A Card to Male Readers. To those who intend visiting Philadelphia to make purchases, it is important to know where it can be done to the best advantage. Such as are about to buy HAT3 of their own heads, or by the case to gell again, are respectfully informed that there is an establishment at No. 1, Stransferry street, on the second floor, conducted by E. DAMAI, on the cash system entirely, where HAT3 of the Met materials, and of the latest fashion, can positively be obtained at from one to two dollars less than at the showy and extravagantstores in the fashionable streets of the city; where tents are from one to three thousand dollars per annum!

At this establishment, on account of locating himself in a by street, and up stairs, the proprietor procures his store at the low rent of one hundred dollars. The vast inference in the profits which there must be between be two descriptions of stores, every one can answer! A visit is earnestly solicited, as it is certain no one rill ever regret doing so.

5 Strawberry street is the first above Second, runing from Market to Chesnut street.

THE subscribers offer to the Public, their Mastic Black as an invaluable paint for Timber and Iron, particularly when exposed to the weather, or in wet or damp situations.
Timber, coated with this preparation, becomes impervious to water, and is thus rendered much more endurable.

It's powers of resisting moisture, makes it especially useful as a coating for Posts, Sills, and all wood work placed in or near water, for in connection with the ground.

As a covering of Roofs, Bridges, Baliroad-Sleepers, Cars of Wood or Iron, Canal Locks, Gates, &c. &c., it is highly valuable, and may be used to the greatest adymniage.

PAs a paint for Vessels, Buoys, &c. it is useful not only for its preservative qualities, but it presents on the timber, when well coated, a bright and polished surface, and resists, on a remarkable degree, the attacks of worms and other insects. For Iron, in exposed situations, it makes an effectual clovering, with a high polish, and prevents rust and corrosion.

Hints to the Ladies.

THE YOUNG LADY'S FRIEND.

THE YOUNG LADY'S FRIEND.

By Mrs: Farrar.

There is no objection to your having a great deal of friendly talk, and many social visits from gentlemen of approved character end known moral worth; but do not fall into the prevalent fashion of talking about Platonic love, and having one gentlemen devoted to you in public and in private; as your chosen friend and confident. That is a folly pregnant with mischief, where it is entered upon in good faith, and it is rendered doubly odious by the use some ladies make of it, merely to escure to themselves a beau upon all occasions. Much nonsense is talked about. Platonic love, by girls who know not the real meaning of the word, and who designate by that term the resiless craving of their Beauts for sympathy, but who are the farthest removed from the calm and pure sentitiment described by Plato.

"Lead us not inter temptation! as the Deacon mind to run the risk. Darn if I hain't most a mind to run the risk. Darn if I hain't most a ded firmly.

"But look here, my friend," said the Great Western, "you must first satisfy me of his soundiness. Hitch your crittur to that big log," pointing to the largest of the pile, " and if he can draw it round the wood pile, I'll stand my offer."

The Green 'Un accepted the challenge, and the horse was put before the log and elarted. Now he knew-very well that if the "crittur" was diven round the pile with a steady pull, the "heaves" would soon show themselves, and aching but exquisites tact could enable him to "pick up" his rival. Accordingly after pulling a few feet, he stopped the horse and began patting him.

"He is a dreadful nice hoes, and he knows it! Poor fellow! If the old man was to see this here—"All right! go ahead!" said the Great Western.

J.—My dear sir, my own experience teaches me a very different leason. The other day, for instance, a large dinner party was given by the society to which you and I belong. A magnifecent array of a variety of wines had been planed upon the table and a company of about eighty had taken their seats. Now, I ask you why was it, that the first wine bottle that was uncorked had to travel almost the whole round of the table before one could be found who filled his glass?

W.—I suppose they did not drink because they knew that they would wound your feelings and those of some others present bedeiging to your society.

J.—Perhaps, though I would rather regard it as a silent approyal they thus gave of the propriety of adopting the principal that lies at the bottom of our society line that have produced the same effect if we had commenced drinking with the others, and then suddenly stopped, that they might be influenced by ourself-denial.

M.—True. I admit the force of what you as and there is still another view I like to dwell on. Your society has been actually the means of rescuing some of the most desperate characters from an early grave and perhaps, as faras the first preparatory steps are concerned, from everlasting roin, and I cannot but think therefore, that it is the datily of every well-wisher of humans and hand in the effort you are making.

J.—I have no more to say. I leave you to your own reflections, being well assured that there is a stonger voice speaking in your bosom than mine can ever be.

Our hero goped and literated and put in a word or two occasionally, which attracted the activation of the "Great Western" to the second and to the "Great Western" to the beautiful to the two occasionally, which attracted the standard and the pair adjourned to the word of the books and the pair adjourned to the word of the books and the pair adjourned to the wood hed. The "Great Western" was much struck with the speramoso of the borns, and her offered by the speramoso of the borns, and after a satisfactory examination, saked "Green, "Un" what had take fig him.

"He saft for sale, mixing in the sufficience of the borns, and after a satisfactory examination, asked "Green, "Un" what had take fig him.

"He saft for sale, mixing in the sufficience of the borns, and after a satisfactory examination, asked "Green, "Un" what had take fig him.

"He saft her offeren "Un" what had take fig him, and "they had comed to be provided in the superfluities of his table as belong; and her of the borns, and her offered him himself. The critique was followed; and the pair adjourned to the woodshed. The "Green the offered him himself. The critique was followed; and the pair adjourned to the woodshed.
