AUTUMN. AUTUMN.

I saw old Anumn in the misty morn
Stand shadowless like Silence, listening
To silence, for no lonely bird would sing
Into his hollow car from woods forlorn,
Nor lowly hedge nor isolitary thorn:
Shaking his languid locksjall deey bright
With tangled gossamer that tell by night,
Pearling his corronet of golden corn.
Where are the songs of Shunmer? With the sun,
Op ing the dusky eyeldis of the Soutk
Till shade and silence wisken up as one,
And Morning sings with a warm odorous mouth.
Where are the merry birds? Away, away,
On pantlug wings through the inclement skies,
Lest owls should prey
Undazzled at noon-day,
And tear with horny beak their lustrous eyes.
Where are the blooms of Summer? In the West,

And tear with horny beak their lustrous eyes.

Where are the blooms of Summer? In the West,
Blushing their that to the last sunny hours,
When the mild Eve by sudden Night is prest
Like tearful Proserpine, snatched from her flowers
To a most gloomy breast.
Where is the pride of Summer—the green prime—
The many, many leaves all twinkling? Three
On the mossed elm; three on the naked time
Trembling—and one upon the old oak tree!
Where is the Dryad's immortality?
Gone into mournful cyprus and dark yew,
Or wearing the long; gloomy winter through
In the smooth holdy's green eternity. The squirrel gloats on his accomplished hoard,
The ants have brimmed their garners with ripe grain,
And honey bees have stored
The sweets of Summer in their fuscious tells;
The swallows all have winged across the main;
But here the Antunn melancholy dwells,
And sigh her tearful smalls;

But here the Antumn melancholy dwells,
And sighs her tearful spells
Amongst the sunless sliadows of the plain.
Alone, alone,
Upon a messy stone.
She sits and reckons up the dead and gone,
With the last leaves for a love-resary.
Whilst all the withered world looks drearily,
Like a dim picture of the drowned past
In the hushed mind's mysterious far away,
Doubtful what ghostly thing will steal the last

BRADY & ELLIOTT,

WATCHMAKERS & JEWELLERS, O, go and sit with her, and he o'ershaded O, go and sit with her, and be o'ershaded
Under the lancuid downfall of high hair:
She wears a coronal of fluvers laded
Upon her forehead and a face of eare:
There is enough of withered everywhere
To make her hower—and enough of gloom;
Thère is enough of, sadness to invite.
If only for the rose that died—whose doom
Is Beauty's—she that with the living bloom
Of conscious cheeks most beautifies the light;
There is enough of sorrowing, and quite
Enough of bitterifruits the earth doth bear—
Enough of chilly droppines for her bowl;
Enough of fear and shadowy despair,
To frame her cloudy prison for the soul!

TO MY FRIENDS.

From the French of Beranger. Soon wift old Time, who presses on us fast, y Stamp his advance in wrinkles on the brow; Soon shall we know delicious youth is past. Although its fire he not extincuished now. But to see fresh flowers exhaustless spring, Thicker than those Time tramples into mould, To feel each hour its calm enjoyment bring—This, my dear friends, this is not growing old.

In vain life's spackle seek we to excite.

With joy-diffusing wine and softening song.

Even at the board profile of delight,
We hear our life has been already long;
But till its last departing ray shall pale,
To gaise the cup, though with unsteady hold,
To wake the song, although the voice may fail—
This, my dear triends, this is not growing old.

Kneel me in worship at a coquette's feet,
Woo me the heart that welcomed once our flam
Perhaps we hear the mocking low laugh greet
The passion, she will tell us age should tame;
But quietly our later life to spend.
Indulge less lavishly a heart controlled,
To lose the mistress, but gain the friend—
This, my dear friends, this is not growing old. It may be some years yet before we feel. The genial warmth of passion's joy expire, Bur since old age at last must on us steal, All old together—be our next desire—
Each adding strength the future to defy;
In some warmt corner chirping feasts to hold,
To live upited and united die—
This, my dear friends, this is not growing old.
