Sale of the state Here's a song for thee, -- of the linden tree ! A song of the eiken Lime! There is no other tree so pleaseth me, -- No stater so fit for thyme.

When I was a boy, it was all my joy When the sun was high, and the river nigh A musical murmur made: When, floating along like a winged song, The traveller-bee would stop, And choose for his bower the lime-tree flower, And drink-to the last sweet drop. When the evening star stole forth, afar, And the gnais flew round and round; I sought for a rhyme, beneath the lime, Or dreamed on the grassy ground.

Ah !-- ycars have fled ; and the linden, dead; Is a brand on the cotter's floor ; And the river creeps through its alimy deeps, And youth-- is a thought of yore ! Yet-they live again, in the dreamer's brain : As deeds of love and wrong, Which pass with a sigh, and seem to die, Garvive in the poet's song.

He that by the Plough would thrive, Himself must either hold or drive.

phatic manner, "I aint nothin shorter." Short er, as used in this instance, by the General, in good-decidedly good.

"Mr. Timothy," said a learned lady, who had been showing off her wit at the expense of a daigler, "you remind me of a ba-rometer, that is filled with nothing in the upper story." "Divide Almira," meekly replied her a base tin thanking wan for this flattening coma lorer, "in thanking you for this flattering com-pliment, let me temind you that you occupy my upper story entitely."

Der On Sunday, a lady called to her little boy who was tossing marbles on the side walk, to come into the house. "Don't you know you should'nt be out there, my son ? Go into the back yard, if you want to play marbles—it is Sunday." "Well, yes. But ain't it Sunday in the back yard, mother?'

Hogarth, the celebrated Painter, was a very absent man. When he set up his car-risge, having occasion to visit the Lord Mayor, on coming out he walked home, wet to the skin, forgetting that he had his own chariot at the door. Hogarth died on the 25th of October, 1764.

A shoemaker, with one eye, complained the other evening that one of his impe-did not burn. One of his shopmates, who is a genuine son of the Emerald late, with astonishment, exclaimed. "Faith, and what do ye want with two lamps, ye have nt but one eye."

10 "In our country, sir." said an i Italian, "we have the ever barriang Venues." "Hare, you, indeed!" rejoined a son of America ; "but please to remember that in ours we have the ever-glorious Falls of Ningara, which would be in the formation of the son of put it out in five minutes."
