WILD CHERRY. THE GREAT REMEDY FOR CONSUMPTION
And the best Medicine known to Man for the cure of the Lungs, Shortness of Breath, pains and weakness in the side, breast, &c., and all other diseases of the Pulmonary Organs

weakness in the side, breast, &c., and all other diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

A VERY important disease over which this 'Balsam' exets a very powerful influence, is that of a DISEASED LIVER. In this complaint it has undoubtedly proved more efficacious than any remedy hitherto employed, and in numerous instances when patients had endured long and severe suffering from the disease, without receiving the least benefit from various remedies, and when MERCURY has been resorted to in vain, the use of this Balsam his restored the LIVER to a healthy action, and in many instances effected PERMANENT. CIVERS, after every known remedy had failed to produce this effect.

Besides its astonishing efficacy in the disease above mentioned, we also find it a very effectual remedy in ASTIMA, a complaint in which it has been extensively used with decided success, even in cases of years standing.

It not only emanates from a regular Physician, but has also been well tested in all the complaints for which it is recommended. It is not my intentior, therefore, either to cloak it in mystery, or in any was deceive the public by overrating its virtues; on the contrary, I shall simply endeavor to give a brief statement of its usefulness, and flatter myself that its surprising efficacy will enable me to furnish such poofs of its virtues as will satisfy the most incredulous, that Consumption may and 'CAN BE CURED, if this medicine he resorted to in time.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Sept. 18, 1845.

Mr. Seth W. Fowle:

Dear Sir:—The character of Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry is so well established throughout the country, and especially in the State of New York, that any further testimony would seem to be unecessary. Yet I have derived so much advantage from it that I am happy to communicate through you to the sick and afflicted, what it has done for me and I consider sary. Yet I have derived so much advantage from it that I am happy to communicate through you to the sick and afflicted what it has done for me and I consider sick and afflicted, what it has done for me and I consider it a privilege and duty to do sg. I have been troubled with weak lungs for four years; had a cough more or less every winter. I was confined to the house all last winter with a severe cough, pain in the side and breast; raised bloods everal times. I consulted a physician, but have never taken any medicine which has done me so much good as WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY. I consider it the BEST medicine in the world for Colds, Coughs, and Pulminary Complaints.

OPLYION OF A REGULAR PHYSICIAN. Sexiet, Me., Sept. 30, 1845.

This certifies that I have recommended the use of WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY for diseases of the Lungs, for two year past, and many bottles to my knowledge have been used by my patients, all with heneficial results. In two cases where it was thought confirmed consumption mad Wild Cherry effected a cure.

E. BOYDEN, Physician at Exter Corner.

NO QUACKERY! NO DECEPTION!

All published statements of cures performed by this medicine, are, in every respect, TRUE.

BEWARR OF COUNTERFEITS AND IMITATIONS.—The unparalleled and astonishing efficacy of Dr. Wistar's Baisam of Wild Cherry in all the diseases for which it is recommended, curing many cases after the skill of the best physicians was unavailing, has effected a large and increasing demand for it. This fact has caused several unprincipled counterfeiters and imitators to palm off spurious mixtures, of similar name and appearance; for the grouine Baisam.

THE FIRE-FLY! A TALE. From the German.

On the evening of a hot and sultry summer day, Maria, a poor widow, sat at the open window o her little chamber, and gazed out upon the nest orchard that surrounded her cottage. The grass had been mown in the morning, but the heat of the sun had soon dried it. She had already gathered it into heaps, and the sweet smell of the hav now blew into the chamber, as if to retresh and strengthen her after her labor. The glow of sunset was already fading upon the border of the clear and cloudless sky, and the moon shone calm and bright into the little chamber, shadowing the square panes of the half open window, together with the grape vine which acorned it, upon the nicely sanded floor. Little Ferdinand, a boy of six years of age, stood leaning sgainst the window frames, his blooming face and yellow locks, with a portion of his white, clean shirt sleeves, and scarlet vest, were distinctly visible in the iñoon-light. The poor woman was sitting thus to rest herself, perhaps. But oppressive as had been the latwo of their supper, which consisted of a howl of bread and milk Little Ferdinand was also greatly disturbed, but did not speak, because he saw that his mother was so sorrowful. Having observed that his mother, instead of eating, wept bitterly, he had laid saide his spoon; and earthen dish stood upon the table, almost us ful!

Maria was left a widow in the early part of the previous spring. Her deceased husband, one of the worthiest young men in the village, had, by ndustry and economy, saved a sum of money sufficient to purchase a little cottage, with its nest meadow, though not entirely free from incumorance. The industrious man had planted the green and cheerful field with young trees, which already hore the finest fruit. He had chosen Maria for his wife, although, she was a poor orphan. and her parents had been able to give her nothing nore than a good education. He had chosen her ecause she was known as the most pious, industrious and well-behaved maiden in the village .-They had lived happy together, but the typhus fever broke out in the village, and her husband died. Having nursed him with the greatest tenerness, she herself was attacked with it, after his leath, and barely escaped with life.

Her husband's sickness and her own had must even part with her little cottage. Her de- our cottage." ceased hu-band had long labored for the richest peasant in the country, a man by the name of Meyer. The peasant, who highly estcemed him on account of his fidelity and industry, had len: him three hundred crowns to purchase his cottage, with the ground belonging to it, upon the condition that he would pay off fifty crowns yearly, twenty-five in money and twenty-five in labor .--Until the year that he was taken sick, her husband had faithfully performed his agreement, and the debt now amounted to but fifty crowns. Maria debt now amou tnew all this very well. Meyer now died of the same disease. The eirs, a son and daughter-in law, found the note f the three hundred crowns among the papers of he deceased. They did not know a word about the offair, as the old man had never spoken of it band had paid off the whole except fifty crowns .-But all this was of no avail. The young peasant called her a shameless liar, and summoned her before a court of law. As she could not prove that anything had been paid, it was decided that the entire claim against her was valid. The heirs insisted upon payment; and as poor Maria had no-thing but her cottage and ground, this little property must now be sold. She had fallen upon ber knees before the heirs, and had prayed them not to turn her out of doors; little Ferdinand wept with her both wept but all was in vain. The following morning was appointed for the sale.—

She had heard this an hour before, just as she had finished her day's work. A neighbor had called out over the hedge, and told it to her. It was for this reason that she now eat so sorrowful by the open window, glancing now up. helped you !"

time. The early yellow plums, which I picked this morning for Ferdinand, is the last fruit which the poor boy will eat from the trees which his farther planted for him. Yes, this may be the last night we shall spend beneath this roof. By this time to morrow, this cottage will be another's property, and who can say but what we shall be turned out at once. Heaven slone knows where we shall find a shelter to-morrow. Perhaps under the open heaven!" She began to sob vio

Little Ferdinand, who until now had not mored, came forward and weeping said--" Mother, do not cry so bitterly-or elso I cannot talk to you. Do you not know what father said, as he died there on that hed?" Do not weep so, he said; 'God is a father to poor wid-ows and orphans. Call upon him in thy distress, and he will aid thee.' That is what he said, and is it not true then?"

The mother could not sleep that night for joy. Soon after the break of day, she took her way to the judge, who at once sent for the heir. He came. He acknowledged the writing as genuine, and was much ashamed of having slaudered the woman before the court, and at having called her a liar. The judge declared that he owed her some recompense for the shame and great sorlow which he had caused her. The man was not unwilling to make atonement for his injustice. But when the roor woman had related the whole account of her evening prayer, and of the
