HAS constantly on hand a large assortment of hew and fashlomable CAPS of all kinds, to which hew and fashionable CAPS of all kinds, to which he invites the attention of the trade, and who has for the last eight years been engaged in this particular branch, and succeeded in bringing to such perfection, as will be seen from the following extract from the report of the Committee on the exhibition of the Franklin Institute: "No. 226, men's and boys' caps, by W. P. Erhardt, No. 133, North 3d street, Philadelphia, well and neatly made. One of these caps deserves some notice on account of its convenience: one side is of cloth and the other of filed silk, and e'thermay be worn outside at the pleasure of the wearer. This, so far as the judges know is the first instance of such an arrazemant applied to caps."

To those who intend visiting Philadelphia to make purchases, it is important to know where it can be done to the best advantage. Such as are about to buy IIATP for their own heads, or by the case to sell again, are respectfully informed that there is an entablishment at No. 1, Straeberry street, on the second floor, conducted by E. DA. M.A., on the cash system entirely, where IIATS of the best muterials, and of the lettest festion, can positively be obtained as from one to two dollars less than at the showy and extravagant stores in the fashionable streets of the city, where rents are from sus to three thousand dollars per annum!

At this establishment, on account of locating himself in a bye street, and up stairs, the proprietor procures his store at the low rent of one hundred dollars. The vast difference in the profits which there must be between the two descriptions of stores, every one can answer!

Gems of Poesy. EARTHLY ANGELS. Why come not spirits from the realms of glory, To visit earth, as in the days of cld? The times of sacred weit and ancient story; Is heaven more distant, or is earth more cold?

Oft have I watch'd, when sunset clouds, receding, Waved like rich banners of a ghost gone by, To catch the glean of some white pinion, speeding Along the confines of the glowing aky. And oft, when midnight stars, distant chiliness, Were calmly hurning, listened inte and long; But a quire's pulse beat on, with solemn stillness Bearing no echo of the seraph's song, To Bethlehem's air was their last anthem given, When other stars before that eas grew dim? Was their last presence known in Peter's prison Or where exulting marryrs raised the bymn? And are they all within their well departed?
There gleams no wing along the empyrean now And many a tear from human eyer has started,
Since angel touch hath calmed a mortal brow.

Yet earth has angels, though their forms are moulded flut of such clay as fashions all below—
Though harps are wanted, and bright pinions folded,
We know them by the love-light on their brow. I have seen angels by the sick one's pillow— Theirs was the soft lone and the soundless tread-Where smitten hearts were drooping like the willow They stood between the living and the dead. DR. assortment of. C. Meyer's GRAND
ACTION PIANOS of Philadelphia.

The instruments are highly approved of by the most eminent Professors and Composers of music. For qualities of tune, touch, and keeping in time up to concert pitch, they cannot be surpassed by either American or European Pianos. They are chosen by all musical stars for their concerts, such as Madame Castellan, Leopold de Meyer, Vieux Temps, Burk, Wallace, Templeton and many others; they are used for 200 or 200 concerts every year. They have also received the first premiums of the three last exhibitions, and the leastil

TO SPRING. TO SPRING.

Now the wintry signs are going,
Fast from stream and sod and tree,
Warmer airs are mildly blowing,
Spring is bere with face of glee.
Snows are low and suns are high
Where her rosy tootsteps fly;
Wide abroad her mantle flinging.
As the angel maid advances,
Flowers are blooming, birds are singing,
In the sunshine of her glances.
Soul of verdire, youth and beauty,
Genius of the road of roses
Who delays to pay the duty, Genius of the roan or roses
Who delays to pay thee duty,
Who but in thy lap reposes?
Earliest born! thy blushs supernal
Gave their tints to Eden's flowers,
Clad the globe with glories vernal,
Fitted scener for heavenly hours. Fitted scener for heavenly hours. Changeless though that globe is chan; Youthful, though our forms grow o An of yore thy feet come ranging, Bringing beauty to the mould, Baim to breezer, light to skies, Life and freedom to the Guntains To the woodlands emerald dyes,

Life and freedom to the fountains,
To the woodlands emerald dyes,
Moss and garlands to the mountains,
Order to uncultured lands,
Music to returning birds,
Lubor to the farmer's hand,
Hope to hearts, and cheer to words!
Glorious, geptie, genial Spring,
Could we ever to thee cling,
Never morea sigh for Summer
Should a human bosom heave;
He should be a noteless comer,
Nor a look of love receive;
For thy ways are ways of grace,
Freshness, peace and purity;
Paradise adorns my face
With its sweet symplicity;
And though Summer's robes imposing
Ampler seem and bolder dyed,
Thine are evermore disclosung,
More of peace and less of pride.
Only in thy walks I'd wander, i
Other seasons sucrifice,
And when dust and spirit sunder,
Leave thee only for the skies.

HISTORY OF PAINTING.—It is to be supposed that painting was among the earliest of forts of human ingenuity, for the love of imitation would naturally suggest the idea of representing the surrounding objects which engaged the attention and interested the affections. Thus it is that the savages painted their own bodies, by means of puncturing the skin, and infusing different colors into the punctures, and that they painted on their shields different figures according to the fancy of the bearer. So, likewise, we find that the Mexicans were in the habit of representing their war, believed the stered to represent sacred objects

He sweet, peculiar smile which shone upon her features, as by a quick inclination of her head she answered, yet. What a world of thought her memory there is but one sound, and that is hes mother's voice.

Por years ahe had dwelt in silence unbroken from without, but those gentle tones of love still linger in her heart. There they can never die; and if her life should be prolonged to three score life, the memory of that voice will come, in love life, the memory of that voice will come, in love life, the memory of that voice will come, in love life, the memory of that voice will come, in love life, the memory of that voice will come, in love life, the memory of that voice will come, in love life, the memory of that voice will come, in love with the fresh lovely sounds of her cradle hours.

The Persians as well as the Arabians, had some idea of mossic; but the art was cultivated by those people principally for dimestic purposes. Among the Indians, painting is confined principally to the representation of their idols and monstrous objects of worship; but the painters of Thibet are remarkable for the delicacy of their strokes, in which they might vio with the Greeks, although deficient in every other particular. From the building of the city to the time of the Emperors, there is mention only of two who excelled in painting, namely, Fabius, surnamed Pictor, and Pacivins, the neph. Fabius, surnamed Pictor, and Pacivius, the neph-ew of the tragic poet Ennius. In the time of the Emperors, painting, as well as the other arts, flourished. A noble Florentine, named Ulmable, first learned the art from a Greek, and cultivated it with success, so that he may be reckoned the founder of the Florentine school, of which Michael Angelomes the great expense. was the great ornament. Raphael was the found-er of the Roman school; Titian, that of Venice; Corregio was the father and greatest ornament of the Lombard school, but the Caracci, Lewis, Au-gustin, and Hannibal, who were natives of Bolo-gna, also formed a school, which has been called the Second Lombard school.

Among the French, miniature painting, and painting on glass, were cultivated at an early poriod; but other branches of the air were at a low elb until the age of Honis XIII, when Poussin arrived at such eminence as to be called the Raphsel of France; but he had no pupils, nor any influence in forming the French school, the honor of which was divided between Vouet, who laid the foundation, and Le Brun, who raised the edifice. The Germans have never cultivated painting so as to form a school, but Albert Durer and John Holbein have secared this nation from being forgotten in the history of painting. The Flemish school is remarkable for having introduced oil painting; which was first a tempted, or at least brought into general practice by John de Bruges; but the master of the art was Rubens, the founder of the Flemish school. The Dutch have distinguished themselves in miniature painting, of which Rembrandt was their great master, and also as history painters, among whom Locas of Leyden, holds the first rank, and may be considered as the founder of the Dutch school. The English school is comparatively of modern date, and owns Sir Joshua Reynolds as its founder. It is principally known by its correct observance of the great masters of the Italian and Flemish schools.

Miscellany. CESAR'S WIFE .- Most of our readers have heard the saying, "a solder bravery, like Casar's wife, should be beyond suspicion." The following, which we take from the life of that great Roman, recently published, will explain the Clother was and of the men whose name occur most frequently in the histories of those times; a man who disgraced his birth and his talents by the lowest personal vices, and by the prostitution of his great wealth and cloquence to the worst purposes of sedition.

This Clodius had a passing for Pompeis. Casar's wife. Pompeia was closely watched by Casar's mother, Aurelia. In the year when Casar was practor, a favorable occasion for their metrics as mother of the control o

Casar was practor, a favorable occasion for their meeting seemed to offer, in the celebration of the mysteries of the Good Goddess, which was held at Casar's house, and attended only by women.—
The Romans allowed no man—noteven the master of the house—to be present at these mysteries; even the pictures and images of men were covered. The absence of men, the music and dancing, and other entertainments, afforded the opportunity for a young female slave of Pompeis to admit Clodius, a beardless youth disguised as a female musiciae. The slave left him to inform her misteess of her arrival. her mistress of her arrival.

As he was afraid of exciting suspicion by remaining alone, he wandered through the darker parts of the apartments where he was met by one of Aurelia's slaves, who put some questions to him, taking him for a woman. His voice betrayed him; and the affrighted slave ran to the com-

Immediately Aurelia put a stop to the mysteries, veiled the statues and searched every part of the mansion with torches. Clodius was found in the chamber of the slave that admitted him. All the women gathered around him and drove him form the bayes. Casar immediately divorced from the house. Casar immediately divorced

Pompeia.

Both Aurelis, Cassa's mother, and Julia his stater, related the story. What Cassar was called upon for his testimon, he teplied, with his characteristic caution, that he knew nothing about it. Being asked, "why then have you divorced Pompeia?" he replied, "Because Cassar's wife should be not only free from crime, but beyond ensolicion."

A MOTHER'S VOICE.—The editor of the Cincinnati Atlas concludes a notice of a visit to the Asylum for the Deaf and Dumb at Columbus, the Asylum for the Deat and Dumb at Columbus, (O.) by relating the fo'lowing: Of fone, an intelligent and modest young lady, who had become deaf from sickness, when two years and half old, we inquired if he could recollect anything of sounds or words. She answered that she could not. It occurred to us that there might have been at least one sound which might be remembered even from that tender age, and we ventured to nice whether she had no remembrance of her mother's voice. It will be long before we forget the sweet, peculiar smile which shone upon her butterfly, and pleased with the beauty of its person and the glory of its wings, made an offer of perpetual friendship. "I cannot think of it," was the reply, "as you once sourned me and called me a drawling dolt." "Impossible!" exclaimed the humning-bird, "I always entertained the humning-bird, "I always entertained the human and the butter of the beauty of the second s practiced by the Indians and Chinese.

Painting was partially cultivated by the Egyptians, but was not carried to any perfection, because they principally employed themselves in the representation of the monstrous objects of their worship, rather than depicturing natural or real objects; in consequence, their natural figures were very solid and the humble, as they may some day become your superior."
