THE HARVEST MOON.

THE HARVEST inform Kelsey. By Illinem Kelsey. 'Tis night ! and what a glorious night ! O'er mountaib, vale and set. The harvest moon pours forth its light In floods of brilliancy. Ten thousand gemears in the skyr. A thousand gemears in the skyr. That sweetly mingle, as they lie, Their soft and silvery beams.

A neir soit and suivery beams. A solemn silence fills the air. Save when the harvest song. With many a tadence rich and rare. Floats the giad earth along ; And every heartbeats high with mirth. And grateful hore and giec. As harvest time fings o'er the earth Its light and melody.

Its light and melody. Fond memory brings its golden vase, With all the light and shade, That glimmered o'er our youth(u) race, Like starlight o'er the glade-The holy hopes and chearshed draams That blessed life's opening dawn. As o'er the East all biushing gleams The bright and rosy morn.

And oh: may thus each passing hour Ree some bright hope fulfilled: And manhood still posess the power That first our bosoms thrilled. And when our forms time shall consign Unto the chilly erars.
