6. At every swing of the pendulum, a spirit goes into into eternity. The measure of our life is a hand'sbreadth; it is a tale that is told; its capidity is like the swift shuttle or the flying arrow; it is a brief as the fading flower or the transitory rainbow, or the dazsling meteor; it is a bubble, it is a breath. Between the rising and setting sun forty-two thousand, souls are summoned before their Creator. Death is ever busy night and day, at all seasons, in all climes. Death is a fundamental law of organized matter. Thousands die prematurely, victims of disease, the Inevitable consequences of violated laws of organic life. Disease is the effect of a derangement of physical laws, and can only be cured by remedial means that counteract their influence. If Malina becomes the source of disease, we would not alternpt to neutralize the atmosphere, but our first curative attempt would be to destroy or remove the cause upon which it depends. If Ulcers cover the body and the constitution becomes enervated from imperfect.nutrition and assimilation, our attention must be first directed to this object. For all diseases that take their rise from this source, no remedy yet discovered has proven so valuable as the Panacea. The following testimony is most respectfully offered to an intelligent public and the afflicted.

Having been apprised of the nature of the Panacea, it affords me much pleasure to be able to recommend it as a valuable remedy for those Chronic, Co

Ms. W. J. HAAS.—Having been afflicted for the last thirty years with Consumption, and having had the advice of some of the most eminent Physicians, and was given up as incurable. It was induced to make trial of your invaluable Expectorant, and am happy to say that I am entirely cured, and manttending to my daily occupation as though I had never been afflicted. Previous to taking your EXPECTORANT, I could not, if I had been sodisposed, do anything at my trade. I have since recommended it to several of my, friends, and particularly one case of Conviewed Consumerion, and am happy to state that in every instance it had the desired effect.

MINERS' JOURNAL

Saturday Morning, Dec. 4 1847. EF The Court House Location .- We have observed with some regret, letters in the Philadelphia papers, purporting to have been written by citizens of this place, which endeavor to convey the impression that much disatisfaction exists in our Borough relative to the site selected, by the Commissioners for the new Court House. We need scarcely add, that the greatest possible unanimity exists among our citizens concerning that subject, and that there is no impediment so, are ready and willing to contribute when called upon. It has, however, been suggested (not from any fears as to the required amount not likely to be raised but simply as a matter of equity-upon those who, in common with the present residents of the town, are hereafter to derive the benefits of its location in our midst) that our borough authorities should be empowered to raise the money and erect the building, and the debt thus contracted to remain as a sinking fund, to be paid off in reg-whatever to its speedy erection-upwards of six. teen thousand dollars being stready subscribed. and many of our citizens who have not yet done ular instalments in five, ten, or fifteen years, as may be thought proper. The location is not only an a imirable one for the Court House, but the lot adjoining (and which can be had at a triffing cost) is equally as well adapted for the proposed new jail. We may, however, allude to this hereafter, and will merely add, again, there are perhaps not a dozen persons in our Borough, who entertain any serious objections to the location agreed upon by the Commissioners, and no one who will not use every effort to promote the speedy erection of the Court House upon it. One of the best answers to a question, that we have lately read is contained in the following paragraph, which we cut from the N. Y. Tribune :- A poor fellow was yesterday brought before one of the police justices, charged with the crime of being intoxicated. The justice interrogated him:-"Well, what do you get drunk and come here in this condition for !" - See here," was the reply, uttered with the hiccough and accentuation of drunken men, "What do you give licenses for ?" That is a question worth enquiring into. Fanny Forrester .- It is not often that the second wife likes to dwell upon the virtues and accomplishments of her predecessor. Fanny Forrester, the third wife of Dr. Judson, is not of that way of thinking; for she has been engaged since her marriage in writing the memoir of her immediate predecessor. She says, "It has been an exceedingly pleasant employment, for I think her character the most symmetrical and lovely that I have ever known."

Death of Miss Josephine Clifton.-We learn from the New Orleans Times, of the 24th ult., that Mrs. Place, formerly Miss Josephine Chitton, wife of the lessee of the American Theatre. died suddenly from a bemorrhage of the lungs, at her residence, in that city, on the 23d.

Moj. Gen. Pillow -It is thus that Mr. Kendall of the Picayune puts it to Major Gen. eral Pillow. We'are anxious to know what the Senate of the United States thinks of his prowess and abilities. Will that august body sleep upon such a pillow ? "Let me ask one or two ques-. How is it that Gens. Quitman, Shields and Smith, all appointed about the same time with Gen. Pillow, get along smoothly, to use a homely phrase, while he, Pillow, is eternally involving himself in difficulties? How is it that the first mentioned officers are popular with the entire army and country, and that their conduct has been made the subject of public and general approval. while the reputation of the latter is but equivocal, even among his best friends, and he has lost all cast with nine-tenths of the army if not the coun-

How is it that Gens. Pierce and Cadwallader have won the good opinions of all, while the great Gen. Pillow has made himself as it were the laughing-stock of the army? I repeat why is all this? It is because the latter has the military genius, and the impudence to trumpet his own exploits; it is because he has a grasping ambition. and a dishonest one-an ambition which diligently seeketh to build a reputation for himself even it the expense of others; it is because he has had the effrontery, time and again, to pester not only his officers but editors with stories of his prowess, and with bold requests that they might assist in sureading his deeds before the world; in short, it is became he has a restless and feverish desire and craving after all the honors of a campaign which has shed such lustre upon our arms, with the inpullerable weakness to believe that he is deserving of them. I must acknowledge that for one I thought that the man was used a little hirshly for his conduct in the Cerro Gordo business, but his antics here . in the army have done away with all favourable and mitigating impressions. I will now close by repeating that you will see letters in some of our papers at home, or I am much mistaken, which vilt expose the whole matter in a way that will

The Femule Dress of the Present Day.
-We are inclined to think that the female attire of the present day is, upon the whole, in as favorable a state as the most vehement advocates for what is called nature and simplicity could desire. It is a costume in which they can dress quickly, walk nimbly, eat plentifully, stoop easily, foll gracefully, and in short perform all the duties of life without let or hindrance. The head is left to its natural size, the skin to its native purity, Vera Cruz to the 18th ult., and from the city of the waist at its proper region, the beels at ther real has, as far as we see, fair play. Flounces are a nice question, we like them when they wave and mass, but looks like a receding angel or dissolving view; but we do not like them in a rich material, where they floo, or in a stiff one, where they brison the 2d ult. Compledo of Guadalaxra, it was the; and where they break the flowing lines of the petticoat, and throw light and shade where you do not expect them. In short we like the gown that can do without flounces, as Josephine liked a face that could do without whiskers, but, in either case, it must be a good one. - Quarterly Review.

To Survey of the Dead Sea .- We have recently learned, says the New York Herald, from an authentic source, that a party of naval officers, under Licut. William F. Lynch, will sail from his port in a few, days, in the United States store ship Supply, to the Meditterranean, for the purpose of making an exploration and survey of the Dead Sea. The order, it is said, emanates from the Navy Department, and we are assured that it is correct; but what object is intended, other than scientific research, we cannot at present say. As soon as the ship shall have arrived off the coast of Syria, the party will land, and Lieut. Pennock will succeed to the command of the Supply. The Editor of the Louisville Journal deserves to have his ears boxed for the insignation with which he concludes the following paragraph: "Last week there came to Troy, a little town in Indiana, a German family, composed of a man, his wife, and thirty-two children. The children are all girls, and were produced at sixteen births.

A gentleman of our city, who has some land in that vicininty, has promised to give them one bundred acres of land, provided their daughters will promise, as they severally come to maturity
