocking the ashes from his pipe, and laying it on the corner stone of the mantel piece, and then fixing his eyes on the irons, "Peter, these andirons cost me one thousand

"Dear me!" exclaimed my aunt. " Oh! father !" cried the girls. "True—every word true. One thousand did I say! Yes, two thousand—full two thousand dol-air, which showed no doubt of his being able to prove his assertion, he began : "Well, you see, a good many years ago, we had a pair, of common old andirons. Your cousin Letty says one day: 'Father, don't you think these old andirons are getting too shabby?' Shab-by or not, I thought they would hold up the wood as nicely as if they were made of gold. So I paid no attention to Letty. I was afraid she was grow ing proud. Soon after that, Peter," continued my uncle, "your sunt took it up-"

"There it goes," interrupted my sunt, "you an't get along without dragging me in." "Your aunt took it up, Peter, and she said our neighbors could afford brass andirons, and were no better off than we were. And she said Letty and her sister Jane were just getting old enough to see company, and the stingy looking old andirons might hurt their market. I knew that women will always have their own way, and there was no use in objecting, and so I got the andirons.

The price of their was ten dollars and a half—"

"Ah! that's more like it," cried my nunt. thought you said two thousand, dollars.' "My dear, I wish you would not interrupt me. Ten and a helf. The next day a mason was sent for to examine it. He came in my absence, and when I returned home your cousins and aunt all beset me at once to have a marble slab. The mason had convinced them the hearth would not look decent without a marble slab, and they put their heads together."

"La me!" exclaimed my aunt, " there was no putting any heads together about it. The hearth was a real old worn out thing, not fit for a pigpen." saying, and continued till I got a marble hearth, which cost me twenty dollars; yes, twenty dollars at least. Then I thought I was done with expenses, but I thought, wrong. Pretty soon I began to hear sly hints thrown out about the brickwork around the fire-place not corresponding with the hearth. I stood out for a month or two against your aunt and the girls, but they at length got the better of me, and I was forced to have marble instead of brick. And then the old wooden mantelpiece was so out of character that it was necessary to have a marble one. . The cost of all this was nearly one hundred dollars. And now that the spirit of improvement had got a start, there was to shame the old white-washed walls, and they must be papered. The wood work had to be painted of course, and to prepare it for paint sun-dry repairs were necessary. While this was going on, your aunt and the girls appeared to be quite satisfied, and when it was done, they had no idea the old parlor could be made to look so spruce.

"Sixteen hundred." Here aunt began to yawn, Letty to poke the fire and Jane to twirl over the leaves of a book. " A new carriage came next, Peter, that cost two hundred dollars."

" Bighteen hundred." "Then there was a lawn to be laid out and neatly fenced-a servant to be hired-parties given occasionally-bonnets and dresses double the ormer cost, and a hundred other little expenses in keeping with the new order of things. And all this grew out of these very andirons. Yes, Peter,

I was entirely within bounds when I said two housand dollars" The opposition was silenced. My sunt immedistely rose and guessed it was bed-time. I was eft alone with my uncle, who was not inclined to drop the subject. He was a persevering man, and never gave up what he undertook, till he had done the work thoroughly. So he brought out his books and accounts, and set about making an exact estimate of the expenses. He kept me up till after midnight before he got through. His conclusion was that the pair of andirons cost him twenty four DONIPHAN AND XENOPHON.-Theed. tor of the New York Evening Post, compares Col. Doniphan's expedition from Missouri through New Mexico to the mouth, of the Rio Grande with the famous expedition of the five hundred Greeks under the renowned leader of nearly similar name, Col. Xenophon. The last has become classic, because it was told in so charming a manner by Xenophon, and all Doniphan has to do, is to write as perfect a history of his expedition to make it be read with admiration two thousand years hence. The Greeks were led from near Bab. ylon through Amenia to the Black Sea, and thence to Chrysopolis; three thousand four hundred and sixty-five English miles. It was accomplished in vas a real old worn out thing, not fit for a pigpen."

"They put their heads together, Peter, as I was unknown, mountainous, and hostile country, and in an inclement season, the Greeks losing every thing except their lives and arms. Doniphan and the Missourians travelled over six thousand miles in twelve months, neither receiving supplies nor money, but living exclusively on the country to the Attorney General for his opinion. through which they passed, and supplying them selves with powder and balls by capturing them from the enemy. -My Dear Sir :-- As you have kindly noticed my visit to your town in the last number of your paper, I may be permitted to say, that this visit was not altogether a visit of pleasure, though much of the latter has resuited from it. The twenty-five children I took along with me, partly belonged to my day-school, and partly to my Sunday school. They had for some time been taught by me to sing, and to speak in public. Besides cultivating in them a taste for music, I hoped to attain by this course several other objects. I expected that the literary merits of the pieces they spoke would not be lost upon them in furnishing them with models of composition; I, at least, desired that the moral sentiments lying at the foundation of the whole movement, would sink deeply into their hearts; I proposed to do something towards introducing them into that, state of feeling and ection, which belongs to what truly deserves to be called, good society; and in some instances I meant to reach the hearts of the parents, through their children telling them in this way what I wished them to know and to do; whether I have not altogether falled in this attempt, I shall leave you to judge at soon as I shall be able to accept the invitation which has been tendered to me of paying another visit to your town. The manner in which the children, as well asmyself, have been received by the Bov. Mr. Minnig and his friends, has certainly been calculated to lead me to repeat my visit as soon as possible. In conclusion, I beg leave to say to you, that your triend, the Rev. Herman Bokum," (I quote from the last number of your paper) more than three years ago, on his own accord, desired the ecclesiastical body with which he stood connected to permit him to withdraw from the ministry, and that ever since that time, when entering more especially upon religious ground, he has claimed no other character than that of a lay-missionary. But if I am thus compelled to decline the clerical title you have given me, I shall be very happy

Very respectfully, your friend.
